AUTO PLUNGED INTO CANAL; TWO KILLED

R. D. Miller of Athol Drowned at Turners Falls—Wife Who Was Rescued by Son Died of Shock

TURNERS FALLS, June 28.—An automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Miller were returning to their home in Athol after a trip through the Berkshires plunged into a canal here today. Mr. Miller was drowned and Mrs. Miller, who was rescued from the water by her son, E. W. Miller, principal of the high school at Maynard, Mass., died of shock a few hours after the accident. The younger Miller and Miss Edna Locke of Winchester, Mass., who were also in the car, were not injured.

The machine, operated by Miss Locke, had crossed the high suspension bridge over the Connecticut river and had entered a bridge over a canal supplying water power to the factories on the river bank. At this point considerable construction work was in process and the guard rail of the bridge was missing. In the darkness of the early morning the automobile shot over the side of the bridge into the water. The elder Miller was pinned beneath the car and could not extricate himself.

Subpoena Serves Seek Mrs. Thaw to Testify at Sanity Trial

NEW YORK, June 28.—Subpoena servers sent by Deputy Attorney General Frank A. Cook were a Chateaugay Lake, near Malone, N. Y., today to serve a summons upon Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to testify in the jury trial of the sanity of her husband, Harry K. Thaw.

Mr. Cook wants Mrs. Thaw to repeat to the jury the evidence she gave in the habeas corpus proceedings at White Plains in 1909, when she told of visiting Thaw at Matteawan and quoted him as saying: "When I get out of this place I suppose I shall have to kill you."

Among the witnesses ready to testify for Thaw in the hearing today were General Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H., and Dr. Charles P. Bancroft, superintendent of the New Hampshire hospital for the insane, both members of the lunacy commission appointed by the federal court in New Hampshire to examine Thaw when he was in that state. They reported that Thaw was not then suffering from any of the forms of mental disease alleged by the prosecution at the time of his trials on a charge of murder.

As Twilight Deepens

Notice how readers on the cars lay aside their books and papers. Obscurity of vision and half sight is not only likely to be hurtful, but it is sometimes dangerous. These days of two twilights, in early morning and late evening, not only in the sky but cloudy weather of political affairs; but the old American flag has more stars in it and stands for nobler things and more beautiful things than ever before. There can be no twilight in a store that keeps forever burning the lamp of true service.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A favorable reply from Germany to the last American note on submarine warfare is indicated in today's state department advice from Berlin.

IN POLICE COURT

There was another "big" array of drunken offenders brought before Judge Enright in police court this forenoon despite the fact that 11 men making their first appearance were released by Probation Officer Slattery. Ernest Levesque made his fourth appearance within a year, though he has spent most of the time since last October in various institutions for the erring. He received a three months' sentence to the Lowell jail this forenoon. Patrick F. Creagan was complained of by his wife for drunkenness

RUSSIAN COUNCIL OF WAR AT FRONT

Tide of Battle is Again Flowing With Teutonic Allies in Galicia—Germans Attempt Another March on Warsaw—British Steamer Sunk—British Air Raid on Smyrna

The tide of battle is again flowing with the Teutonic allies in Galicia. German and Austrian claims of victory are substantiated by Russian admissions of retreat south of Lemberg. Simultaneously comes news of a Russian council of war at the front, presided over by the emperor and participated in by the Russian commander-in-chief, Grand Duke Nicholas, leading military men and several cabinet ministers, while in Petrograd the recent retirement of the minister of war is to be followed by other ministerial changes, according to current report.

March on Warsaw
Following recent indications that the Germans were resuming activity with the possible intention of beginning another march on Warsaw down from the East Prussian border come reports of a strong offensive movement by the Teutonic forces in the southern part of Russian Poland. The latest Russian official report mentions that this with the declaration that up to Saturday the new offensive had met with no success. It is likewise affirmed that German attacks in the Shavil and Narew river regions and across the Nieman have been repulsed.

and abuse. It being his fourth appearance, he was committed to the house of correction for five months and appealed. Frank J. O'Brien, arrested on a capias for failing to pay a $15 fine, made a plea for an extension of time, offering as an excuse that he lost his job in a local factory the week after the fine was imposed. Judge Enright gave him two more weeks to report favorably to the probation officer. Sixteen other defendants were disposed of with suspended sentences and small fines.

A young girl pleaded guilty to a complaint charging her with the larceny of $3.50 from M. A. Demers of 31 Inspectors' Walsh, who made the arrest, told the court that the defendant visited Mrs. Demers on Saturday afternoon and when leaving took the money which was in a bag on the table. The woman asked for leniency and at the recommendation of Deputy Downey she was placed on probation for one year.

Drunkenness and larceny of $1.55 from John Paddock were the complaints preferred against Antoine Kokaski, who entered a plea of guilty to each. It is alleged that the defendant, while under the influence of liquor, entered Paddock's room and took the money from a closet. A fine of $10 was imposed and Kokaski was given one week to make the payment.

Elmer H. Linstead denied that he was guilty of a charge of being a common drunkard though his divorced wife and another lady testified that they had seen him under the influence of liquor many times during the past few months. His case was continued until Thursday for further investigation.

HUERTA AND OROZCO ARRESTED ON BORDER

Former Dictator Charged With Plot to Start New Mexican Revolution

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Details of the arrest of Gen. Victoriano Huerta and Gen. Pascual Orozco on the charge of conspiring to violate American neutrality laws in attempting to set on foot a new revolutionary movement in Mexico from the territory of the United States were received today by the department of justice.

Although Generals Huerta and Orozco were released on bond they will be kept under surveillance by border agents of the department of justice. Just what evidence has been gathered against the former dictator and his associates has not been disclosed, but it is understood to relate mostly to alleged recruiting of Mexicans on American territory.

Officials at the state department declined to say whether the detention of Huerta arresting, in effect, any contemplated counter-revolution movement was a part of the Washington government's plan for compelling a solution by the Carranza, Villa and Zapata factions now in the field.

Until President Wilson returns from stood that adherents of the former president of Mexico were prepared to furnish surety greatly in excess of the amount fixed.

With the former generals at liberty, Mexican and American officials were watching developments among their adherents. Apparently the tendency of other factional leaders was to await the next movement of their opponents.

Despite the declaration of Huerta, that he would never enter Mexico again at the head of an armed force and would not return to his country until peace had been restored, federal officials did not relax their vigilance in watching the movements of the former president. A large crowd that gathered at his daughter's home continued to shout "vivas" for Huerta until long after midnight.

As to the legal phases of Huerta's arrest, there was no action looked for until July 1, the date set for the Huerta-Orozco hearing.

General Huerta, en route to El Paso, left an El Paso and Southwestern train at Newman, N. M., intending to complete the 20-mile trip by automobile with Orozco and Major Luis Fuentes. Instead, the former president was invited to accompany United States officials to the federal building for a conference with representatives of the department of justice. The trip to the city was made under escort of the 15th United States cavalry under Col. Gen. H. Morgan. Huerta made no objection.

News of Huerta's arrival spread rapidly and so great a crowd gathered around the federal building that on request of Mayor Lea federal and military officials agreed to take the two officers to Fort Bliss, pending action by the department of justice. Both were released and Huerta in conference with newspapermen expressed his appreciation of the courtesy shown him.

NOT IN NEED OF FOOD
NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—Vera Cruz is not in need of food, according to a lengthy cablegram received here from General Carranza's foreign minister. The official branded as false the reports of a food shortage in the city. The 40 tons of corn and beans unloaded at Vera Cruz by the American transport Buford have not been touched, the message said.

FELL FROM FREIGHT CAR
Little Thomas McKenna of Concord street, the 8 year old son of Thomas McKenna, a well known employee of the American Hide and Leather Co., toppled off a freight car in the rear of the plant of the American Hide and Leather Co., yesterday afternoon and sustained a fractured left wrist. He was taken to his home in Concord street, and later to St. John's hospital on orders of Dr. J. P. Loughran, who was called in, and the injured member was set.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Observance of Feast of St. Jean Baptiste — Award of Sunday School Diplomas

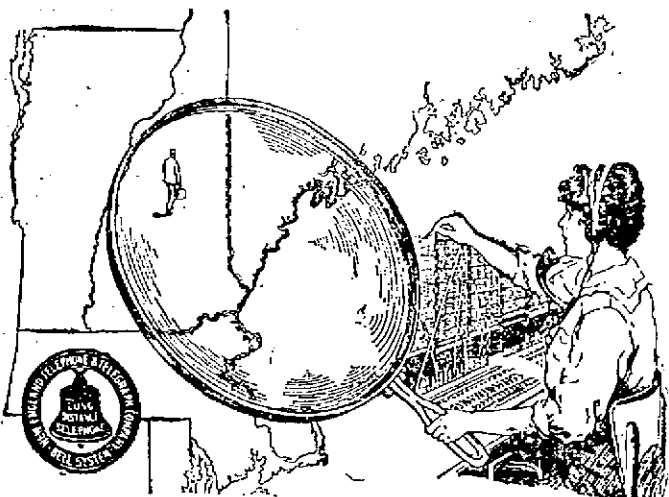

The feast of St. Jean Baptiste which occurred on Thursday, was observed in a fitting manner in St. Jean Baptiste church yesterday. At 10 o'clock a solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Eugene Turcotte, O. M. I., of Ottawa, P. Q., assisted by Rev. Joseph Denis, O. M. I., as deacon and Rev. Augustin Graton, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. The altar had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants and flowers, while hundreds of small incandescent lights added to the brilliancy of the celebration.

Rev. Joseph Bolduc, O. M. I., delivered a forceful sermon on "The Life of St. Jean Baptiste," and the choir, under the direction of L. N. Guilbault rendered St. Cecilia's mass by Turner, the soloists being J. E. Nolet, Arthur Giroux, George Labranché, J. A. N. Chretien, L. N. Guilbault and Mrs. Maria Jacques. At the offertory J. Janelle rendered in splendid voice "O Salutaris."

Immaculate Conception

The parish mass at the Immaculate Conception church was celebrated by Rev. James McCarlin, O. M. I. It was announced that a military mass will be celebrated at the church next Sunday.

The Microscopic Search

Give the toll operator some clue to the supposed whereabouts of the salesman, touring automobile party, possible customer or client you want to talk to, and she will try to connect you.

The toll operator does some extraordinarily clever work in following up these clues. Tell her the name of the person you want, where he is likely to be or where normally he ought to be and there's more than an even chance she will put you in communication with him—and quickly, too.

There will be no charge for a particular party toll call if you are not connected to the person whose name you have given to the toll operator.

day at 9 o'clock for the O. M. I. Cadets and that the members of the organization will occupy reserved pews in the centre aisle.

At the 7.30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O. M. I., the members of the Y. M. C. I. received holy communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being assisted by M. I. The choir, under the direction of Telesphore Myle, rendered the harmonized Missa Royale, the solos being sustained by J. Mercier, Edmond Lambert and E. J. Laroche. At the offertory Miss Alice Bonin rendered an "O Salutaris." At the close of the mass a hymn was sung by the choir.

St. Patrick's

The members of the C. Y. M. I. attended the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was the chaplain, Rev. Jas. J. Kerrigan, who also delivered a brief sermon. At the close of the service breakfast was served at the rooms of the Y. M. C. I. in Suffolk street, this being followed by a business meeting during which the election of directors for the ensuing six months was held with the following result:

John Queenan, John O'Connor, Patrick McGarrell, Philip O'Keefe, Stephen Hession, Joseph Foley, John Fleming and Matthew Clark. Considerable routine business was considered before adjournment was taken. Committee reports showed the organization in a flourishing condition. Arrangements are under way for an outing at Camp Texas some time in August.

St. Peter's

The parish mass at St. Peter's church was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan, while the sermon was delivered by Rev. P. L. Crayton. The members of the Children of Mary sodality attended the 8.30 o'clock mass and received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Rev. W. G. Mullin, who was assisted in giving communion by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Keleher.

Last evening at 7 o'clock a meeting of the members of the Immaculate Conception sodality and the Children of Mary sodality was held at a large number of new members was received into both organizations. The service closed with solemn benediction, the following clergymen officiating: Rev. Dr. D. J. Keleher, Rev. W. George Mullin and Rev. D. J. Heffernan.

St. Columba's

Special exercises were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Columba's church, during which Sunday school diplomas were conferred upon a large class. The pastor, Rev. John A. O'Connell, presided and a large number of new members was received into both organizations. The service closed with solemn benediction, the following clergymen officiating: Rev. Dr. D. J. Keleher, Rev. W. George Mullin and Rev. D. J. Heffernan.

Hart, Catherine Dunfee, Cleo LeBarge, Susan Rilly, Helen Monahan, Grace D. Sullivan, Mary C. McDonald and Christina McGee. A St. Columba's medal was awarded Miss Helen J. Monahan for excellence in study and deportment.

Sacred Heart

At the 7.30 o'clock mass yesterday at the Sacred Heart church the members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion in a body. The mass was celebrated by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I. who also delivered the sermon.

St. Michael's

Rev. Francis J. Mullin was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday. The sermon on the gospel of the day being delivered by Rev. J. J. Lynch. Friday evening from 7.30 to 8.30 o'clock the holy hour devotions will be held.

St. Joseph's

The celebrant of the high mass at St. Joseph's church was Rev. Julian Racette, O. M. I., while the sermon was delivered by Rev. Armand Baron, O. M. I. The choir, under the direction of Telesphore Myle, rendered the harmonized Missa Royale, the solos being sustained by J. Mercier, Edmond Lambert and E. J. Laroche. At the offertory Miss Alice Bonin rendered an "O Salutaris." At the close of the mass a hymn was sung by the choir.

St. Margaret's Church

At the masses at the Highland parish yesterday Rev. Fr. Galligan expressed his thanks to the members of the parish for the success of the recent lawn fete, and those who have not made their returns are requested to do so at once. Fr. Galligan gave an instructive talk applicable to this time of year, taking his text from St. Peter's epistle.

Miss Catherine V. Hennessy, soloist at St. Margaret's, is receiving congratulations upon her graduation from the New England Conservatory of Music.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Allyn, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women's ills known.

DROPPED THREE STORIES

DID BRAHAM JELL FALL OR WAS HE PUSHED? POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING

Braham Jell, of 38 Arch street, was taken to the Lowell corporation hospital about 6 o'clock last evening suffering from injuries sustained when he fell from the third story window of the block in which he lives, a distance of about 25 feet. Though no bones were broken, the man is in a critical condition and it is thought he sustained internal injuries. According to Jell's own story, he was leaning out of the window watching passersby when he lost his balance and fell. Herbert O. Craig, of 13 Howard street called at the police station and informed officers that he had seen a pair of hands push Jell from the window. This story was investigated and the police think there is no foundation in fact for it.

Morey, Whitcomb, Greene and Callahan Oldest in Point of Service—Morey's Text Books

On Wednesday last all the schools of the city closed and the vacation season is now on.

Those who have retired from the schools will be replaced by others in the fall and the indications are that the number will show an increase, especially in the high school which already is badly overcrowded, despite its numerous fly-by-night annexes.

The attendances at the grammar schools indicate that additional school room must soon be provided, not alone for the districts that are steadily growing but generally for the Butler school in the centre of a congested district, has sent forth one of the largest graduating classes in history.

Lowell's grammar schools are kept up to a high standard and the question as to which is the best might be answered: "There is no best, but all are efficient." The child cannot select his own school, nor his parents for him. His school depends upon the neighborhood in which he lives.

You will hear some people express a view that the Bartlett school cannot be as good as the others because practise teachers from the Normal school work there. On the other hand you will hear others say that the Bartlett school is better principal in the city has experienced such a tremendous growth in the size of his school, as has Mr. Morey for the locality which his school accommodates has increased in population more rapidly than any other section and is still increasing. When Mr. Morey became principal of the old Franklin school, which was the grammar school of the Highland district, 30 years ago, he had five rooms under his charge. When the Franklin school building was finally outgrown the school was moved to the new building at the corner of Pine and Wilder streets and called the Highland school. Mr. Morey now has under his jurisdiction 12 rooms at the Highland school and an overflow of two rooms at the old Franklin, while when the term begins in the fall he will open still another room. Meanwhile the Washington grammar school of the Highland district, is but an overflow of the original Highland school. Mr. Morey's school has turned out many graduates who afterward have become prominent in the city affairs. An average of 80 per cent of his graduates, covering a long period of years have entered the high school. The Highland school is conducted along conservative lines and with thoroughness. Little attention is given to the educational fads and

than the others because it is under state supervision to a certain extent and enjoys advantages that the schools under local auspices exclusively do not enjoy. Both statements are unfair. But the Bartlett school is an excellent school.

Some schools perhaps introduce side features into their curriculum that give them individuality, as for instance, at the Bartlett school, considerable attention has been given to the early Indian history of Lowell and vicinity, in which the children have taken a keen interest. Other schools have their little interesting hobbies, all of benefit to the pupils. Recently the pupils of the Highland and Varnum schools took a trip to Whittier's birthplace, below Haverhill. This trip, however, was the cause of considerable comment in some quarters, by reason of the fact that it entailed expense upon the individual pupils, which some could not meet conveniently. The story is told that in one case a pupil could not find the necessary means and a kind-hearted teacher made good, but all the other children knew it.

Charles W. Morey
Lowell has a school master whose name is known nationally as the result of his text books in mathematics which are now being used with great success in Lowell and different cities of the country and are the accepted authority in mathematics for the public schools of Washington, D. C. Mr. Charles W. Morey, Lowell's oldest school principal in point of continuous service, for Mr. Morey has been principal of the Highland school since 1880, or over 30 years. Perhaps no other foibles that are ever springing up throughout the country, but completeness of instruction in the great fundamental principles of educational branches is aimed at with success. An expert in mathematics, Mr. Morey after careful study of the problem of presenting mathematics to the child in a simple, comprehensive form yet omitting no essential, some few years ago published the Morey system of mathematics, in three text books, devoted to the primary, grammar and higher arithmetics. The system was tried in this city with success and soon found its way into the schools of other cities proceeding on its own merits exclusively. For Mr. Morey demanded that it be tried out before being accepted on the recommendation of an enthusiastic publisher. It forms the basic system of mathematics in the schools of Washington, D. C., where a few years ago Mr. Morey was called upon to address a national convention of teachers, speaking on mathematics on two occasions, before 1200 colored teachers and 2000 white. He is frequently invited to address gatherings of eminent educators on his favorite subject while he has contributed valuable articles on the study of mathematics, chiefly arithmetic, to leading educational publications.

Arthur K. Whitcomb
Arthur K. Whitcomb, principal of the Greenhalge school, and former superintendent of schools, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest of the principals in point of service, in the city, outlasting Mr. Morey a year or more. But he has not served in one school continuously. He was appointed principal of the Varnum school, and afterward was elected superintendent, which position he held for many years. After retiring from the superintendency he remained out of school for a term and then was elected principal of the Greenhalge, which position he now holds.

The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINIT"

USED BY DR. GAGNON IN HIS SUPERIOR PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT.

This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my offices? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

Moody school, has been Belvidere's only school master since 1883, when he was appointed principal of the old Moody school in East Merrimack street. He has been conspicuously successful in his administration of the affairs of his school as well as in securing thoroughness in the instruction given in all the grades.

Mr. Green by means of a special class helps backward pupils to keep up and he also sees that the bright are given an opportunity to go ahead. Cornelius F. Callahan
Particular attention is called this year to the Butler school, by reason of the fact that it sends forth the largest graduating class in years, 95 pupils, 89 of whom have certified to the high school, which means that the 89 have averaged over .70 per cent for the year. The Butler school has had an honorable history of 32 years. It has turned out many men and women who have afterward become prominent in the life of the city. They have entered about all of the professions, except the law. Strange as it may seem, few if any Butler school graduates ever studied law. Probably the training they received at the Butler made them shy of the noble profession of Blackstone and Choate.

In looking over the different grammar schools perhaps the Butler will be found to be the most interesting of all, on account of its individual features. It has been conducted with success by Principal Cornelius F. Callahan continuously since 1883, although in days gone by when politics counted with ability in the selection of a superintendent of schools, Mr. Callahan was often prominently mentioned for the superintendency, as the choice of the local democratic party, both parties agreeing that his ability was unquestioned. A most interesting, and as far as Lowell is concerned, a novel educational feature of the Butler school is Principal Callahan's work in behalf of the forward pupil. Much is said and written in these enlightened days by prominent educators on the subject of the backward, or delinquent pupil, and some of the brightest minds are devoting themselves to the solution of the important educational problem. Quite a number of years ago Principal Callahan gave considerable study to the problem of the delinquent pupil and while thus engaged the thought came to him as to the welfare of the forward pupil, who was undergoing a serious handicap, while being kept back to await the belated progress of the delinquent. The forward pupil could learn with ease that which required much more time and attention from the child of duller intellect. Therefore the pupil who learned quickly was given an opportunity to "loaf" while the other was coming along, and "loafing" struck Principal Callahan as a bad proposition to be permitted to exist in any school room. Furthermore, Mr. Callahan figured that the pupil who could learn easily but who was kept back from year to year to wait for the other boy to catch up, soon lost interest in his studies and in the continuing of his education and welcomed the opportunity to throw down his school books and go no higher than the elementary grades. On the other hand the clever pupil took a lively interest in his school work and looked forward to a higher education.

With these thoughts in mind he decided to give special attention to the forward pupils of the Butler school and to open for them the opportunity to which their superior ability seemed to entitle them. Accordingly some years ago he took from the first year children who had made the fourth grade, 45 of the brightest pupils, those whose first year's average was .90 or thereabout, and placed them in a special class, permitting them to go ahead with their books as rapidly as was consistent with thoroughness and capacity for study. As a result, all of these pupils gained one year in their grammar course, making the six year course in five years, while many did even better and completed their course in four years. Their subsequent career in the high school was carefully watched and it was found that they vied with the most successful scholars in that school, and they showed that their work had been done without any mental or physical detriment. Eighty per cent has been the average of those of the Butler forward pupils who have a fine showing after leaving the school. The number that afterward entered high school or other institutions of higher education proved the principal's contention that giving them the opportunity to advance as rapidly as their ability demanded, awakened an interest in their studies and made them desirous of advancing beyond the limited facilities of the elementary school. This fall a special class of 43 will start in at the opening of the term. The special classes at the Butler are under the able direction of Misses Annie J. Davine and Alice C. O'Brien.

Long before the vocational school came into vogue in this city, Principal Callahan had been successfully conducting two important vocational departments at the Butler school, the cooking and manual training departments. These features were also taken up at the Edison school, the pupils of the latter institution going to the Butler for instruction. Miss Mary E. Lane, directs the Butler school cooking class and Miss Donovan that of the Edison, while Mr. Peter J. Gulesian has charge of the manual training.

having resided here since childhood. He received his early education at the Mann school and the high school, entering the latter in 1889. The classical course of the high school in those days was not as advanced as it is today and desiring a classical education Mr. Callahan, after one year at the local school, entered St. Charles college, Elliptic City, Md., from there he went to Holy Cross college, at Worcester, where he graduated with honors. Returning to Lowell he was appointed a school principal in 1884 and has administered his duties continuously, and with conspicuous success ever since. Speaking of his profession, to the writer, Mr. Callahan smilingly said: "I would not advise any young man who has no other income, to choose teaching as his life-work for the remuneration is not commensurate with the time and energy he puts into it." Mr. Callahan resides at 549 Westford street.

William F. Barry of the Pawtucket school was appointed in 1887, while Principals Rixby, Mellen, Harris, Shean and Barr have hardly reached the "old timer" class.
 Lowell's Youngest Principals
 The youngest principals are Leo A. King of the Edison school, who is completing his first term and Paul L. Perkins of the Green school whose election took place a few months ago. Mr. Perkins is probably one of the youngest, if not the youngest school principal in the state, and it is said was elected either just before or just after becoming a voter. Both young men have made an excellent showing during the short time that they have been in their respective positions.

THE VERY BEST DENTIST IN LOWELL

There is no question in my mind but what I am the best dentist in the city for you to come to for dental services, for the following reasons:
 1st—Because I do beautiful work, lasting and guaranteed for 10 years. And any methods are absolutely painless.
 2nd—My office is clean and sanitary and the sterilization of instruments is a most important feature.
 3rd—My prices are low, in fact lower than in any other office in Lowell.
 DON'T GO ELSEWHERE AND BE SORRY
 Every day I hear someone say: "Oh, why did I not come to you first. How much better your work looks, and you did not hurt me one single bit."

Fillings of gold, silver and porcelain are inserted painlessly, and when once in they stay in. I make teeth that look and act like your very own. No more of those old, false looking sets, which the ordinary dentist makes, are made at my office.

HELD OPEN AIR SERVICE

MAN FROM MONTANA ADDRESSES
FIRST IN SERIES OF OPEN AIR
MEETINGS ON COMMON

Rev. Lawrence A. Wilson of Butte, Mont., was the speaker at the first of a series of Sunday afternoon services, under the auspices of the Federation of Churches of the South common yesterday afternoon.

"Out in Butte," said Mr. Wilson, "men have accumulated vast fortunes. Something like $35,000,000 in gold nuggets have been dug up around there. They're not doing it now, but they have done it. And, out there, as perhaps, right here, there are men who live for one thing—the getting together of money. They build big houses and live in them and imagine that they measure up to the importance of their millions. And out there, too, there are women who, because they wear jewels, imagine they are jewels, also. But I'm going to tell you that the men out there in the big houses, and the women with the big jewels haven't bought one thing. They haven't appreciated the fact that what's the matter with them is their failure to lead Christian lives. They haven't got happiness.

"It isn't the size of the house, it is what's in the heart. And there are men and women in the east, just as in the west, who are yearning to know something of Jesus Christ, and so we are going to try to bring it to them. They must get in the right relationship to God.

"Another point about many of those who live in Butte is that they have severed their relationships with those who were most dear to them. Coming from all parts of the earth, they have left behind them their mothers and fathers. Now it is not a good thing to part the relationships that mean the most in life. I know boys do not like to be told that they are tied to their mothers' apron strings. But, after all I have known, the tying to mother's apron strings 90 times out of 100 produces wonderfully good effects. For who is there from whom we can

PRESIDENT WILSON AND COLONEL HOUSE

COLONEL HOUSE and PRESIDENT WILSON
PHOTO © 1915 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The accompanying photograph of President Wilson and Colonel E. M. House was taken at the summer home of the latter in Roslyn, N. Y., after the president and Colonel House held their long deferred conference on the European situation. Though no word of their conversation was divulged, it is quite generally understood that Colonel House made it plain to the president that not one of the warring nations is considering negotiations for peace. Later in the day, when the president was playing over the golf links of the Piping Rock club at Locust Valley, Colonel House, standing on the clubhouse porch and pointing at the president out on the links, said to a friend: "The hope of world peace lies in that man out there swinging a little wooden club, and he is handling the situation under exceedingly trying circumstances as well as it can be handled. The American people perhaps do not understand the high regard in which President Wilson is held by all the sovereigns of Europe today." The president himself, although he smilingly agreed to pose for newspaper photographers, was firm in his refusal to discuss the nature of his talk with Colonel House.

get so much of real worth as from our mothers? Stick to the good relationships, don't sunder them.

"Some men go to church through selfish motives. They want something, and when they get it they cut out of the church. That kind of Christianity is the direct antithesis to the real Christianity. Some men who are hungry look upon Christianity differently when they are more comfortable. It isn't the offering of a church home to reach out for selfish ends, nor it isn't the giving of food to the hungry merely to make them Christians that these meetings are to be held. It is to touch the heart, to bring to God the young men and young women, to make clean, upright, honest, manhood and womanhood, not merely for the selfish pleasure in that, but to the glory of God, who meant that we should perfect ourselves in his image. Being a Christian is not abnormal, it is the only real normal life. God intended it thus and when we do not follow God we are becoming abnormal.

"And one point more I wish to call your attention to. You don't have much of it here. But in Butte, men, when they want something, use force to get it. If they dislike a man they strike him, shoot him, injure him. I have never yet found that force accomplished anything of any lasting value. And over in Europe today they are learning that the mere gospel of force cannot bring about any lasting good. It is only through the gospel of Jesus Christ that the abolition of class and national hatreds can be accomplished.

for, as long as these hatreds are perpetuated, and, through the application of force they are bound to be kept alive, the peace which we so earnestly wish for cannot come.

Rev. Mr. Clapp announced at the close that next Sunday afternoon, despite the preparation for the Fourth of July, a service lasting three-quarters of an hour, will be started at 4:15 o'clock.

A deputation of Russian women have asked permission from the government to form a volunteer legion to serve as regular soldiers. These women assert that they are ready to assume all military duties except actual engagement in battle and are particularly desirous of being employed for patrol service.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

SETTING THE DINNER TABLE

"I plan to give a formal dinner for my girl cousin who is visiting me," quoth Marjorie, "and I know you will help me by some hints on how to arrange the table, won't you, Marie?"

"Indeed I will," replied the resourceful French maid. The planning and the giving of a dinner is not much more difficult than the serving of a luncheon if the hostess will bear certain things in mind.

"Though you may prepare the dinner yourself it is well to get someone to help you serve it. It is very hard for the housekeeper to set the table alone, give the last touches, and to take dishes, and be ready to receive her guests when they arrive.

The butter plate should be at every place and the roll can be put on it. "It is a question of individual taste whether the butter shall be served or not. Three sets of doilies can be used. The largest are for the service plates, the second size for the water glasses and the third for the bread plates. The knives, spoons and silver needed for the first course are laid at the right and the forks are placed at the left.

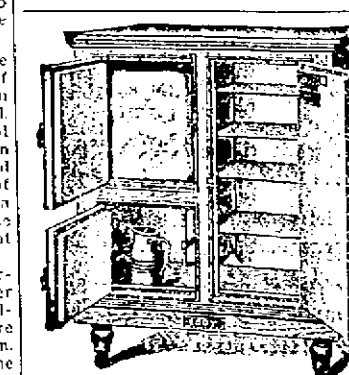

The arrangement of the glasses begins with the goblet at the point of the knives. The water goblet comes first and whatever other glasses are used are placed at the right. It is only when the last touches are given—that the water glasses are filled and the candles are lighted. Place cards at each plate you will find of great assistance if you have many guests."

MIDDLESEX STREET WHITE WAY

WHITE WAY OPENING NIGHT

Residents of Upper Middlesex St.
Will Celebrate This Evening—
Parade, Music and Bargains

The White Way celebration of the merchants of the upper Middlesex street district, which will be held this evening, will doubtless attract a very large crowd of people from every section of the city. The merchants have been preparing this event for a long time and it promises to be as big a success as others. Nothing has been spared which will add to the success of the affair.

A fine program has been arranged for the entertainment of visitors. There will be a continuous band concert, the musicians marching up and down the new White Way district as they play, red fire, a short parade and several other features. The Middlesex Social club will hold open house in honor of the event and a full orchestra will be in attendance at the club rooms. There will be singing and the doors and windows will be thrown open so that all may enjoy the concert. The festivities will start about half past six this evening. Among the most attractive features will be the special bargains which the merchants along the new white way district are offering everyone. A glance through the advertisements on this page will give the reader an idea of the spirit with which these business men are entering into the affair. Special reductions in prices and in several cases, souvenirs will be given to the customers. These merchants offer car fares to visitors and the special reduction of 10 per cent on purchases. These inducements will no doubt meet a big demand tonight.

The organization in charge of the event is the Upper Middlesex street Improvement Association, the officers of which are as follows: Chairman, C. Harry Clapp; secretary, Sigmund Rostler; directors, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Adelard Bernard, Joseph Kaplan, George F. White and Louis Lord.

The hard work which they have put into the celebration is worthy of brilliant success which will no doubt characterize tonight's event. A fund to cover the expenses was secured by subscription and the committee found great enthusiasm and generosity among the public spirited ones along the new white way.

WHITE WAY NOTES

Another live one is the Lowell fish market, on the great white way.

Souvenir fans will be given all customers by F. Heroux & Co., fancy bakers.

Visitors will no doubt call at the Lowell Cash Market, the proprietor of which, Mr. Dostal, is one of the upper Middlesex street boosters.

A large plant on the white way is that of Upton & Gilman, machinists. These are two boosters who have won success in their line.

The Depot Coach Co. has a large auto and taxi service station on the white way at the Northern depot. This first rate service is available to all.

Messrs Kaplan and Gardner of the Loyal Cash market make an offer of a souvenir this evening with every purchase of $1 or over. This market is on the white way.

Tom Fitzgerald was, as usual, among the most active and enthusiastic of all in promoting tonight's celebration. Tom is the right kind to arouse interest and get results.

Mr. Abdallah of the store formerly known as the Vermont Butter Co. is another enthusiastic white way merchant who invites public inspection and patrons tonight.

ADVICE TO GRADUATES

Joseph French Johnson, dean of the New York University School of Commerce, recently published a magazine article in which he told of an interview which he granted not long before to a young man who wanted advice as to the future. This boy was aged 17 and had been two years at high school, but he was deliberating on whether it was better to graduate and go to college, or whether he should go to a commercial school and so direct to business.

The advice given by this head of a successful business college was, in part: "Don't choose a business because other people are making a lot of money in it, and don't reject the professions merely because you have known some persons in them who can't pay their bills. What you should look for is the kind of work you can do best. In that you will be the happiest and most successful, even though you never become wealthy."

This advice is not in line with that of many lecturers and writers who think they have advanced views on education, for it is quite common for such individuals to laud vocational and specialized training as being superior to the old-fashioned liberal education. The point of view of those who argue in favor of the specialized training is that of this boy who said: "If I am going into business, why shouldn't I go to a school of commerce like this, instead of wasting two years in college studying a lot of things I don't care anything about or things that won't be of any use to me later?"

To a certain extent this view is correct, but it is a material view and on the whole a mistaken one. The answer given to this question by Mr. Johnson is worthy of note: "Don't worry too much now about what you are going to do; just make a resolution to get such an education that no job or profession will be too big for you to climb up to."

The young man who thinks that because he is going to follow a trade or is going into business, he will not need a good general education, is much mistaken. All kinds of business are in a sense becoming professions. The successful expert accountant needs a preliminary training and education as thorough as that of a lawyer, and he who would rise to an executive position in business or finance will soon discover that he needs something more than mere experience or knowledge of his comparatively narrow business sphere. The boy who leaves the vocational school best fitted for even the trade or business he has trained for is he who has not confined himself solely to the direct training of that school.

On the other hand, necessity has no law, even in education, and when it is absolutely necessary that a boy should leave school early and go to work, specialized training is most desirable. The mistake is in supposing that vocational training is a substitute for a general education. The boys who, on graduating from grammar school, may go to the high school, or who after leaving the high school may go to college, should do so by all means. Education does not make the head heavier or retard early success, and the boy who has the broadest education is best fitted to take the advantages that come to all to a greater or lesser degree. In short, a boy before leaving school, should, if possible, prepare for something special but be ready for anything.

THE BRIDGE BUNGLER

The municipal council has provided for a new bridge across the Merrimack river at Pawtucket Falls in what must seem to all thinking citizens a very slipshod, imprudent, unseemly and undesirable manner. A company represented by one active and zealous delegate whose unsupported word has carried a most extraordinary weight with four members of the council has been chosen to construct the bridge, but aside from certain concessions, which Mr. Denman of the constructing company dictated, the plans are neither definite nor satisfactory. Plans which have not yet been presented have been accepted in advance, under certain conditions wholly unfavorable to the city, and the little matter of cost is left to Mr. Denman to decide. Nothing in the situation commends it either to Lowell contractors, to salesmen of bridge materials, to supporters of the Lowell city charter, or to the taxpayers generally. There is a possibility that the bridge may be satisfactory, but there is a grave possibility that it will not and if not, who is to reimburse the city for its loss? Under the arrangement nobody can be held financially responsible.

As was brought out by the pointed question of Commissioner Carmichael at the Friday meeting, no bond is furnished by the Luten company; the majority of our commissioners seemed to resent any suspicion as to the motives of all concerned. One commissioner wonders that anybody should anticipate anything wrong, and Mayor Murphy is full of confidence, because forthwith he means to see that the bridge is properly inspected "before it is accepted." Are we to assume that if found unsatisfactory, it will be pulled down and another one erected? If the bridge should fall down the week after Mr. Denman gets his money, what can the city do about it? Nothing.

The usual procedure in cities that do business properly—like the city of Springfield for example—is that there should have been definite plans first, passed upon by an expert and approved by the city, by the Locks and Canals corporation, by the Bay State company, and by the war department. A demand for such plans and specifications might, of course, have made it hard for the Springfield company to compete, and it was evidently a pre-arranged fact that there should be no competition and that one certain company should be awarded the contract. The man who has negotiated all the proceedings and who became virtually a temporary member of the municipal council is the company in question. This is unusual, to say the least, and it may be found highly unsatisfactory before the bridge is finished. The city takes all the risks and Mr. Denman, a total stranger, is practically a free agent.

Again, there is absolutely no guarantee that the bridge will be built within the $50,000 mentioned, just as there is no assurance that the $50,000 is not excessive. Certain pertinent questions as to possible additional costs were evaded at the meeting last Friday, and it would seem that should Mr. Denman require a few thousands more later on, there is nothing to prevent him getting it. This is not the way Lowell has arranged for municipal projects in the past, and it is certainly not the right way. Commissioner Duncan, for one fitting moment, seemed to look for light as to the real cost of construction. He declared that the charter forbids the awarding of any contract until the appropriation is made, but he soon forgot his scruples. The commissioners were particular to go on record as stating that they have nothing against Mr. Denman. Neither has the Lowell public nor the Sun, but that is beside the point. What have the commissioners against the city that they should so jeopardize its interests? The one important consideration is that we should have an adequate bridge, constructed on business principles and at the lowest possible figure. The city is to have a new bridge built at Pawtucketville to cost $30,000 or over but for aught the aldermen know it may not be worth $50,000 when completed although it may cost $30,000. Denman has bound the city to a bargain but the city has not bound Denman or his company. The city will have to pay whether it gets value for its money or not. Is that the mode of doing business provided for by the new charter? Is it safe, is it sensible, is it economical is it honest?

TO AVOID FRICTION

In the development of the new business interests of the department of commerce, this country will be furnished with an instrument of political protection which cannot be appreciated at the present time. All nations are trade rivals, and it is an acknowledged fact that behind the present war are animosities arising from friction in foreign markets. Let one country successfully compete with another in some old line of established trade and immediately jealousies and rivalries are engendered that reach into the ways of international diplomacy.

At the present time, this country is striving to have its foreign business done by business experts and not by politicians. Until the present administration, the commercial interests of the country were taken care of by the consuls and ambassadors in foreign capitals, and the reports on the extension of the textile industry or the field for American farm machinery in China or the Argentine republic came in the same envelope that contained delicate matters of international interest. This is no longer the case, and with the development of the exclusively American idea, our foreign business will be handled by men of business and as a business proposition and our matters of foreign policy will be handled by statesmen.

This fact is not given the prominence it deserves by the doubtful forecasters who declare that America will be drawn into a great conflict before many years. True, trade rivalries between the nations are growing more keen and aggressive, but if other nations do as America does, there will be little danger of serious trouble. The present administration is striving to introduce into our foreign-trade practices that have made America a synonym for successful business in all parts of the world. Our government invites open competition, but it demands open and fair dealing in an open and fair field. The department of commerce is working for publicity, common-sense and efficiency, and it bids fair to give American prosperity abroad a hitherto unknown impetus.

PRESIDENT WILSON RESTS

President Wilson is enjoying a brief vacation at his summer home at Cornish and no man in America is more deserving of one. For months his task has been the heaviest of any president since the time of Lincoln, and he has attended to it with a degree of persistence, fidelity, patience and wisdom that have aroused the utmost loyalty of his own country and the admiration of the world. His work has not been of the kind that can be correctly estimated in advance and that when once done is finished, for the time being. Every question that confronted him six months ago confronts him today, and at any moment there may be complications that would demand from the chief executive the exercise of tremendous responsibility. Through the maze of diplomacy and the devious ways of international law President Wilson has had to tread carefully and with dignity, remembering the while that one false step might lead to war, and that war would be a national calamity, except in extreme necessity. We are too close to President Wilson to appreciate the size of his services to his country, but history will testify that his personality looms large over every national policy of this country at a time of world war.

We are told that the president's journey from Washington to Cornish was one long vacation, and fittingly so. Avoiding publicity of the more sensational variety such as was courted so assiduously by a famous predecessor who still amazes and at times amuses the country, he nevertheless has attracted to himself the love and respect of the entire country. If the good wishes of our many millions have any effect, President Wilson will go back to his onerous duties at Washington a stronger and happier man.

TRADE AT HOME

The Lowell board of trade has come out in support of the slogan "Trade at home," and incidentally advertised the advantages of the parcel post by advising those Lowell people who go away for the season to still trade at home by having their provisions, etc., sent from the home market by parcel post or express. The suggestion is novel, but if found practicable it is very pertinent and timely.

There is no question that in many vacation places, the prices of food and other domestic commodities are boosted unmercifully, to the financial loss of the vacationist. It is also true that one cannot be as sure of the quality as one is of the commodities that have been received from an old and tried establishment at home. Consequently if the out-of-town Lowellites could, by trading at home, get provisions on time and in good condition, it would be a splendid exercise of common-sense and of the most desirable community spirit to still leave money with the Lowell merchant.

In this, discrimination should be shown, for it would be folly for one at the beach to order clams from a Lowell fish dealer, or to get sweet corn from Tewksbury when one is summing up on a Vermont farm, but there are many household articles that one might get more advantageously from the Lowell dealer. It is then for all our vacationists to remember the possibilities of parcel post or express and to give some thought to the request of the board of trade.

EATING WHAT YOU WANT

Not to be limited in his diet but to eat whatever he pleases without discomfort is the dream of the dyspeptic. Nobody can honestly promise to restore any stomach to this happy condition because all people cannot eat the same things with equally satisfactory results. It is literally true that "what is one man's food is another man's poison." But it is possible to select a pleasant diet from articles of food that cause no discomfort and it is possible to tone up the digestive organs.

When the stomach lacks tone there is no quicker way to restore it than to build up the blood. Good digestion without a rich red blood is impossible and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer the best way to build up the blood. They also have a direct action on the nerves and as the nerves control the processes of digestion, these pills are specially good in cases of nervous dyspepsia. You can learn this treatment at once because your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Perhaps you are not eating the right foods. Sometimes the very things that people eat "for their health" are the things that hurt them. A postal card request to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will bring a free diet book. Write for it today.

BLEACHERY GANGS

Commenting recently on the danger of the gang spirit and the necessity for curbing it, The Sun expressed gratification at the absence of such extreme depredations as recently drew the attention of all Massachusetts to Lynn. In that city public property had been wantonly destroyed without regard for loss or ownership; whole hedges of trees and shrubs had been killed with chemicals, a ball court had been ruined, and fences had been torn down.

The Bleachery district is infested with gangs but not more so than some other sections of the city where a like campaign might be started with advantage. Possibly the gangs in question have not yet done much damage to property, but they frequently offend against propriety. It should surely be possible in this city for women and young girls to go through the parks and commons without being insulted or interfered with, and it is possible to so regulate such places that the ears of decent people are not constantly offended by profanity and vulgarity. The time for the police department to show such desirable activity is now before the season is advanced. A few arrests wherever the gang spirit has been manifested and a stiff fine or imprisonment would go a good way towards making known that Lowell will not allow the rights of all the people to be interfered with by a few irresponsible loafers or low-minded hoodlums.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

To one who looks over the lists of our school graduates in the proper American spirit, there is great inspiration in the diversity of racial stock represented. Recently President Wilson in addressing a great mass of newly naturalized citizens declared that whenever he forgets the ideals of this republic, he is again reminded of them by the sight of our foreign-born Americans, and the same holds true of the school lists. Our colleges and high schools are filled with the sons and daughters of immigrants of an older generation who has had little education and less opportunity, but who brought the proper spirit for the making of new Americans, and our primary schools have many names of other racial groups that sought our shores at a later date. Moreover the honor lists and the lists of class officers contain many names that have an unmistakably foreign sound, proving eloquently that the sons and daughters of all our immigrants are forging to the front and will be among the leading citizens of the future. It is well. It took some degree of idealism and love of liberty to attract our foreign-born citizens, and while we love liberty and maintain our high ideals, America will be what Washington meant it to be.

AN AWFUL RAP

"Sometimes we receive a felt unconsciously given," said my friend, the criminal lawyer. "A few weeks ago in a court not many miles from Lowell, a young man was up, charged with a minor offense."

"Have you a lawyer?" asked the court.

"I don't need a lawyer," said the culprit. "I have decided to tell the truth."

STRICTLY FRESH

A dairyman and farmer personally applied to a town housekeeper for a transfer of her custom to himself.

"I hear you had a lot of trouble with old dairyman of yours," he said.

"Just you give me your custom, and there'll be no trouble."

"Are your eggs always fresh?" asked the woman.

"Fresh!" repeated the man in an indignant tone.

"Let me tell you, madam, dot my hens never, never lay anything but fresh eggs."—Evening Mail.

ALL THE SAME

"Well," said the man from the Cross-Bar ranch, "we have everything over to Butte that's worth while, I guess. On Jan. 14 we had the world renowned bellringers; Jan. 22, Della Brown, the famous lady cornet player, and on Jan. 28, grand production of Lewis the Great."

DIDN'T MUFF IT

Edgar Montgomery Cullen, lately chief justice of the court of appeals in New York and one of the recipients of an honorary degree at Harvard's commencement Friday, manifested a vein of quiet humor in his address at the Harvard Alumni meeting later in the day. With gentle kindness, while criticizing the tendency of some highly educated people of the country today to desire novelty in political and social affairs, he won the appreciative laughter of a "high class" audience of Harvard men by suggesting that some American families have lived in the country for too many generations to appreciate it as well as more newly arrived immigrants. The sally took, decidedly.

DID DE DONATE?

Sometimes the public speaker who invites comment or reply from his audience has the laugh turned against him, but sometimes even in such a case his point is strengthened. For instance, the temperance speaker, in the incident related to me by a local anti-saloon worker.

"If anyone here," shouted the foe of the saloon, "can name an honest business man that has been helped by the saloon I will donate $100 to any local charity."

A solemn looking man arose. "I consider my business an honest one," he said, "and it has been helped by the saloon."

"What is your business?" shouted the orator.

"I replied the man, 'am an undertaker.'"

THE BEST EVER

What is the best speech of introduction you ever heard? Eminent men need various curious introductory efforts. Senator LaFollette says this is the best he ever heard.

The senator was to speak at a political meeting in a small Wisconsin town. The chief local official was to introduce him. He did it like this:—

"Gentlemen, I had been asked to introduce you to the Honorable Senator LaFollette, who will make to you a speech. I had now done so; he will now do so."

This recalls the presentation speech of the committee chairman who, in his address, with eloquence the presentation of a watch to the chief. He had carefully prepared his speech. The chief, forewarned of what was to take place, had as carefully prepared his speech of acceptance. But neither was accustomed to that sort of thing. The presentation and acceptance went like this:

"Ah, hum! Ah, er—er—this is the watch."

"Oh! Er—er—is this the watch?"

"Yes, this is the watch."

"Thank."

And the chief put the watch in his pocket, as the committee filed out.

HER GRADUATION DAY

In the hush of twilight's hour, in a dear old fashioned room, sat a father with his fond and loving child.

And the planning for her future there was something like a gloom. Which caused the tears to dim his eyes so mild.

Fond memories of other days when roses were bloom. Before his gaze that evening seemed to stray—

—Twas here I brought her roses—in this very soft-same room. For her to wear on graduation day.

My college days were over a year or two before. A struggle, yet the world looked good to me. And visions which the future held, I thought of 'er and 'er—

Life's sunny side was all that I could see. Oh, the pictures of that time I see—that hallowed long ago!

Your mother sat where you are sitting now. I sorry, dear, but somehow I can't check the tears that flow. For your hand seems like her own upon my brow.

It is eighteen years tomorrow since I left you a clinging infant in my care.

And the promises I made her are as undimmed today. As when I led her to the altar young and fair.

Now all I ask, dear child, is this: You'll promise me to be As on life's rugged pathway now A woman pure and thoughtful with the grace of charity. Like your mother was when she was here below.

I will not ask too much, you know, for you're quite like her now. And this earthly school for all is very short.

And the way we work life's metal God will place it on our brow. So to do our level best is what we ought.

Tomorrow when you graduate, just do your very best. As along with all your classmates, dear, you go.

It may seem old and faded, but its odor still is sweet. And the thoughts it brings can never fade away.

For my heart will hold her image, in that muslin frock so neat As she looked to me that lovely summer day.

I know her spirit guides us as we're journeying along—That sunshine and that shadow on life's way. And she'll be the first to greet us in that everlasting throng.

WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook says dainty faces should be washed in the following way if you would keep their fresh, new look: Purchase four cents worth of benzoline which is highly indammable, so should be kept away from artificial light or fire. Take two basins and into each put a little of the benzoline. Dip the face in one, douse it up and down, then squeeze gently and dip in the second basin. By then all the dirt will have dropped out. Shake the face and in a few minutes it will dry and look as good as new.

Wool blankets will be softer and retain their shape better if you do not wring them, hang them on a wire dripping wet and whip with a wire carpet beater. Whip them two or three times while drying.

Take a piece of black velvet and tack over the bristles on the back of an old stove polishing brush, advises Cook. It will polish stoves as well as it did before, and the velvet can be easily replaced when it is worn out. The same can be done to a boot brush when worn down.

A small box of lime set in the pantry will keep the air dry and purified. The lids of sauce pans often need to be raised while cooking, and a clothes peg with a tack in its top will answer the purpose. Fix the peg on the edge of the saucepan as if it were a line and rest the lid on the tack.

When washing out glass ornaments or fine china, cook always places a Turkish towel at the bottom of the bowl. She finds this very safe as it prevents the articles from getting chipped by knocking against the bowl. To give glass a very brilliant polish, wash it first in hot water and then dip in cold water in which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Allow the glasses to drain before rubbing with a dry cloth.

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, looking glasses and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub over the glass. Leave for a few moments and then wipe it dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required and the window or glass will look clean and shiny.

Cook says the best way to whiten

clothes that have become yellow by lying, is to dip them in cream of tartar water. Place the cream of tartar in an earthen dish and pour boiling water over it. Dip the clothes immediately into it dipping them several times but not letting them lie in it. Rinse in two or three waters and lay or hang in the sun.

To keep colored clothes looking fresh and new do not soap or soak them overnight or use washing fluids. Do not put them all into the tub at once. Have fresh water as soon as the first becomes dirty. When hanging, out turn and hang in the shade. Do not have the iron too hot when ironing.

In order to insure a good gloss on starched collars, first mix the starch with cold water and a tiny lump of butter about the size of a small marble, then pour on the boiling water.

The more water used in boiling cabbages, greens, etc., the less objectionable will the smell, given out by them, Cook says. A piece of bread tied in muslin and boiled with the cabbage also mitigates the smell. It should, however, be removed after fifteen minutes boiling and be burned.

To save time and gas when baking potatoes put them in the broiler instead of in the oven and they will bake twice as quickly and are delicious.

When peeling onions hold the hands under gently running water and you will have no reason to cry over your labor.

The little black specks that appear on silver articles that have been laid away some time, should be cleaned with a paste of whiting, free of grit, and olive oil, says Cook. Then slightly polish with a piece of old silk.

In some cases the specks and stains are very obstinate, and it will be best to cover the article with the paste and allow it to remain on for a considerable time. It should then be wiped off and polished with either a piece of silk or a good soft piece of chamois leather and reuse.

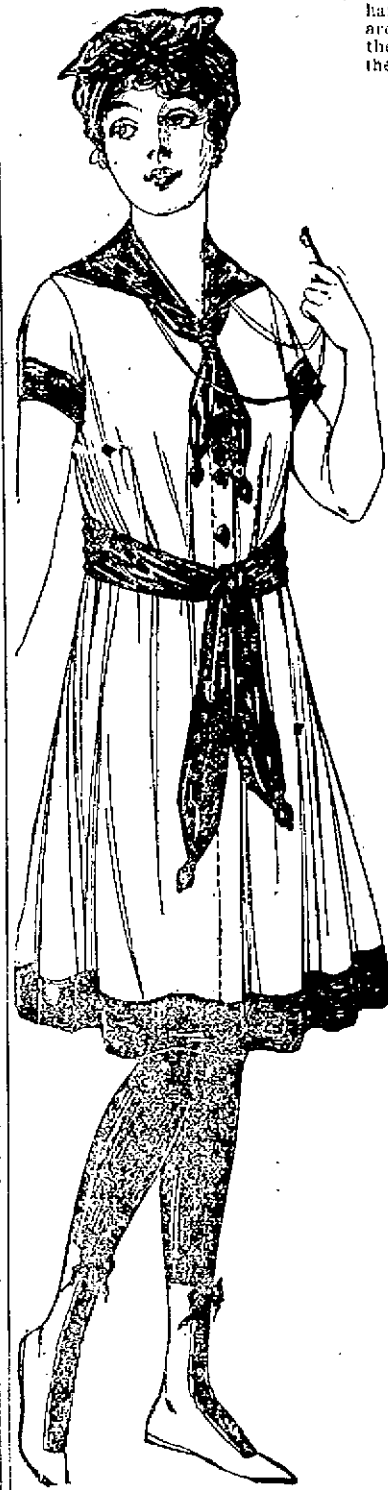

Silver that has become scratched can be made quite smooth again by rubbing and the window or glass will look clean and shiny.

BATHING SUITS IN POPULAR STYLES APPEAR IN NEW DESIGNS AND CHARMING EFFECTS TO SUIT OLD AND YOUNG—NOVEL FOOTWEAR A FEATURE THIS SEASON

No trip to the sea is complete without the bathing costume. This season there is an unusual number of designs offered and the costumes designed for the dip into the salt water are quite as fascinating as those for any other occasions that may arise. They are charmingly attractive in design, they are made of handsome materials and while they are essentially practical, allowing all the enjoyment that the sea brings, they are becoming as well. Those sea and also for the hours at the shore that are sure to be given over to all sorts of fascinating pleasures which the sand supplies. It is absolutely simple, made all in one and can be copied in flannel or other suitable material. For the little girls, striped fabrics are liked as well as plain and here, striped silk is trimmed with plain. The blouse and the bloomers are cut together and the skirt is separate, consequently when the swimming lesson is to be taken or similar exercise is to be enjoyed, the skirt can be slipped off leaving the little wearer absolutely free and unhindered. Silk is unquestionably one of the best and most fashionable materials but mohair makes excellent suits and mohair trimmed with silk is always attractive.

LADY LOOKABOUT

Truly a blunt stone may put a keen edge on a blade. This is the thought that came to me when I learned that a pupil of Mr. Barry's of the Pawtucket school, was awarded the first prize for her suffrage essay. Mr. Barry has always tried to carry off the role of a rabid anti, but I have ever felt that he was not wholly sincere. That one of his pupils should have won first prize for a suffrage essay does not indicate that he instilled into her mind any of the "anti" ideas.

Organized Brotherhood
A few weeks ago I saw the funeral of Mr. Conroy, the street car conductor who met with a sad and untimely death. Since then I have seen the funeral of Mr. Fishery, an employee of the Boston and Maine carshop, who also met with a sad ending. At both of these funerals, the labor organizations of which the deceased were members, appeared in a body and walked to the cemetery, and I could not help thinking what inspiring that are shown in this picture may be taken as fairly typical of what is best and most interesting. Way at the extreme left is what is known as a one-piece suit, that is to say, the costume that is made with blouse and skirt cut in one, the fullness at the waist-line being held by means of a knotted sash and the suit is designed to be worn over tights. Mohair is the material shown here, trimmed with bathing suit satin and the combination is a happy one. Incidentally it would be well to note the shapely shoes that make a feature of the season and the pretty cap that is bright red to give a picturesque note in contrast with the dark colored suit. Empire effects are quite as well like for the costume designed for the sea as they are for those of other needs. The Empire suit illustrated is made of plain bathing suit satin trimmed with dotted. It is very pretty and graceful and can be worn over either tights or bloomers. In this case, the shapely cap matches the trimming material, but as a rule, the caps are made of rubberized cloth that is to be found in almost every known color and so wonderfully flexible that it can be converted to many uses. One figure shows quite a different effect, the plain bodice that makes another feature of the season and the bloomers that are pretty and graceful. Here, it is made of dark blue satin and the bands are of ivory white. The shoes are of the blue and the stockings are white and the cap is rubberized cloth that matches the suit. Bloomers, tights or a combination under garment can be worn beneath it. Boys as a matter of course want the simplest suits that can be found. This one will be found excellent for the dip into the

to the carriage, pushed it through the open door into the Palmer street store, and the immense wagon rolled noisily on to the street, the driver threatening to have every woman in Lowell "pinched" for interfering with a man who was guiding his own business. Later I saw the baby carriage on Merriam street. The babe, now wide awake, smiled and blinked at the passers-by. The mother chatted happily with a companion, wholly unaware of her child's narrow escape from what seemed at least certain injury.

Brown Tails Routed

It is very evident that the long battle against the brown tail moth has begun to show signs of being successful. For the first time in years, there is now a possibility of sitting in the

The best remedy for sunburn that I know of is not to go into the sun, but unfortunately we can't use it unless we are willing to entomb ourselves indoors. But we can and ought to be more careful in protecting ourselves when we go out into the sun and the needy wisher must take every precaution against the reddening rays of Old Sol.

Sunburn is very injurious to the skin, not only the burning sensation and discomfort and the peeling, but as to the ultimate effect upon the skin. There are certain qualities in the sun's rays which coarsen the texture of the skin. These rays are so powerful that they penetrate the under layers, and even though the top layer peels off the harmful results are sure to appear.

Sunburn also weakens the skin tissues and makes them less able to withstand attacks of rash or the infections that sometimes come from water. The best remedy for sunburn is an application of equal parts of glycerine and starch hazel. Apply it very gently with a soft cloth, don't rub the skin, just sop the mixture on. When it has dried apply cold cream liberally and let it remain on for several hours, then wipe off with a soft cloth. Use no soap until after the burning sensation has subsided.

If you are going to take a dip in the ocean fortify yourself. Rub your face, neck, arms and hands with cocoa butter and finish with a generous application of rice powder. This treatment will not prevent sunburn if you expose yourself to the rays all day but it is the best preventative known.

LOWELL WON A COUPLE O' GAMES

Local Team Twice Wal-
loped Burghers in a
Double BillZieser and Lohman
Were the Pitchers
and Going Was Easy

(Special to The Sun)
FITCHBURG, June 23.—Lowell made it three straight from the Fitchburg team by defeating the Boosters 6 to 4 and 2 to 1 in a double header Saturday afternoon. The contests brought forth very little joy to the 2000 or more fans who braved a threatening storm to encourage the Boosters to get started on the upward path. They were a disappointed crowd, as it is doubtful if the Fitchburg team could be hit with any of the other hand the Lowell team held in a gilded manner and batted both Mulrenan and Press hard. It was Lowell's day as everything broke poorly for Fitchburg.

Practically the entire team had off recruits with some of the errors of omission being unworthy of a player round. Dumb work on the bases, lack of ordinary knowledge as to rules and an inclination to throw the ball in the wrong direction put the Fitchburg pitchers in bed, slowed up the entire team and made the fans sore. The only bright spot in the entire afternoon from a Fitchburg point of view was in the eighth inning of the first game when they uncorked a batting and base running rally and turned four runs. That wasn't enough, however, as the Lowell team had been presented with the game long before that. In the second contest the Lowell never made a rally while Lowell found more than one opportunity to bunt hits while the Fitchburg players bunched errors.

Despite the poor showing of the team for the past two weeks and the appearance of a thunder storm and rain clouds as late as 2 o'clock a good sized crowd attended the double header. They entered the field still loyal to the home team but some of the players of omission were such that loyalty was severely taxed. For the first time this year the fans jeered individual players and the team as a whole. They were justified in their displeasure as the Boosters looked pretty cheap and weak compared with the lively, hard hitting Lowell team. The visitors have greatly improved since here before and worked together in a manner that is bound to lift them out of the last position in very quick order.

Putting Swayne in left field proved a good thing for the Lowell team as he captured six flies, some of which would be hits with an ordinary fielder in that garden. Ahearn caught a good game and batted hard, getting four hits, including a home run over the left field fence. Barrows also hit hard and timely. Young was about the brightest light for Fitchburg. He was after everything, getting 13 chances in the first six innings. He was the most consistent hitter with two hits in each game, while McCune batted good in the opening session. Mulrenan had one of the poorest days since he joined the team. He threw poorly to third to catch a man running home in the first game and made a second dropping in on a strike with no attempt to touch the batter, or to throw to first until ordered to throw by McCune. Then he threw high and scored, the batter went to second and the man on second third. Then the Fitchburg team went into the air. McCune exclusively remained standing still talking to Gaston instead of chasing the ball. Catcher and manager exchanged compliments while the game was being handed to Lowell.

That disgusted the fans and for the remainder of the game they cheered Lowell, jeered the local team and called for haste to get it out of the way. It was a sorry incident and will require some clever playing on the part of the Boosters to make the fans forget. It was only one of a series of incidents all of which had a tendency to give Lowell some runs and keep Fitchburg in the rear. The score:

THE SOLDIER OF TODAY

CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN LIKENED UNTO THE KNIGHTS OF OLD
MUSICAL FESTIVAL

At the First Baptist church Sunday evening the pastor, Rev. Arthur C. Archibald, spoke on "The Soldier of Today." He said in part:

"Today our minds are filled with soldierly deeds and soldierly ideals. The year 1915 has been the soldier's year. It is well at this time that we should consider the soldier's spirit, and observe for what it has stood from the beginning. There is no question that military idealism reached its height in the age of chivalry. The wondrous period of the crusades has left us no grander heritage than the name and character of the Christian knight. Unconsciously that character is the ideal by which we judge our modern men of arms, and judge of the spirit which they display. We still feel that our ideal modern soldier is called to be a knight and to manifest knightly qualities."

"Five qualities the knight of old displayed. He was a soldier of the truth. It is greatly to be feared that a besetting sin of our day is untruthfulness. We speak much of degrees of lying. White lies are no longer considered immoral. The spirit of the pagan soldiers of old Rome, who would die rather than violate their oath, we need to emulate. Where shall we find it? Our moral precept becomes a trench; who endure the assaults; who, day after day, stand out against the monotony of life's experiences without a murmur. The third knightly quality is courtesy, magnanimity, a large spirit of consideration. You cannot get it out of a handbook of etiquette. It is not of the tongue, it is heart-born. It recognizes not dress but personality. Life needs more of this oiling quality. Our age is bluff, gruff and inconsiderate. The old-time gentlemen need a resurrection."

"A fourth knightly quality was purity. We have come in many respects to an unclean age. The show of filth is upon our world of amusement, much of our literature and even in the ideals of the people. Our youth are despising innocence. As did the old Romans, so our rising generation is laughing at virtue. You will never gain any wealth, pleasure or friendship in the world which will compensate you for a tainted conscience. People always discover on the other side of sin that no sin is ever worth while."

"The fifth knightly quality was courage. We may rejoice today that the days of war will soon be over. What, in the light of the present, dare we so speak? Yes, the very agencies to make war effective will spell the doom of war. Slowly but deeply there is today a feeling of conviction that war is outlawed as a means of settling national disputes. In the very manufacture of war's awful agencies, God is quietly beating swords into ploughshares and hastening the day when war shall be no more. Is there, then, no place for chivalry, for knightly character? Ah, yes, real war has begun. The fields of peaceful conflict call to every soldierly spirit. The defense of truth calls forth her knights. The social evils call out the troops of righteousness. Every real soldier will have his opportunity in the next five years in our land in the awful struggle to break the saloon. Every true knight of today must heed the summons to defend the weak; to evangelize the world; to minister to humanity in her struggles for redemption."

VETERANS ARE INVITED

Through the efforts of Mrs. Bessie H. Cummings, president of Woman's Relief, B. F. Butler's Corp., 75, arrangements have been made to commemorate the 52nd anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg by the display of the five-reel motion picture at Keith's theatre with their usually large bill, Friday night next, at which all Grand Army members are invited. They are requested to wear their uniforms and they will be provided with the best seats in the theatre.

This has been made possible through the courtesy of Keith's manager, M. Dickett, and the Mutual Film company, who will donate to the Grand Army of Lowell this feature picture, with their compliments.

Interest begins Saturday, July 3rd, at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

D. F. KUTIPS THEATRE
With the exhibition of "Neptune's Daughter" by the display of the first three days of the present week, the playgoers of the city will have an opportunity of witnessing one of the greatest motion pictures ever projected on the screen. The picture is in seven parts, which require two hours to produce. Annette Kellerman who enacts the leading role is known all over the world as one of the greatest of diving and swimming experts, and she has been a headliner on both the Orpheum and Keith circuits. She is recognized as possessing the measurements of which correspond with those of the Venus of Milo. "Neptune's Daughter" was photographed on the shores of the Bermudas, an island for the locale of a moving picture-play, because of its wondrous vegetation and most picturesque scenery.

During the taking of one of the scenes for the play Miss Kellerman had an unusual thing happen. She was in a enormous glass enclosure with Herbert Bronson, the director of the picture, and also in that enclosure were an octopus, a baby shark, lobsters and tropical fish. One of the scenes in the play was struggling with the octopus, and the photographs were taken outside of the enclosure snapping up the movement. All of a sudden there was a loud explosion and the water came into the tank. The pressure was such that it had broken the glass. Miss Kellerman swam out easily, but Bronson, who was not so expert, he ran into the jagged glass and received bad cuts. A launch had to be sent several miles to get a doctor for him, and the doctor was so expert, he ran into the jagged glass and received bad cuts. A launch had to be sent several miles to get a doctor for him, and the doctor was so expert, he ran into the jagged glass and received bad cuts. A launch had to be sent several miles to get a doctor for him, and the doctor was so expert, he ran into the jagged glass and received bad cuts.

Another scene which never fails to win approbation is the jump of Miss Kellerman from a cliff 50 feet above the water. She is seen in mid-air, her hands and feet tied. But she does more than mere swimming stunts. She dances and for the first time proves that she is a real actress. She wants to get away from the diving tank, but it is a difficult thing, for the name Kellerman is synonymous with diving and the public has now accustomed to seeing her in her original role.

The concluding three days of the week will be devoted to the showing of "Her Own Way" will be shown.

HOUSE AND BARN BURNED $900,000 OF STATE FUNDS

SELECTMAN PARK OF CHELMSFORD SUFFERS BIG LOSS BY FIRE—CAUSE UNKNOWN

A disastrous fire occurred in Chelmsford about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the house and barn of Selectman A. A. Neely, together with considerable household furniture, wagons, tools, harnesses and other implements, were destroyed. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Smoke was discovered issuing from the barn by Fire Observer Hammond of the Robin Hill observatory and he went at once to the fire. The fire broke out in the barn and the firemen had to be called. The fire was extinguished by the fire department. The fire was caused by a gas leak from a stove in the barn.

Fire in Garage
Fire in the City Hall garage, Mark McCann proprietor, caused a telephone alarm at 8:25 o'clock last evening, followed by a bell alarm from box 12, corner of Moody and Worthen streets. The fire started from the back of the engine of a motorcycle and a small quantity of gasoline became ignited. The quick response of members of hose 8, followed by other fire apparatus, prevented the blaze from spreading, and little damage resulted.

Damaged by Fire
A motorcycle owned by Henry Wilcox of 22 Ames street was badly damaged by fire on South street early yesterday morning. An alarm from box 215 at 12:52 o'clock called out a portion of the fire department and, though the oil caused the machine to burn briskly, a couple of hand chemicals quenched the flames and saved part of the frame. The fire probably started from back-firing.

Roof Caught Fire
Box 6 at 10:45 o'clock yesterday forenoon was for a fire on the roof of a house on Lakeview avenue, opposite Front street. No damage to the house occurred. Late Saturday night in the establishment of John J. Hogan on Varnum avenue. The damage was slight.

Rogers Street Dump
A fire in a dump on Rogers street was responsible for a telephone alarm at 7:45 o'clock Saturday night. No damage resulted.

LOWELL INCLUDED IN CITIES WHERE ROAD WORK IS BEING DONE BY HIGHWAY COMMISSION

More than 250 cities and towns in all parts of Massachusetts will benefit by the road work which is either in process of construction or about to be begun by the state highway commission. There are almost 350 different pieces of road work, varying in length from sections of two miles or longer to strips of only a few rods. This work represents an expenditure of more than $900,000, which is the largest part of the allotment for state and other highways to be added to Massachusetts' system of improved roads this season.

There still remains to be allotted some money from the general appropriation for new state highways, but the great bulk of the work has already been laid out. This does not include such part as the state highway commission may spend this year of the $2,500,000 provided by a special act of the legislature for the construction of new state roads in the western counties.

About $600,000 of the $747,164.85 which the commission had available for new standard state highways has been allotted in 50 cities and towns. The $185,000 set aside for towns fees fund which the commission can spend on through roads which are not state highways has been allotted in 134 towns.

The $50,000 available under the Small Towns act for construction work in towns contributing nothing will be divided among 65 towns; while 25 towns will benefit from the $50,000 for small towns of more than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money. A third $50,000 set aside for towns of less than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money, will be spread over 69 towns.

One of the largest and most important pieces of state road being constructed this year in this part of the state is in Randolph, on the direct route between this city and Brockton. It is of concrete, and 1 1/2 miles in length. An important addition of similar material is being made in North Andover, on the Lawrence-Salem route, while in Methuen, on the Lowell-Lawrence route, a 2 1/2-mile stretch of bituminous macadam is being built.

ARE FIGHTING FURIOUSLY
GERMANS ARE SEEKING TO APPROACH STRONGLY FORTIFIED TOWN OF VERDUN

PARIS, June 28, 6:20 a. m.—The Germans, in fighting furiously at Baginelle and in the trenches of Calonne, are seeking to approach the strongly fortified town of Verdun, according to Lieut. Col. Rousset, military critic of the French press. He believes they are seeking to gain control of the railway from Chalons to Saint-Mihiel. While they are aiming at Verdun from two directions, the critic believes the efforts of their army will prove futile.

TO KEEP BALKANS OUT
DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG AND HERR VON JAGOW VISIT VIENNA

FRANKFORT, Germany, via London, June 28, 11 a. m.—The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, who has close relations with the foreign office, surmises that one purpose of the visit of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister von Jagow to Vienna is to discuss what steps may be taken to counteract the efforts of the entente powers to induce the Balkan states to join them in the war.

A despatch from Vienna yesterday stated that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg and Herr von Jagow had arrived there for a conference with Emperor Francis Joseph and the foreign minister of Austria-Hungary.

ST. JOHN'S T. A. SOCIETY

OUTING AT McCABE'S FIELD SATURDAY A GREAT SUCCESS—SPORTS AND DANCING

The long hanging clouds and the rain which followed did not serve to dampen the enthusiasm of those who attended the field day conducted by St. John's T. A. society of North Chelmsford at McCabe's field on Saturday afternoon and the Lawrence-Salem road, while in Methuen, on the Lowell-Lawrence route, a 2 1/2-mile stretch of bituminous macadam is being built.

In the evening dancing was held in St. John's hall with Marinel's Crescent orchestra discarding pleasing music. There was a large attendance, and the dance numbers and refreshments which were served later in the evening were enjoyed by all. The affair was in charge of a committee headed by Michael Scollan.

LOST FOR FIVE HOURS
PRES. WILSON MISSES WAY IN HILLS OF VERMONT—AUTOS TRAVERSE COW PATHS IN RAIN

WINDSOR, Vt., June 28.—President Wilson and members of his family, out for an afternoon automobile ride, became lost yesterday in the foothills of the Green mountains, and for nearly five hours were riding through dense forests, up and down steep inclines, part of the time in a driving rain.

The drive took the presidential party over roads seldom traveled by automobiles, and the way at times narrowed to mere cowpaths and mountain trails.

The president was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Helen Woodruff, Mrs. C. T. Grayson, and several secret service men. The chauffeurs of the two cars carrying the party were from Washington, and the president and his family at least as well as any one with him. Apparently he enjoyed the experience and forgot entirely the cares of office he left behind him when he came here for a brief vacation. Several times the automobile was driven into "blind" roadways and knew it to be backed in order to proceed on its way. In one place the machine plowed down a steep hill in mud up to the hubs and in others it ran beside ravines with mountain streams far below.

The chauffeur is a careful driver, however, and at no time was the party in any danger.

USE TOO MUCH LIQUOR

COURTENAY GUILD CRITICISES REUNIONS OF HARVARD MEN—$3000 SPENT ON WINE

BOSTON, June 28.—Harvard graduates were criticised for spending so much for liquor at their class reunions by Courtney Guild in an address at the Unitarian temple meeting on the Charles street mall of Boston common yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Guild said the atrocities of the war in Europe were in a measure paralleled by the atrocities due to alcohol in this country, which he said claims thousands of victims daily and is one of the greatest foes of civilization.

"The rich and well-to-do people in this country do not seem to understand their responsibility in this matter," he said. "They seem to think that the whole problem of alcohol consists in not getting drunk."

"There were over 1000 men at the Harvard class reunions last Wednesday evening, and I understand that one class at least allowed $7 a plate for wines. Taking $3 as a conservative estimate, this makes $3000 for wines alone in one evening—enough to support 100 starving Belgian babies for 100 days. I want to see the rich man become civilized. He has got a long way to go yet about liquor."

DRAMATIC AIR DUEL

BRITISH AEROPLANE SET AFIRE BY SHELLS FROM GERMAN BIPLANE—OFFICERS BURNED

LONDON, June 28, 10:54 a. m.—A dramatic air duel in which a British aeroplane, reconnoitering over the Belgian town of Poelcapelle at a height of 4000 feet, met and engaged a large German biplane which has doubtless inflicted many casualties. The observer fired 50 rounds in return at a range of less than 200 yards. It had some effect, for the hostile biplane was seen to waver and after more shots its engines stopped. The enemy aeroplane then dived to a level of 2000 feet, where it again fattened its course flying slowly and practically.

Under heavy anti-aircraft fire from below our pilot turned toward our line to complete his reconnaissance. When his machine was hit he decided to make for home, but the petrol tank had been pierced, and as the aeroplane glided downward on a slant the petrol was set alight by the exhaust and ran blazing down the front of the body of the aeroplane, which traveled on to the accompaniment of a rattle of musketry as the unused rounds of machine gun ammunition exploded in the heat and the pilot's loaded revolver was discharged.

The pilot, however, did not lose control, and the aeroplane succeeded steadily on a downward course. Before it had reached the ground a large part of the frame work had been destroyed. Even the hard wood blades of the propeller were burned so badly that the propeller ceased to revolve.

"When the machine finally landed back of our lines both officers had been severely burned and the pilot, climbing out of the blazing wreck, tripped over a wire stay and sprained his ankle. The few serviceable portions of the aeroplane were then collected and removed under the shrapnel of the German guns."

ROGERS—The funeral of David F. Rogers was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his home in West Yonkers, Rev. Sarah A. Dixon officiated. The bearers were Messrs. John Trull, John French, C. NOTRE DAME DE LOURDES

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD LAST EVENING—DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO EIGHT PUPILS

There was a large attendance at the graduation exercises held at the Notre Dame de Lourdes parochial school in Middlesex street, last evening. An elaborate entertainment program consisting of comedy sketches, recitations and vocal selections was cleverly given by the pupils under the direction of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, who are in charge of the school, and diplomas were presented eight pupils. The program which was published in full in Saturday's issue of The Sun proved very pleasing and the large audience showed its appreciation of each number by prolonged applause.

At the close of the evening Rev. Leon Lamotte, O. M. I., pastor, addressed the graduates, complimenting them on their success and also extending the best wishes of the parish. The graduates were as follows: Misses Lowell Dostaler, Alice Bibeault, Leon Dion and Aurora Martin; Masters Abile Soucy, Arthur Cormier, Leon Lorange and Edgar Martin. Penmanship awards were conferred upon Leon Dion and Aurora Martin.

EVELYN NESBIT THAW TO TESTIFY AT TRIAL

Will be Summoned by State—
Trial Resumed—Thaw's Counsel Lost Point

NEW YORK, June 28.—Subpoena servers sent by Deputy Attorney General Frank A. Cook were at Chateaugay Lake, near Malone, N. Y., today to serve a summons upon Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to testify in the jury trial of the sanity of her husband, Harry K. Thaw.

Mr. Cook wants Mrs. Thaw to repeat to the jury the evidence she gave in the habeas corpus proceedings at White Plains in 1913, when she told of visiting Thaw at Matteawan and quoted him as saying: "When I get out of this place I suppose I shall have to kill you."

The witnesses ready to testify in Thaw's hearing today were General Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H., and Dr. Charles P. Bancroft, superintendent of the New Hampshire Hospital for the insane, both members of the jury commission appointed by the federal court in New Hampshire to examine Thaw when he was in that state. They reported that Thaw was not then suffering from any of the forms of mental disease alleged by the prosecution at the time of his trials on a charge of murder.

Prior to the taking of testimony today, Justice Hendrick addressed the newspapermen and warned them that "the trial in this case in the newspapers has got to stop. He threatened with punishment for contempt of court any editor who published stories out of the future evidence that might be presented."

Thaw's counsel lost a point at the outset today when Justice Hendrick decided in favor of the state an argument as to whether the report of the federal commission, headed by General Streeter, on Thaw's sanity should be admitted in evidence. Upon this report Thaw was admitted to bail in New Hampshire.

The state contended that Federal Judge Aldrich, in appointing the commission had instructed the members to determine only whether Thaw would be a dangerous person to the community if admitted to bail. The state argued that the broad question of Thaw's sanity was not involved in the finding of the commission. The report was excluded, and Gen. Streeter was then called to the stand.

Escape From Matteawan

General Streeter described the commission's examination of Thaw. Thaw was asked, he said, to tell of his escape from Matteawan but was reluctant at first to do so. Thaw then drew a rough sketch of the matter, describing life at Matteawan and telling of the various examinations that had been made of him to determine his sanity. Thaw had also related in detail the shooting of Stanford White and the circumstances that led up to it.

"Thaw said that immediately upon firing the pistol he realized he had done wrong," Gen. Streeter testified, refreshing his memory frequently from the report that had been excluded.

"During the interview," continued Gen. Streeter, "Thaw was calm and collected. He showed no enmity or resentment."

"Thaw," said the witness, "declared that he had deepest regret for the killing."

"How did Thaw impress you?" Gen. Streeter was asked.

"As being absolutely rational," was the reply.

TEUTONS CROSS DNIESTER ALONG THE ENTIRE FRONT

Tide of Battle is Again Flowing With Teutonic Allies in Galicia—Germans Attempt Another March on Warsaw
—British Air Raid on Smyrna—Russian Council of War at Front

Teutonic forces have pushed their way across the Dniester along the entire front, the German official statement shows, the strong resistance which the Russians have been offering there for some time having finally given way before the German assaults. Concurrently comes an admission by the Russians that they have withdrawn from the thirty mile Bobrka-Zurawna front, making it appear that the entire battle front in this territory will be shifted to the eastward. Such a shift would be in line with the expectation of military observers abroad, who have been predicting a Russian withdrawal from the Dniester and a re-enlistment of their armies for a stand on the river Bug.

FAVORABLE REPLY TO U. S. NOTE TO GERMANY

Ambassador Gerard so Advises
State Department—Caused by
Dr. Gerhard's Visit

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A favorable reply from Germany to the last American note on submarine warfare is indicated in today's state department advices from Berlin.

The advices came from Ambassador Gerard and were notably the first of a definite nature received since the American note reached the German foreign office. The exact nature of the ambassador's message was not divulged for obvious reasons, and it did not become known whether he revealed any indication of the trend of the forthcoming German reply.

The ambassador's despatch was of sufficient detail, however, to put officials in an optimistic attitude. "It was communicated at once to President Wilson at the summer White House at Cornish, N. H."

Ambassador Gerard based his observations on the favorable effect which the visit of Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, emissary of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador here, had produced on officials of the German government.

Dr. Gerhard was understood by Ambassador Gerard to have reported that public opinion in the United States had been growing more and more favorable to Germany when the sinking of the Lusitania undid what had been accomplished. Gerhard made it clear, also, that the United States did not desire war but wanted a satisfactory reply to its representations.

German officials are eager, according to Ambassador Gerard's report, to give such an answer, but at the same time they have made it clear that Germany cannot make any concessions which would destroy the effectiveness of the submarine as a weapon. What the German government is endeavoring to do, it is understood, is to find some method by which Americans traveling on ships primarily used for passenger traffic shall be safe while the submarine continues to be used in attacking freight ships of belligerent nationality, carrying chiefly contraband.

Just what proposal Germany will make to accomplish this object, officials here cannot conjecture, but from the fact that Germany seems to be willing to safeguard the rights of Americans who travel on ships of any nationality, primarily engaged in passenger traffic, an adherence to the principles expressed in the American note—that non-combatants should be immune from attack—would seem, in the opinion of officials here, to be recognized.

No information had been received on what the attitude of Germany would be toward assuming liability of the loss of American lives on the Lusitania but the feeling prevails that if a satisfactory arrangement can be made as to the future conduct of submarines toward vessels carrying Americans, Germany would suggest a basis for a favorable adjustment of the Lusitania case as well.

ASSASSINATED YEAR AGO

Death of Archduke Ferdinand Turned Europe Into Battlefield
—Teutons Dominate Situation

LONDON, June 28, 1.43 p. m.—The anniversary today of the assassination of Sarajevo of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, which turned Europe into an armed camp and most of it into a battlefield, finds the struggle between Teutonism and Slavism for racial ascendancy nearing what is thought here to be its high-water mark, with the Teutonic armies for the most part still outwardly though not without difficulty, dominating the situation.

The penetration of the Germanic armies eastward from Lemberg has had the inevitable result of forcing the Russians from the 30-mile front between Bobrka and Zurawna, where they had offered such stubborn resistance. The Muscovites, as they themselves admit are now falling back to the Gnila Lipa river which runs from the northward of Przemyśl and joins Rohatyn to Halicz where it joins the Dniester. Military writers here anticipate that this backward move will necessitate a total withdrawal from the Dniester and that the Russians will make their next real stand on the River Bug.

These writers also hold that though the Russian retreat must mean a great retardation to the prospects of a Muscovite recovery to a condition making a counter-offensive possible, it has also robbed the Austro-Germans of the complete victory that might have been theirs if they had been able to force the Russians to fight to a finish instead of the latter being able to withdraw their forces virtually intact.

In the western field of war the French offensive seems less active than for some time past pending consolidation of the ground already won and a clearer insight into the next move projected by the Germans.

From far-off Lake Victoria, Nyanza, in Africa, the British war office reports a fruitful British attack on the German fortified port of Bukoba, the movement being made both from land

U. S. NIPPED PLOT TO RESTORE HUERTA REGIME IN MEXICO

Arrest of Huerta and Orozco on Border Discloses Plans to Start New Mexican Revolution

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Inside details of the plot to restore a Huerta regime in Mexico, nipped in the bud by the United States, began trickling out today through the net of official secrecy.

While Gen. Huerta and his chief lieutenant, Pascual Orozco, are under federal detention at El Paso, other Mexicans, nearly a score of whom had a part in the plot that failed, and probably some Americans are under surveillance by the department of justice. Secretary Lansing conferred today with Assistant Attorney General Warren and it became apparent that the department of justice intends to sift the case to find the backers of the new revolution. Where the trail might lead in the United States is only a matter of conjecture. All officials were steadfastly silent on that feature, but it is generally believed by those in close touch with Mexican affairs that the coup was to have the financial support of some prominent American interests.

Official information was disclosed that weeks ago, Huerta in apparent seclusion at his country place on Long Island, offered his services to General Turbide, one of the exile colony in New York, and at the same time sent an emissary to Washington to ask if he would be persona grata to this government if he took a part in Mexican affairs.

Turbide declined Huerta's company and simultaneously Washington sent word to the former dictator that he would be persona non grata—decidedly so.

Immediately thereafter, the official advices here say, Huerta renewed his offer to Turbide with a modified proposal that Turbide accept Huerta's aid without Huerta's leadership, but with the cooperation of his associates. This last offer officials here and diplomats with Mexican interests who have been keeping themselves informed say Turbide accepted.

In view of this information, officials are puzzled to know just how much of an active part Huerta intended to take in a movement on Mexican soil, although they have no doubt that at least he intended to take charge of affairs on the border.

In that connection it is known that for weeks, a party of prominent Mexicans, styled by the Carranza and Villa adherents "Huertistas" and "cientificos," have been maintaining an active junta in El Paso, in constant communication with Huerta and other members of the exile colony in New York and maintained among themselves the form of a provisional government, with a president and members of a cabinet. Advices to Mexicans here have continually indicated that the junta was planning some definite move.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Observance of Feast of St. Jean Baptiste — Award of Sunday School Diplomas

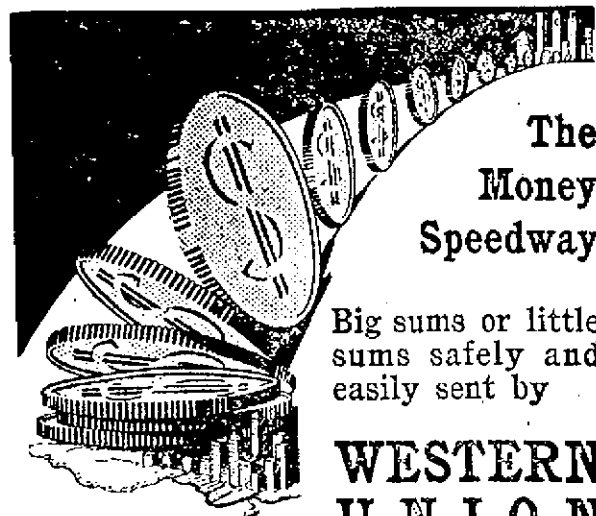

The feast of St. Jean Baptiste which occurred on Thursday, was observed in a fitting manner in St. Jean Baptiste church yesterday. At 10 o'clock a solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Eugene Turcotte, O. M. I., of Ottawa, P. Q., assisted by Rev. Joseph Denis, O. M. I., as deacon and Rev. Augustin Graton, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. The altar had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants and flowers, while hundreds of small incense lights added to the brilliancy of the celebration.

Rev. Joseph Bolduc, O. M. I., delivered a forceful sermon on "The Life of St. Jean Baptiste," and the choir, under the direction of L. N. Guilbault, rendered St. Cecilia's mass by Turner, the soloists being J. E. Noret, Arthur Giron, George Labranche, J. A. N. Chretien, L. N. Guilbault and Mrs. Maria Jacques. At the offertory J. J. J. rendered in splendid voice "O Salutaris."

Immaculate Conception

The parish mass at the Immaculate Conception church was celebrated by Rev. James McMartin, O. M. I. It was announced that a military mass will be celebrated at the church next Sunday.

At the 7:30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O. M. I., the members of the Y. M. C. I. received holy communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being assisted in giving communion by the pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I. At the close of the mass the members of the institute repaired to their rooms in Stackpole street, where breakfast was served, the meal being followed by an entertainment program, those taking part being John Braderick, Andrew Doyle, Joseph Reilly and John McCaffrey. The affair closed with a business meeting.

St. Patrick's

The members of the C. Y. M. L. attended the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was the chaplain, Rev. Jas. J. Kerrigan, who also delivered a brief sermon. At the close of the service breakfast was served at the rooms of the Y. M. C. I. in Suffolk street, this being followed by a business meeting during which the election of directors for the ensuing six months was held with the following result: John Quenon, John O'Connor, Stephen McGarrell, Philip O'Keefe, Stephen Hession, Joseph Foley, John Fleming and Matthew Clark. Considerable routine business was considered before adjournment was taken. Committee reports showed the organization in a flourishing condition. Arrangements are under way for an outing at Camp Texas some time in August.

St. Peter's

The parish mass at St. Peter's church was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan, while the sermon was delivered by Rev. P. L. Crayton. The members of the Children of Mary sodality attended the 8:30 o'clock mass and received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Rev. W. G. Mullin, who was assisted in giving communion by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Keleher.

Last evening at 7 o'clock a meeting of the members of the Immaculate Conception sodality and the Children of Mary sodality was held and a large number of new members was received into both organizations. The service closed with solemn benediction, the following clergymen officiating: Rev. Dr. D. J. Keleher, Rev. W. G. Mullin and Rev. D. J. Heffernan.

St. Columba's

Special exercises were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Columba's church, during which Sunday school diplomas were conferred upon a large class. The pastor, Rev. John A. Deane, officiated and was assisted by Rev. Thomas W. Buckley. The children who received diplomas were as follows:

James L. Maguire, William V. Finnick, Thomas F. Monahan, John J. Gull, Paul R. Fontaine, William J. Desmond, Harry F. Collins, Misses Mary B. Hannan, Mary M. Hart, Catherine Dunfee, Cleo Lebarge, Susan Phily, Helen Monahan, Grace D. Sullivan, Mary C. McDonald and Christina McGee. A St. Columba's medal was awarded Miss Helen A. Monahan for excellence in study and deportment.

Sacred Heart

At the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday at the Sacred Heart church the members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion in a body. The mass was celebrated by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I. who also delivered the sermon.

St. Michael's

Rev. Francis J. Mullin was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday, the sermon on the gospel of the day being delivered by Rev. J. J. Lynch, Friday evening from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock the holy hour devotions will be held.

St. Joseph's

The celebrant of the high mass at St. Joseph's church was Rev. Julian Racette, O. M. I., while the sermon was delivered by Rev. Armand Baron, O. M. I. The choir, under the direction of Telesphore Maitre, rendered the harmonized Missa Royale, the solos being sustained by J. Merrier, Edmond Lambert and E. J. Laroche. At the offertory Miss Alice Bonin rendered an "O Salutaris." At the close of the mass a hymn was sung by the choir.

St. Margaret's Church

At the masses at the Highland parish yesterday Rev. Fr. Galligan expressed his thanks to the members of the parish for the success of the recent lawn fete, and those who have not made their returns are requested to do so at once. Fr. Galligan gave an instructive talk applicable to this time of year, taking his text from St. Peter's epistle.

Miss Catherine V. Hennessey, soloist at St. Margaret's, is receiving congratulations upon her graduation from the New England Conservatory of Music.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota. "I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Allen, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women's ills known.

DROPPED THREE STORIES

DID BRAHAM JELL FALL OR WAS HE PUSHED? POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING

Braham Jell, of 38 Arch street, was taken to the Lowell corporation hospital about 6 o'clock last evening suffering from injuries sustained when he fell from the third story window of the block in which he lives, a distance of about 25 feet. Though no bones were broken, the man is in a critical condition and it is thought he sustained internal injuries. According to Jell's own story, he was leaning out of the window watching a game of football when he lost his balance and fell. Herbert O. Craig, of 15 Howard street called at the police station and informed officers that he had seen a pair of hands push Jell from the window. This story was investigated and the police think there is no foundation in fact for it.

OUR GRAMMAR MASTERS

CHAS. W. MOREY
Principal Highland SchoolWILLIAM S. GREENE
Moody School

Morey, Whitcomb, Greene and Callahan Oldest in Point of Service—Morey's Text Books

On Wednesday last all the schools of the city closed and the vacation season is now on.

Those who have retired from the schools will be replaced by others in the fall and the indications are that the number will show an increase, especially in the high school which already is badly overcrowded, despite its numerous fly-by-night annexes.

The attendances at the grammar schools indicate that additional school room must soon be provided, not alone for the districts that are steadily growing but generally, for the Butler school in the center of a congested district has sent forth one of the largest graduating classes in history.

Lowell's grammar schools are kept up to a high standard and the question as to which is the best might be answered: "There is no best but all are efficient." The child cannot select his own school, nor his parents for him. His school depends upon the neighborhood in which he lives.

You will hear some people express a view that the Bartlett school cannot be as good as the others because practise teachers from the Normal school work there. On the other hand you will hear others aver that the Bartlett school is better principal in the city has experienced such a tremendous growth in the size of his school as has Mr. Morey for the locality which his school accommodates has increased in population more rapidly than any other section and is still increasing. When Mr. Morey became principal of the old Franklin school, which was the grammar school of the Highland district, 30 years ago, he had five rooms under his charge. When the Franklin school building was finally outgrown, the school was moved to the new building at the corner of Pine and Wilder streets and called the Highland school. Mr. Morey now has under his jurisdiction 12 rooms at the Highland school and an overflow of two rooms at the old Franklin, while when the term begins in the fall he will open still another room. Meanwhile the Washington grammar school of the Highland district, is but an overflow of the original Highland school. Mr. Morey's school has turned out many graduates who afterward have become prominent in the city affairs. An average of 80 per cent of his graduates, covering a long period of years have entered the high school. The Highland school is conducted along conservative lines and with thoroughness. Little attention is given to the educational fads and

than the others because it is under state supervision to a certain extent and enjoys advantages that the schools under local auspices exclusively do not enjoy. Both statements are unfair. But the Bartlett school is an excellent school.

Some schools perhaps introduce side features into their curriculum that give them individuality, as for instance, at the Bartlett school, considerable attention has been given to the early Indian history of Lowell and vicinity, in which the children have taken a keen interest. Other schools have their little interesting hobbies, all of benefit to the pupils. Recently the pupils of the Highland and Varnum schools took a trip to Whitaker's birthplace, below Haverhill. This trip, however, was the cause of considerable comment in some quarters, by reason of the fact that it entailed expense upon the individual pupils, which some could not meet conveniently. The story is told that in one case a pupil could not find the necessary means and a kind-hearted teacher made good, but all the other children knew it.

Charles W. Morey

Lowell has a school master whose name is known nationally as the result of his text books in mathematics which are now being used with great success in Lowell and different cities of the country and are the accepted authority in mathematics for the public schools of Washington, D. C. Mr. Charles W. Morey, Lowell's oldest school principal in point of continuous service, for Mr. Morey has been principal of the Highland school since 1880, or over 30 years! Perhaps no other foibles that are ever springing up throughout the country, but completeness of instruction in the great fundamental principles of educational branches is aimed at with success. An expert in mathematics, Mr. Morey after careful study of the problem of presenting mathematics to the child in a simple, comprehensive form yet omitting no essential, some few years ago published the Morey system of mathematics, in three text books, devoted to the primary, grammar and higher arithmetics. The system was tried in this city with success and soon found its way into the schools of other cities proceeding on its own merits exclusively, for Mr. Morey demanded that it be tried out before being accepted on the recommendation of any enthusiastic publisher. It forms the basic system of mathematics in the schools of Washington, D. C., where a few years ago Mr. Morey was called upon to address a national convention of teachers, speaking on mathematics on two occasions, before 1200 colored teachers and 2000 white. He is frequently invited to address gatherings of eminent educators on his favorite subject while he has contributed valuable articles on the study of mathematics, chiefly arithmetic, to leading educational publications.

Arthur K. Whitcomb

Arthur K. Whitcomb, principal of the Greenhalge school, and former superintendent of schools, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, of the principals in point of service, in the city, outliving Mr. Morey a year or more. But he has not served in one school continuously. He was appointed principal of the Varnum school, and afterward was elected superintendent, which position he held for many years. After retiring from the superintendency he remained out of school for a term and then was elected principal of the Greenhalge, which position he now holds.

The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINIT"

USED BY DR. GAGNON IN HIS SUPERIOR PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—his is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT.

This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my offices? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

DR. A. J. GAGNON — AND — ASSOCIATES

109 Merrimack Street, Next to Five Cent Savings Bank

466 Merrimack Street, Opposite Tilden Street.

Moody school, has been Belvidere's only school master since 1883, when he was appointed principal of the old Moody school in East Merrimack street. He has been conspicuously successful in his administration of the affairs of his school as well as in securing thoroughness in the instruction given in all the grades.

Mr. Green by means of a special class helps backward pupils to keep up and he also sees that the bright are given an opportunity to go ahead. Cornelius F. Callahan

Particular attention is called this year to the Butler school, by reason of the fact that it sends forth the largest graduating class in years, 95 pupils, 39 of whom have certified for the high school, which means that the 56 have averaged over .70 per cent for the year. The Butler school has had an honorable history of 32 years. It has turned out many men and women who have afterward become prominent in the life of the city. They have entered about all of the professions, except the law. Strange as it may seem, few if any Butler school graduates ever studied law. Probably the training they received at the Butler made them shy of the noble profession of Blackstone and Chetty.

In looking over the different grammar schools perhaps the Butler will be found to be the most interesting of all, on account of its individual features. It has been conducted with success by Principal Cornelius F. Callahan continuously since 1883, although in days gone by when politics counted with ability in the selection of a superintendent of schools, Mr. Callahan was often prominently mentioned for the superintendency, as the choice of the local democratic party, both parties agreeing that his ability was unquestioned. A most interesting, and as far as Lowell is concerned, a novel educational feature of the Butler school is Principal Callahan's work in behalf of the forward pupil. Much is said and written in these enlightened days by prominent educators on the subject of the backward, or delinquent pupil, and some of the brightest minds are devoting themselves to the solution of this important educational problem. Quite a number of years ago Principal Callahan gave considerable study to the problem of the delinquent pupil and while thus engaged the thought came to him as to the welfare of a forward pupil, who was undergoing a serious handicap, while being kept back to await the belated progress of the delinquent. The forward pupil could learn with ease, that which required much more time and attention from the child of duller intellect. Therefore the pupil who learned quickly was given an opportunity to "float" while the other was coming along, and "floating" struck Principal Callahan as a bad proposition to be permitted to exist in any school room. Furthermore Mr. Callahan figured that the pupil who could learn easily but who was kept back from year to year to wait for the other boy to catch up, soon lost interest in his studies and in the continuing of his education and welcomed the opportunity to throw down his school books and go no higher than the elementary grades. On the other hand the clever pupil whose cleverness was encouraged took a lively interest in his school work and looked forward to a higher education.

With these thoughts in mind he decided to give special attention to the forward pupils of the Butler school and to open for them the opportunity to which their superior ability seemed to entitle them. Accordingly some years ago he took from the first year children who had made the fourth grade, 45 of the brightest pupils, those whose first year's average was .90 or thereabout, and placed them in a special class, permitting them to go ahead with their books as rapidly as was consistent with thoroughness and capacity for study. As a result 45 of these pupils gained one year in their grammar course, making the six year course in five years, while many did even better and completed their course in four years. Their subsequent career in the high school was carefully watched and it was found that they did with the most successful scholars in that school, and they showed that their work had been done without any mental or physical detriment. Eighty per cent has been the average of those of the Butler forward pupils who have a fine showing after leaving the school. The number that afterward entered high school or other institutions of higher education proved the principal's contention that giving them the opportunity to advance as rapidly as their ability demanded, awakened an interest in their studies and made them desirous of advancing beyond the limited facilities of the elementary school. This fall a special class of 45 will start in at the opening of the term. The special class of the Butler are under the able direction of Misses Annie J. Devino and Alice C. O'Brien.

Long before the vocational school came into vogue in this city, Principal Callahan had been successfully conducting two important vocational departments at the Butler school, the cooking and manual training departments. These features were also taken up at the Edson school, the pupils of the latter institution going to the Butler for instruction. Miss Mary E. Lane, directs the Butler school cooking class and Miss Donovan that of the Edson, while Mr. Peter J. Gulesian has charge of the manual training.

having resided here since childhood. He received his early education at the Mann school and the high school, entering the latter in 1889. The classical course of the high school in those days was not as advanced as it is today and desiring a classical education, Mr. Callahan, after one year at the local school, entered St. Charles college, Elliptic City, Md., from there he went to Holy Cross college, at Worcester, where he graduated with honors. Returning to Lowell he was appointed a school principal in 1891 and has administered its affairs continuously and with conspicuous success ever since. Speaking of his profession, to the writer, Mr. Callahan smilingly said: "I would not advise any young man who has no other income to choose teaching as his life-work for the remuneration is not commensurate with the time and energy he puts into it." Mr. Callahan resides at 649 Westford street.

William P. Barry of the Pawtucket school was appointed in 1887, while Principals Bixby, Mellen, Harris, Shean and Barr have hardly reached the "old time" class.

Lowell's Youngest Principals

The youngest principals are Leo A. King of the Edson school who is completing his first term and Paul L. Perkins of the Green school whose election took place a few months ago. Mr. Perkins is probably one of the youngest, if not the youngest, school principal in the state, and it is said was elected either just before or just after becoming a voter. Both young men have made an excellent showing during the short time that they have been in their respective positions.

THE VERY BEST DENTIST IN LOWELL

There is no question in my mind but what I am the best dentist in the city for you to come to for dental services, for the following reasons:

1st—Because I do beautiful work, lasting and guarantee it for 10 years. And any methods are absolutely painless.

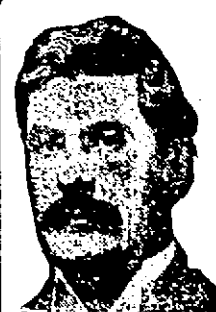

2nd—My office is clean and sanitary and the sterilization of instruments is a most important feature.

3rd—My prices are low, in fact lower than in any other office in Lowell.

DON'T GO ELSEWHERE AND BE SORRY

Every day I hear someone say: "Oh, why did I not come to you first. How much better your work looks, and you did not hurt me one single bit."

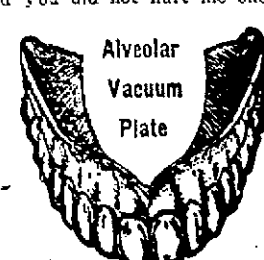

Fillings of gold, silver and porcelain are inserted painlessly, and when once in they stay in. I make teeth that look and act like your very own. No more of those old, false looking sets, which the ordinary dentist makes, are made at my office.

ANNUAL REGATTA

Twelve Crews From Five Universities to Compete Today

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—Twelve crews, representing five universities, will compete today in the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association on the Hudson. There was every indication of excellent wind and water conditions for the race. Special trains, steamboats and hundreds of automobiles began to deposit their human cargoes at depot and wharf before the town folks had finished their breakfasts. Although the red of Cornell and the blue of Columbia appeared to predominate in the colors shown by visiting thousands, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Stanford were not without followers.

While close and uncertain races were freely predicted in all three events, there was little wagering. The absence of professional commissioners and the warring pools placed a handicap upon the betting precivilities of both alumni and undergraduates. Speculation was confined almost exclusively to bets between the backers of individual crews. In this informal way Cornell and Columbia were even money against each other and slight favorites over Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Stanford. The Syracuse freshmen led the field in the first year crew event, while Pennsylvania supporters showed a disposition to back strongly their junior shore.

The juniors will race first, starting at 4.15 p. m. The freshmen eights have been ordered to the line at 6 and the four mile event for the varsity crews is scheduled for 6.15 p. m.

PAKE SOLICITORS IN ACTION—SALISBURY BEACH TRADE BOARD ISSUES WARNING.

Claiming that they were securing subscriptions for the maintenance of a life-saving service at Salisbury beach this summer, fraudulent solicitors have been operating in this vicinity and have victimized residents of several cities who own cottages at the beach and are interested in its improvement. The matter has been brought to the notice of the Salisbury beach board of trade, which, through its secretary has issued a warning to the public, in which it is stated that the only person authorized to collect funds for the life-saving service is the financial secretary of the trade board.

SAFE DYNAMITED

Burglars Get $60 in Cash From Postoffice Near Bangor, Me.

BANGOR, Me., June 28.—Burglars at 2.40 this morning blew the safe of Postmaster F. C. Barton of Bradley, after entering the store by means of jimnies. The noise awakened the village and the men left hurriedly, overlooking a roll of bills that had blown to the floor, and obtaining but about $60 in cash. They took no stamps. Three men were seen to leave the store immediately following the explosion and are believed to have crossed to the Old Town side of the Penobscot by a small boat. An energetic search is being made, but no trace of the men has yet been found.

SHOOTING AND SUICIDE

W. M. MORRISSEY SHOT MRS. PARK-HURST AND THEN KILLED HIMSELF

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 28.—After shooting Mrs. Mary (Angell) Parkhurst, aged 53, who is not expected to survive, this morning, William Morrissey, 42, plumber, shot himself in the head and died less than an hour after at the Woonsocket hospital. The dead man was to appear at the superior court in Providence this morning to plead to an indictment charging an attempt to break into Mrs. Parkhurst's room with the intent to murder her on the night of May 17.

The shooting and suicide occurred in the yard of the Home Boarding house where the woman had been cook for 25 years and Morrissey was a former boarder there. She had frequently reprimed his advances.

DEFEAT FOR CARRANZA

FURTHER CONFIRMATION OF REPULSE OF ARMY ADVANCING ON MEXICO CITY RECEIVED

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Further confirmation of the defeat of the Carranza army advancing on Mexico City, brought to Vera Cruz by an American from the capital, was received today at the state department.

The state department's despatch said Gen. Carranza was rushing troops from Vera Cruz to the capital, that fighting, at the hour the courier started, was still going on in the outskirts of the "tragic ten days" which preceded the overthrow of Madero with probably added horrors was feared.

Included in the state department's despatch from Vera Cruz was this: "Zapata forces defeated Carranza forces in Mexico City. Capital entirely cut off from the world. Carranza rushing all available men to Mexico City. No food in Mexico City."

THE PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

LOCKS & CANALS COMPANY WILL MAKE NO CONCESSIONS AS NONE WERE EXPECTED

Commissioner Morse stated today that he had a conference yesterday with Engineer Hiram F. Mills and Assistant Engineer Arthur J. Safford of the Locks & Canals corporation relative to the Pawtucket bridge matter, and they gave him to understand that the city to encroach one inch on their property and that they will not allow the city to build the abutment on the School street side against their wall. The abutment will have to be entirely self supporting, but Mr. Morse says this had already been understood by Engineer Denman.

SOUTH END CLUB

Following a lengthy meeting of the South End club yesterday afternoon, a number of the members were measured for their costumes by a representative of a Boston firm. Fully 200 members of the upper Gorham street organization and the Oxford club will participate in the slambang division of the parade, and all feel confident of landing one of the prizes.

LATE WAR NEWS

German advances in either Galicia or southern Poland.

Of the fighting along the western front, the French have little to say. The comparative inactivity of the French forces is attributed by observers on the side of the allies the desire to consolidate positions already won.

Two French Aeroplanes Shot Down

German accounts on the contrary, detail numerous French activities, including attacks in "the labyrinth" in the Argonne, in the Meuse hills and in the Vosges, all the attacks having been repulsed. The Germans report a notable success in an editorial battle along the southern part of the battle front in which two French aeroplanes were shot down.

Tide Turns in Galicia

The tide of battle is again flowing with the Teutonic allies in Galicia. German and Austrian claims of victory are substantiated by Russian admissions of retirement south of Lemberg. Simultaneously comes news of a Russian council of war at the front, presided over by the emperor and participated in by the Russian command-in-chief, Grand Duke Nicholas, leading military men and several cabinet ministers, while in Petrograd the recent retirement of the minister of war is to be followed by other ministerial changes, according to current report.

March on Warsaw

Following recent indications that the Germans were running actively with the possible intention of beginning another march on Warsaw down from near the East Prussian border come reports of a strong offensive movement by the Teutonic forces in the southern part of Russian Poland. The latest Russian official mentions that this with the declaration that up to Saturday the new offensive had met with no success. It is likewise affirmed that German attacks in the Shavli and Narow river regions and across the Niemnan have been repulsed.

Italian Success

News from other sections of the far-spread war front includes an Italian official report of an unsuccessful attempt by the Austrians to retake the heights of Zellemlkofel.

British Steamer Sunk

German submarine activity has borne fruit again in the sinking of the British steamer Indranti, in St. George's Channel.

British Air Raid

British aviators have flown over Smyrna, dropping bombs and causing more than 70 casualties in the Turkish section there, according to a report from Mytilene.

Serbia Declines Separate Peace

An interesting statement in view of recent reports is attributed to the Serbian minister to Italy to the effect that Serbia will decline to make a separate peace.

BRITISH STEAMSHIP SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE

LONDON, June 28, 12.20 p. m.—The British steamship Indranti, of 3640 tons gross, was sunk on Sunday by a German submarine at a point southwest of Tuskar, Ireland. The crew of the Indranti was saved.

RUSSIANS SUCCEEDED IN REGROUPING FORCES AND ARE READY TO OPPOSE TEUTONS

PETROGRAD, June 28, via London. 2 p. m.—Officers of the Russian general staff now state that they have satisfactorily achieved the re-grouping of their forces necessitated by the German Galician campaign and that they are ready effectively to oppose a further advance of the Austro-German forces in Galicia or in southern Russia.

TWO GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED BY FRANCE, SAYS PARIS

PARIS, June 28, 1 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities, reading as follows:

"The Germans last night delivered two attacks against our positions, each of which was repulsed. One was at the trench of Calonne and the other was at a point to the east of Metzler."

"With these exceptions there is nothing of importance to report."

LAST NASHUA CAR

The last car from Lowell for Nashua leaves Lowell at 10.45, not 11.05 as incorrectly announced in a Nashua paper. Nashua young men must now do their courting in Lowell as quickly as Lowell young men, in Nashua since the new schedule went into effect.

CHALFOUR'S CLERKS' OITING

Morton Walker, advertising man and chairman of the clerks' committee at the J. L. Chalfour company, announced today that the annual store outing will be held this year on July 15. At a meeting of the clerks' association to be held tomorrow night, the place of holding the outing will be decided upon. The majority of the clerks seem to favor Nahant.

TYPOS AT PORTLAND APPOINTED BY MAYOR

ADVANCE GUARD OF 100 DELEGATES ARRIVES FOR OPENING OF N. E. UNION CONVENTION TODAY

PORTLAND, Me., June 28.—One hundred members of the New England Typographical union arrived here yesterday in anticipation of the two-day session of the body which began today. The visiting delegates were entertained at a smoker last evening by the local members.

Lowell is represented at the convention by N. W. Matthews, Jr., and Thomas J. Durkin, the latter of The Sun composing room.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

PORTLAND, Me., June 28.—An address of welcome to 100 delegates to the New England Typographical union, representing practically every city in New England and about 12,000 workers, was given by Mayor William Ingraham at the opening of their sixth annual convention today.

He was warmly applauded when he stated that, while he was glad to know that the union was patriotic and stood for peace and he hoped nothing would happen to this country, all must maintain peace with honor and must stand ready and willing to do their best to uphold the honor of the Stars and Stripes.

President William C. Trump of Boston is among the officers present.

BOARD OF TRADE OUTING

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CHOSEN TODAY DISCUSSED QUESTION AT YORICK CLUB

The following members of the Lowell board of trade have been selected for the executive committee: Robert F. Marden, John A. Hunsweell, Harry Dunlap, Clarence H. Nelson and John H. Murphy.

They held their first meeting this noon at the Yorick club and considerable business was transacted. It was voted to offer a silver cup for the best appearing local military company in the July 5th parade, assuming as the local companies were barred from competing for any prize by the committee in charge. The board will ask the official judges of the parade to act in the same capacity for the award of the cup.

The annual outing of the board was discussed at length and it is probable the affair will be held on the last Thursday in August. A number of the residents here have suggested ideal places for such an event, but the committee did not take any action as far as the exact date and location is concerned. This will be decided later.

TANNER STREET SEWER

COMMISSIONER MORSE SAYS IT IS THE SLOWEST PROPOSITION HE EVER TACKLED

Charlie Morse says that the Tanner street sewer job is about the slowest proposition he ever tackled. About 53 feet of the sewer collapsed several months ago and because of the fact that the break was directly under coal pockets that were loaded with coal it was necessary to remove the coal and do a lot of extra work before it was safe for men to work on the sewer job. There are about 30 men employed on the job at the present time and most of them are working at a depth of 27 feet, the dirt being taken out in relays. Mr. Morse says he does not know when he will get through with the job.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Cecil Caisse, daughter of School Committee man and Mrs. W. P. Caisse, Jr. was agreeably surprised yesterday afternoon, when a number of her young friends and relatives called at the home of her parents, 773 Merrimack street, and presented her a number of valuable gifts on the occasion of her seventh birthday.

The reception room had been elaborately decorated for the occasion and the little ones spent a most enjoyable afternoon. Ice cream and cake as well as other dainties were served and a musical program was given. At the close of the afternoon the little guests departed but not before bestowing their best wishes upon their hosts and extending their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Caisse for their cordial hospitality.

MISS MANNING RESIGNS

Miss M. Cella Manning has resigned her position as clerk in the park department, to accept a more lucrative position at the Boston & Maine car shops in Billerica. Miss Manning was the lowest paid clerk at city hall, receiving only $10 a week for her services. She wanted $14 a week and was stated at city hall that Commissioner Putnam would have hired Miss Manning and paid her, jointly, at the rate of $14 a week, and Miss Manning would have been willing to remain for that amount. The same story had it that Supt. Kernan of the park department refused to allow Miss Manning to be transferred, but Mr. Kernan says that is not so and Commissioner Putnam says he did not ask to have her transferred. For the last several weeks Miss Manning has been employed jointly by the park department and the lands and buildings department, each of the departments paying half her wages. Supt. Kernan has made application to the civil service commission for the names of girls eligible to the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Manning, who will have a vacation of two weeks before taking up her new position in Billerica, her home town.

GAY HEAD

June 28.—The inhabitants of this little settlement on Martha's Vineyard island have been perplexed for two days by a mysterious fire burning in the heart of one of the clay cliffs from which the village received its name.

It was noted yesterday that smoke was issuing from Black cliff, 150 feet above sea level and 25 feet below the top of the promontory. Investigation showed that at different places in a tract columns were rising from the clay and the soil on the surface bore a yellow stain. So far as local traditions indicate, there never has been a subterranean fire in the locality.

Although the cause of the phenomenon has not been explained, a few theories have been advanced. One is that an undiscovered deposit of bituminous coal has been ignited in some inexplicable manner. Supporters of this theory say that the odor from the smoke bears out their contention. Others believe that a torrential fall of rain on Saturday penetrated some unknown lime formation and set up combustion.

PRINCETON CLUB PLANS

It will have slambang feature in Fourth of July parade—300 Members Will Participate

The Princeton club held a largely attended and highly enthusiastic meeting in the club quarters in Bridge street yesterday afternoon at which a number of addresses on the Fourth of July parade were made by officials in charge of the parade. It was announced that 300 members would participate in the event, and that Mr. Weld of the firm of Curtis & Weld Co., of Boston will be at the rooms of the organization every night this week to take the measurements of the members. Mr. Weld measured 150 members for costumes after the meeting yesterday afternoon. Following the meeting a musical program was enjoyed in the recreation room of the organization and all the selections presented in the recent minstrel show were gone over by the members, with Prof. Gilchrist at the piano.

MEDAL FOR MUSIC

MISS ROSE DUPUIS WON HIGH HONORS IN COMPETITION OPEN TO ALL PUPILS IN ONTARIO

Miss Rose Dupuis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Narcisse Dupuis, 232 West Sixth street, who was a student at the convent of the Grey Nuns of the Cross at Ottawa, Ont., arrived at her home this morning to spend the summer vacation with her parents.

The young woman has completed her commercial course at the convent and returned home with the laureate, as well as a gold medal she won in a music contest. This gold medal is known as the medal of the dominion of music. The musical students in all the places of education of the province of Ontario were allowed to compete and Miss Dupuis of this city won the honors. Miss Dupuis, who is but 16 years of age, will probably return to the convent next September in order to go through the professional course.

Rev. Victor Vaud, O. M. I., professor at the Holy Angels college, Buffalo, N. Y., is the guest of the Oblate fathers of St. Joseph's parish.

The Mystery Girls of North Billerica provided an excellent musical entertainment at the formal opening of the Washington camp yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Richard Noonan and her three sons left last Thursday for Buffalo, N. Y., where she will join her husband, Richard Noonan, the popular musician, who is playing at a theatre there.

Rev. Rosario Jalbert, O. M. I. of the Tewksbury novitiate left this morning for Canada, where he will spend a vacation among friends and relatives.

William D. Brown, treasurer of the Lowell Cooperative bank, was a member of the committee on arrangements for the outing of the Cooperative Bank Treasurers club of Eastern Massachusetts, held Saturday afternoon at Turk's Head Inn, Lands End. There was an attendance of about 52 and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent.

FUNERALS

McDERMOTT—The funeral of Mrs. Jennie McDermott took place this morning at 8.30 o'clock from the funeral chapel of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy on Market street, and was largely attended. A funeral high mass was celebrated in St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Heffernan. The burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. Fr. Heffernan read the burial services. The bearers were Messrs. Timothy O'Neill, John Worthing, James McDonald, Peter Desautel. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy.

OUELLETTE—The funeral of Mrs. Isabelle Ouellette took place this morning from the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Wilson, 106 Elm street. High mass of Requiem was celebrated at St. Jean Baptiste church at 8 o'clock by Rev. Augustin Gratton. O. M. I. The bearers were Peter, Joseph, Louis, Stephen and Felix Ouellette and Fred Davis. Among the floral offerings were pieces from Walter and Arthur Davis and others. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, where the communal prayers were read by Rev. Charles Desnoy, O. M. I. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Joseph Albert.

DUBE—The funeral of Girard Dube took place yesterday afternoon from the home of the parents, William and Elsie Dube, 2 Juliette avenue. A service was conducted at St. Jean Baptiste church at 3 o'clock by Rev. Joseph Denis, O. M. I. The bearers were Messrs. Louis, Donald, Nadave, Wilfrid Gagnon and Amadee Lefebvre. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Joseph Albert.

CASSIDY—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Cassidy took place this morning at 9.15 o'clock from her late home, 33 Cedar street, and was largely attended by many surviving relatives and friends. At St. Peter's church at 9.45 o'clock a funeral mass was sung by Rev. Patrick J. Crayton. The bearers were Messrs. Lawrence Sheehan, Joseph Bradley, Thomas Cannon and William Cassidy. There were many mourners from Cherry Hill, Lawrence, Boston and Haverhill. Interment took place in St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. Fr. Crayton read the last sad rites of the Catholic church at the grave. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker John J. O'Connell.

FUNERAL NOTICE

TRYON—Died June 25, in this city. Wallace Tryon, at his home, 443 Dutton street. Funeral services will be held at 443 Dutton street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends are invited without further notice, burial private. The funeral arrangements are in charge of Undertaker George W. Henley.

MIDDLESEX STREET WHITE WAY

WHITE WAY OPENING NIGHT

Residents of Upper Middlesex St.
Will Celebrate This Evening—
Parade, Music and Bargains

The White Way celebration of the merchants of the upper Middlesex street district, which will be held this evening, will doubtless attract a very large crowd of people from every section of the city. The merchants have been preparing this event for a long time and it promises to be as big a success as others. Nothing has been spared which will add to the success of the affair.

A fine program has been arranged for the entertainment of visitors. There will be a continuous band concert, the musicians marching up and down the new White Way district as they play, red fire, a short parade and several other features. The Middlesex Social club will hold open house in honor of the event and a full orchestra will be in attendance at the club rooms. There will be singing and the doors and windows will be thrown open so that all may enjoy the concert. The festivities will start about half past six this evening. Among the most attractive features will be the special bargains which the merchants along the new white way district are offering everyone. A glance through the advertisements on this page will give the reader an idea of the spirit with which these business men are entering into the affair. Special reductions in prices and in several cases, souvenirs will be given the customers. These merchants offer car fares to visitors and the special reduction of 10 per cent on purchases. These inducements will no doubt meet a big demand tonight.

The organization in charge of the event is the Upper Middlesex street improvement Association, the officers of which are as follows: Chairman, C. Harry Clapp; secretary, Sigmund Rosler; directors, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Adela Herard, Joseph Kaplan, George P. White and Louis Lord.

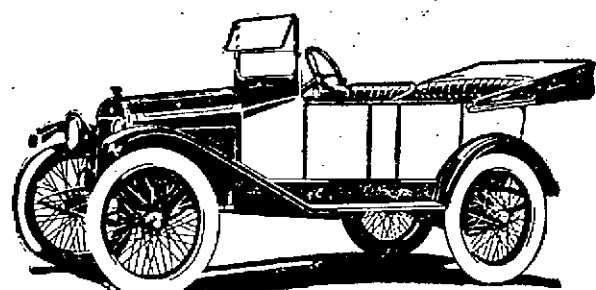

The hard work which they have put into the celebration is worthy of brilliant success which will no doubt characterize tonight's event. A fund to cover the expenses was secured by subscription and the committees found great enthusiasm and generosity among the public spirited ones along the new white way.

WHITE WAY NOTES

ADVICE TO GRADUATES

Joseph French Johnson, dean of the New York University School of Commerce, recently published a magazine article in which he told of an interview which he granted not long before to a young man who wanted advice as to the future. This boy was aged 17 and had been two years at high school, but he was deliberating on whether it was better to graduate and go to college, or whether he should go to a commercial school and so direct to business.

The advice given by this head of a successful business college was, in part: "Don't choose a business because other people are making a lot of money in it, and don't reject the professions merely because you have known some persons in them who can't pay their bills. What you should look for is the kind of work you can do best. In that you will be the happiest and most successful, even though you never become wealthy."

This advice is not in line with that of many lecturers and writers who think they have advanced views on education, for it is quite common for such individuals to laud vocational and specialized training as being superior to the old-fashioned liberal education. The point of view of those who argue in favor of the specialized training is that of this boy who said: "If I am going into business, why shouldn't I go to a school of commerce like this, instead of wasting two years in college studying a lot of things I don't care anything about or things that won't be of any use to me later?"

To a certain extent this view is correct, but it is a material view and on the whole a mistaken one. The answer given to this question by Mr. Johnson is worthy of note: "Don't worry too much now about what you are going to do; just make a resolution to get such an education that no job or profession will be too big for you to climb up to."

The young man who thinks that because he is going to follow a trade or is going into business, he will not need a good general education, is much mistaken. All kinds of business are in a sense becoming professions. The successful expert accountant needs a preliminary training and education as thorough as that of a lawyer, and he who would rise to an executive position in business or finance will soon discover that he needs something more than mere experience or knowledge of his comparatively narrow business sphere. The boy who leaves the vocational school best fitted for even the trade or business he has trained for is he who has not confined himself solely to the direct training of that school.

On the other hand, necessity has no law, even in education, and when it is absolutely necessary that a boy should leave school early and go to work, specialized training is most desirable. The mistake is in supposing that vocational training is a substitute for a general education. The boys who, on graduating from grammar school, may go to the high school, or who after leaving the high school may go to college, should do so by all means. Education does not make the head heavier or retard early success, and the boy who has the broadest education is best fitted to take the advantages that come to all to a greater or lesser degree. In short, a boy before leaving school, should, if possible, prepare for something special but be ready for anything.

THE BRIDGE BUNGLER

The municipal council has provided for a new bridge across the Merrimack river at Pawtucket Falls in what must seem to all thinking citizens a very slipshod, imprudent, unseemly and undesirable manner. A company represented by one active and zealous delegate whose unsupported word has carried a most extraordinary weight with four members of the council has been chosen to construct the bridge, but aside from certain concessions which Mr. Denman of the constructing company dictated, the plans are neither definite nor satisfactory. Plans which have not yet been presented have been accepted in advance, under certain conditions wholly unfavorable to the city, and the little matter of cost is left to Mr. Denman to decide. Nothing in the situation commends it either to Lowell contractors, to salesmen of bridge materials, to supporters of the Lowell city charter, or to the taxpayers generally. There is a possibility that the bridge may be satisfactory, but there is a grave possibility that it will not and that, who is to reimburse the city for its loss? Under the arrangement nobody can be held financially responsible.

As was brought out by the pointed question of Commissioner Carmichael at the Friday meeting, no bond is furnished by the Luten company; the majority of our commissioners seemed to resent any suspicion as to the motives of all concerned. One commissioner wonders that anybody should anticipate anything wrong, and Mayor Murphy is full of confidence, because forsooth, he means to see that the bridge is properly inspected "before it is accepted." Are we to assume that if found unsatisfactory, it will be pulled down and another one erected? If the bridge should fall down the week after Mr. Denman gets his money, what can the city do about it? Nothing.

The usual procedure in cities that do business properly—like the city of Springfield for example—is that there should have been definite plans first, passed upon by an expert and approved by the city, by the Locks and Canals corporation, by the Bay State company, and by the war department. A demand for such plans and specifications might, of course, have made it hard for the Springfield company to compete, and it was evidently a pre-arranged fact that there should be no competition and that one certain company should be awarded the contract. The man who has negotiated all the proceedings and who became virtually a temporary member of the municipal council is the company in question. This is unusual, to say the least, and it may be found highly unsatisfactory before the bridge is finished. The city takes all the risks and Mr. Denman, a total stranger, is practically a free agent.

Again, there is absolutely no guarantee that the bridge will be built within the $50,000 mentioned, just as there is no assurance that the $50,000 is not excessive. Certain pertinent questions as to possible additional costs were evaded at the meeting last Friday, and it would seem that should Mr. Denman require a few thousands more later on, there is nothing to prevent him getting it. This is not the way Lowell has arranged for municipal projects in the past, and it is certainly not the right way. Commissioner Duncan, for one fitting moment, seemed to look for light as to the real cost of construction. He declared that the charter forbids the awarding of any contract until the appropriation is made, but he soon forgot his scruples. The commissioners were particular to go on record as stating that they have nothing against Mr. Denman. Neither has the Lowell public nor The Sun, but that is beside the point. What have the commissioners against the city that they should so jeopardize its interests? The one important consideration is that we should have an adequate bridge, constructed on business principles and at the lowest possible figure. The city is to have a new bridge built at Pawtucketville to cost $50,000 or over but for aught the aldermen know it may not be worth $50,000 when completed although it may cost $50,000. Denman has bound the city to a bargain but the city has not bound Denman or his company. The city will have to pay whether it gets value for its money or not. Is that the mode of doing business provided for by the new charter? Is it safe, is it sensible, is it economical, is it honest?

In the development of the new business interests of the department of commerce, this country will be furnished with an instrument of political protection which cannot be appreciated at the present time. All nations are trade rivals, and it is an acknowledged fact that behind the present war are animosities arising from friction in foreign markets. Let one country successfully compete with another in some old line of established trade and immediately jealousies and rivalries are engendered that reach into the ways of international diplomacy.

At the present time, this country is striving to have its foreign business done by business experts and not by politicians. Until the present administration, the commercial interests of the country were taken care of by the consuls and ambassadors in foreign capitals, and the reports on the extension of the textile industry or the field for American farm machinery in China or the Argentine republic came in the same envelope that contained delicate matters of international interest. This is no longer the case, and with the development of the exclusive American idea, our foreign business will be handled by men of business and as a business proposition, and our matters of foreign policy will be handled by statesmen.

This fact is not given the prominence it deserves by the doubtful forecasters who declare that America will be drawn into a great conflict before many years. True, trade rivalries between the nations are growing more keen and aggressive, but if other nations do as America does, there will be little danger of serious trouble. The present administration is striving to introduce into our foreign trade the practices that have made America a synonym for successful business in all parts of the world. Our government invites open competition, but it demands open and fair dealing in an open and fair field. The department of commerce is working for publicity, common-sense and efficiency, and it bids fair to give American prosperity abroad a hitherto unknown impetus.

PRESIDENT WILSON RESTS

President Wilson is enjoying a brief vacation at his summer home at Cornish and no man in America is more deserving of one. For months his task has been the heaviest of any president since the time of Lincoln, and he has attended to it with a degree of persistence, ability, patience and wisdom that have aroused the utmost loyalty of his own country and the admiration of the world. His work has not been of the kind that can be correctly estimated in advance and that when once done is finished, for the time being. Every question that confronted him six months ago confronts him today, and at any moment there may be complications that would demand from the chief executive the exercise of tremendous responsibility. Through the maze of diplomacy and the devious ways of international law President Wilson has had to tread carefully and with dignity, remembering the while that one false step might lead to war, and that war would be a national calamity, except in extreme necessity. We are too close to President Wilson to appreciate the size of his services to his country, but history will testify that his personality looms large over every national policy of this country at a time of world war.

We are told that the president's journey from Washington to Cornish was one long ovation, and fittingly so. Avoiding publicity of the more sensational variety such as was courted so assiduously by a famous predecessor who still amazes and at times amuses the country, he nevertheless has attracted to himself the love and respect of the entire country. If the good wishes of our many millions have any effect, President Wilson will go back to his onerous duties at Washington a stronger and happier man.

TRADE AT HOME

The Lowell board of trade has come out in support of the slogan "Trade at home," and incidentally advertised the advantages of the parcel post by advising those Lowell people who go away for the season to still trade at home by having their provisions, etc., sent from the home market by parcel post or express. The suggestion is novel, but if found practicable it is very pertinent and timely.

There is no question that in many vacation places, the prices of food and other domestic commodities are boosted unmercifully, to the financial loss of the vacationist. It is also true that one cannot be as sure of the quality as one is of the commodities that have been received from an old and tried establishment at home. Consequently if the out-of-town Lowellites could, by trading at home, get provisions on time and in good condition, it would be a splendid exercise of common-sense and of the most desirable community spirit to still leave money with the Lowell merchant.

In this discrimination should be shown, for it would be folly for one at the beach to order clams from a Lowell fish dealer, or to get sweet corn from Tewksbury when one is summering on a Vermont farm, but there are many household articles that one might get more advantageously from the Lowell dealer. It is then for all our vacationists to remember the possibilities of parcel post or express and to give some thought to the request of the board of trade.

EATING WHAT YOU WANT

Not to be limited in his diet but to eat whatever he pleases without discomfort is the dream of the dyspeptic. Nobody can honestly promise to restore any stomach to this happy condition because all people cannot eat the same things with equally satisfactory results. It is literally true that "what is one man's food is another man's poison." But it is possible to select a pleasant diet from articles of food that cause no discomfort and it is possible to tune up the digestive organs.

When the stomach lacks tone there is no quicker way to restore it than to build up the blood. Good digestion without rich red blood is impossible and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer the best way to build up the blood. They also have a direct action on the nerves and as the nerves control the processes of digestion, these pills are specially good in stomach trouble attended with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

You can begin this treatment at once because your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Perhaps you are not eating the right foods. Sometimes the very things that people eat "for their health" are the things that hurt them. A postal card request to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will bring a free diet book, ready for it today.

BLEACHERY GANGS

Commenting recently on the danger of the gang spirit and the necessity for curbing it, The Sun expressed gratification at the absence of such extreme depredations as recently drew the attention of all Massachusetts to Lynn. In that city public property had been wantonly destroyed without regard for loss or ownership; whole hedges of trees and shrubs had been killed with chemicals, a ball court had been ruined, and fences had been torn down.

The Bleachery district is infested with gangs but not more so than some other sections of the city where a like campaign might be started with advantage. Possibly the gangs in question have not yet done much damage to property, but they frequently offend flagrantly against propriety. It should surely be possible in this city for women and young girls to go through the parks and commons without being insulted or interfered with, and it is possible to so regulate such places that the ears of decent people are not constantly offended by profanity and vulgarity. The time for the police department to show such desirable activity is now before the season is advanced. A few arrests wherever the gang spirit has been manifested and a stiff fine or imprisonment would go a good way towards making known that Lowell will not allow the rights of all the people to be interfered with by a few irresponsible loafers or low-minded hoodlums.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

To one who looks over the lists of our school graduates in the proper American spirit, there is great inspiration in the diversity of racial stock represented. Recently President Wilson in addressing a great mass of newly naturalized citizens declared that whenever he forgets the ideals of this republic, he is again reminded of them by the sight of our foreign-born Americans, and the same holds true of the school lists. Our colleges and high schools are filled with the sons and daughters of immigrants of an older generation who has had little education and less opportunity, but who brought the proper spirit for the making of new Americans, and our primary schools have many names of other racial groups that sought our shores at a later date. Moreover the honor lists and the lists of class officers contain many names that have an unmistakably foreign sound, proving eloquently that the sons and daughters of all our immigrants are forging to the front and will be among the leading citizens of the future. It is well. It took some degree of idealism and love of liberty to attract our foreign-born citizens, and while we love liberty and maintain our high ideals, America will be what Washington meant it to be.

"I don't need a lawyer," said the culprit. "I have decided to tell the truth."

Now all I ask, dear child, is this: You'll promise me to be As on life's rugged pathway now you go. A woman pure and thoughtful with the grace of charity. Like your mother was when she was here below. I will not ask too much, you know, For you're quite like her now. And this earthly school for all is very short. And the way we work life's metal God will place it on our brow. So to do our level best is what we ought. Tomorrow when you graduate, just do your very best. As along with all your classmates, dear, you go.

And I bought these lovely roses just to fasten on your breast. With this one your mother wore long years ago. It may seem old and faded, but its odor still is sweet. And the thoughts it brings can never fade away. For my heart will hold her image, in that muslin frock so neat. As she looked to me that lovely summer day. I know her spirit guides us as we're journeying along—Three sunshine and thro' shadow on life's way. And shall be the first to greet us in that everlasting throng. WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook says dainty laces should be washed in the following way if you would keep them fresh, new look. Purchase four cents worth of benzoline which is highly inflammable, so should be kept away from artificial light or fire. Take two basins and into each put a little of the benzoline. Dip the lace in one, douse it up and down, then squeeze gently and dip in the second basin. By then all the dirt will have dropped out. Shake the lace and in a few minutes it will dry and look as good as new.

Wool blankets will be softer and retain their shape better if you do not wring them. Hang them on a line dripping wet and whip with a wire carpet beater. Whip them two or three times while drying.

Take a piece of black velvet and tack over the bristles on the back of an old stove polishing brush, advises Cook. It will polish stoves as well as at old before, and the velvet can be easily replaced when it is worn out. The same can be done to a broombrush when worn down.

A small box of lime set in the pantry will keep the air dry and purified. The lids of sauce pans often need to be heated while cooking, and a clothes peg with a tack in its top will answer the purpose. Fix the peg on the edge of the saucepan as if it were a line and rest the lid on the tack.

When washing cut glass ornaments or fine china, cook always places a Turkish towel at the bottom of the bowl. She finds this very safe as it prevents the articles from getting chipped by knocking against the bowl.

To give cut glass a very brilliant polish wash it first in hot soda and then dip in cold water in which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Allow the glasses to drain before rubbing with a dry cloth.

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, looking glasses and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub over the glass. Leave for a few moments and then wipe it dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required and the window or glass will look clean and shiny.

Cook says the best way to whiten

clothes that have become yellow by lying, is to dip them in cream of tartar water. Place the cream of tartar in an earthen dish and pour boiling water over it. Dip the clothes immediately into it dipping them several times but not letting them lie in it. Rinse in two or three waters and lay or hang in the sun.

To keep colored clothes looking fresh and new do not soap or soak them overnight or use washing fluids. Do not put them all into the tub at once. Have fresh water as soon as the first becomes dirty. When hanging out turn and hang in the shade. Do not have the iron too hot when ironing.

In order to insure a good gloss on starched collars, first mix the starch with cold water, add a tiny lump of butter about the size of a small marble, then pour on the boiling water.

The more water used in boiling cabbage, greens, etc., the less objectionable will the smell given out by them, Cook says. A piece of bread tied in muslin and boiled with the cabbage also mitigates the smell. It should, however, be removed after fifteen minutes boiling and be burned.

To save time and gas when baking potatoes put them in the broiler instead of in the oven and they will bake twice as quickly and are delicious.

When peeling onions hold the hands under gently running water and you will have no reason to cry over your labor.

The little black specks that appear on silver articles that have been laid away some time, should be cleaned with a paste of whiting, free of grit, and olive oil, says Cook. Then slightly polish with a piece of old silk.

In some cases the specks and stains are very obstinate, and it will be best to cover the article with the paste and allow it to remain on for a considerable time. It should then be wiped off and polished with either a piece of silk or a good soft piece of chamois leather and rouge.

Silver that has become scratched can be made quite smooth again by rubbing it well with a piece of chamois leather that has been rolled into a tight bag and dipped in sweet oil.

sea and also for the hours at the shore that are sure to be given over to all sorts of fascinating pleasures which the sand supplies. It is absolutely simple, made all in one and can be copied in flannel or other suitable material. For the little girls, striped fabrics are liked as well as plain and here, striped silk is trimmed with plain. The blouse and the bloomers are cut together and the skirt is separate, consequently when the swimming lesson is to be taken or similar exercise is to be enjoyed, the skirt can be slipped off, leaving the little wearer absolutely free and unhampered. Silk is unquestionably one of the best and most fashionable materials but mohair makes excellent suits and mohair trimmed with silk is always attractive.

LADY LOOKABOUT

Truly a blunt stone may put a keen edge on a blade. This is the thought that came to me when I learned that a pupil of Mr. Barry's of the Pawtucket school, was awarded the first prize for her suffrage essay. Mr. Barry has always tried to carry off the role of a rabid anti, but I have ever felt that he was not wholly sincere. That one of his pupils should have won first prize for a suffrage essay does not indicate that he instilled into her mind any of the "anti" ideas.

At both of these funerals, the labor organizations of which the deceased were members, appeared in a body and walked to the cemetery, and I could not help thinking what inspiring sights they were. These organizations represented labor and brotherhood, and as I looked upon them, strong in their sympathy for their departed brethren, and strong in their loyalty to each other, the real meaning of the words "organized labor," came to me as never before. Men of a high order of skill and intelligence; workers; producers—can we wonder at the power they wield. Their hands they hold the industrial fate of the nation. How important, how essential, therefore, that those who have in their hands today the boys who will tomorrow be of these organizations, should train in them, conscience that they may later apply the golden rule in their dealings; stability of character, that they may not later be swept off their feet by the emotional utterances of fanatical orators; and patriotism, that this great body of men, many of whom are of foreign birth may recognize and appreciate the boundless opportunities held out to them and their children by the American flag, which asks no return unless danger threatens.

Another thought that came to me as I looked upon the hundreds of fellow workmen who followed the remains of their comrades in labor to their final resting places, was that despite the commercialism of our age, and despite all we hear to the contrary, sentiment has not entirely departed from us, and it never will. There is something within everyone of us which quickens at the misfortune of one of our number and invariably expresses itself in an act of generosity. Often under pressure of keen sympathy, one finds himself impelled to a benevolent act he would not have thought of otherwise. These impulses are good for us. They keep our well-springs of kindness from wholly drying up, and we should not thwart them. The prominent building contractor who a short time ago had his workmen cease their hammering and sawing while a funeral was in progress nearby, which he may have gotten in a short time, performed a little act of kindness which shall never be forgotten by the mourners. The man returning from his day's work and detained at a street crossing by a passing funeral, gave eloquent expression to his sentiment of respect for the dead by removing his hat as the hearse passed him. No sentiment is not dead among us, nor does it sleep, but is as truly a part of human nature as ever it was, and human nature does not change.

Saved the Baby

It was in the narrow passageway between the Pollard stores. A mother had left her sleeping infant in his carriage near the door opening from the passageway, and had entered the store on a shopping expedition. A wagon approached from the far end of the passage. Under ordinary circumstances, it would have required careful driving to pass the baby carriage in safety. But the circumstances were extraordinary. The horses were unruly under the strain of an unreasoning driver who had every appearance of being intoxicated. Our hearts stood still. Somebody screamed. The horses danced wildly up the passage, the driver shouting, "I can't help it! It's no place for a child!" The infant slept on. Then someone—a woman—rushed

ABOUT SUNBURN AGAIN

The best remedy for sunburn that I know of is not to go into the sun, but unfortunately we can't use it unless we are willing to entomb ourselves indoors. But we can and ought to be more careful in protecting ourselves when we go out into the sun and the beauty wisher must take every precaution against the reddening rays of Old Sol.

Sunburn is very injurious to the skin, not only the burning sensation and discomfort and the peeling, but as to the ultimate effect upon the skin. There are certain qualities in the sun's rays which coarsen the texture of the skin. These rays are so powerful that they penetrate to the under layers, and even though the top layer peels off the harmful results are sure to appear.

to the carriage, pushed it through the open door into the Palmer street store, and the immense wagon rolled noisily on to the street, the driver threatening to have every woman in Lowell "pinched" for interfering with a man who was minding his own business. Later I saw the baby carriage on Merrimack street. The babe, now wide awake, smiled and blinked at the passers-by. The mother chatted happily with a companion, wholly unaware of her child's narrow escape from what seemed at least certain injury.

Brown Tails Routed

It is very evident that the long battle against the brown tail moth has begun to show signs of being successful. For the first time in years, there is now a possibility of sitting in the shade of a deciduous tree with a degree of safety and comfort long unknown. Until this year, one could not approach a tree without encountering myriads of caterpillars and invariably, in my case at least, their favorite goal was my neck. I would almost as soon meet the man with horns as to experience the sensation of a caterpillar, wool or no wool, crawling on my neck. Therefore, it is with an emotion of thanks to the various moth squalls who, after a long battle, have at last accomplished a wonderful degree of success. Apart from the personal discomfort of their presence, there was the great economic waste in the loss of fruit crops, and in the devastation and in hundreds of cases, the deaths of the trees themselves. It has been an expensive battle, but in the face of success, the laborer has proved himself well worthy of his hire.

Sunburn also weakens the skin tissues and makes them less able to withstand attacks of rash or the infections that sometimes come from water. The best remedy for sunburn is an application of equal parts of glycerine and witch hazel. Apply it gently with a soft cloth, don't rub the skin, just sop the mixture on. When it has dried, apply cold cream liberally and let it remain on for several hours, then wipe off with a soft cloth. Use no soap until after the burning sensation has subsided.

If you are going to take a dip in the ocean fortify yourself. Rub your face, neck, arms and hands with cocoa butter and finish with a generous application of rice powder. This treatment will not prevent sunburn if you expose yourself to the rays all day but is the best preventative known.

LOWELL WON A COUPLE O' GAMES

Local Team Twice Wal-
loped Burghers in a
Double BillZieser and Lohman
Were the Pitchers

(Special to The Sun)
FITCHBURG, June 28.—Lowell made it three straight from the Fitchburg team by defeating the Boosters 6 to 4 and 7 to 1 in a double header Saturday afternoon. The contests brought forth very little joy to the 2000 or more fans who thraved a threatening storm to encourage the Boosters to get started on the upward path. They were a disappointed crowd, as it is doubtful if the Fitchburg team ever played poorer, while on the other hand the Lowell team fielded in a gilded manner and batted both Lohman and Zieser hard. It was Lowell's day as everything broke poorly for Fitchburg.

Practically the entire team had off days with some of the errors of commission being unworthy of a playground recruit. Dumb work on the bases, lack of ordinary knowledge as to rules and an inclination to throw the ball in the wrong direction put the Fitchburg pitchers in bed, slowed up the entire team and made the fans sore. The only bright spot in the entire afternoon from a Fitchburg point of view was in the eighth inning of the first game when they uncorked a batting and base running rally and turned in four runs. That wasn't enough, however, as the Lowell team had been presented with the game long before that. In the second contest the Boosters never made a rally while Lowell found more than one opportunity to bunch hits when the Fitchburg players bunched errors.

Despite the poor showing of the team for the past two weeks and the appearance of a thunder storm and rain clouds as late as 3 o'clock a good sized crowd attended the double header. They entered the field still loyal to the home team and some of the plays of omission were such that loyalty was severely taxed. For the first time this year the fans jeered individual players and even a whole. They were justified in their displeasure as the Boosters looked pretty cheap and weak compared with the hits, hard hitting and lively Lowell club. The visitors have greatly improved since here before and worked together in a manner that is bound to lift them out of the last position in very quick order.

Putting Swayne in left field proved a good thing for the Lowell team, as he captured six flies, some of which would be hits with an ordinary fielder in that garden. Ahearn caught a good game and batted hard, getting four hits, including a home run over the left field fence. Barrows also hit hard and timely. Young was about the brightest light for Fitchburg. He was captured in the first game, but in the second he was the most consistent hitter with two hits in each game, while McCune batted good in the opening session.

Gaston had one of the poorest days since he joined the team. He threw poorly to third to catch a man running home in the first game, and in the second dropped a third strike with men on second and third. He made no attempt to touch the batter or to throw to first until ordered to do so by McCune. Then he threw high and a runner scored, the batter went to second and the man on second third. Then the Fitchburg team went into a rally and McCune, who had been standing still talking to Gaston instead of chasing the ball. Catcher and manager exchanged compliments while the game was being batted to Lowell.

That disgusted the fans and for the remainder of the game they cheered Lowell, feared the local team and called for home to get it out of the way. It was a sorry incident and will require some clever playing on the part of the Boosters to make the fans forget. It was only one of a series of incidents all of which had a tendency to give Lowell some runs and keep Fitchburg in the rear. The score:

RACE FOR TITLE

Marathon July 3rd to
of Lowell and Vicinity

"Meet me at the band concert," is the slogan in the Sacred Heart parish this week. Hundreds will meet on Sunday to observe the annual "at home" of the parish. The list of sports is the most notable to be held in the city for some time. The first number on the program will be the modified marathon to be run from Belle Grove to the rectory grounds. Already over thirty contestants have signified their intention of entering, and the list contains the names of such well-known amateurs as Billy Salmon, James Carr, George Goddard, Fred Couture, Joe Carleton, James O'Brien and Clislie Roddy. Interest in this race is unusual on account of the championship of the city being involved. Last year George Goddard won over twenty-seven other contestants, and has since held the local championship. The route of the marathon will be as follows: Belle Grove to Bridge street, to Merrimack square, to Central street, to Gorham street, to Moore street, to Meadowcroft street, to St. James street to the grounds. The start will be made promptly at 2:30, and three automobiles will accompany the runners. Promptly upon arrival at the grounds, five prizes will be awarded, the being silver cups, one of which is of unusual size and beauty, standing fifteen inches above the base.

The arrival on the grounds of the marathon runners will be the signal for the second part of the program, a broad jump, pole vaulting, shot putting, also a four race, and a pile eating contest for boys and other contests for women and girls, all to the merry music of Michael Grosse's hurdy gurdy. Enthusiasm is at top notch throughout the parish. Any evening prospective contestants may be seen here and there in back yards practicing shot putting, pole vaulting and jumping. Several pole-eating try-outs were held, but they do say the winners were made without having consulted the mothers, therefore a very essential element of this contest failed to materialize.

The only band concert to be given that evening in the city will be at the Sacred Heart grounds by the Lowell Sadet band, hence the appropriateness of the slogan, "Meet me at the band concert."

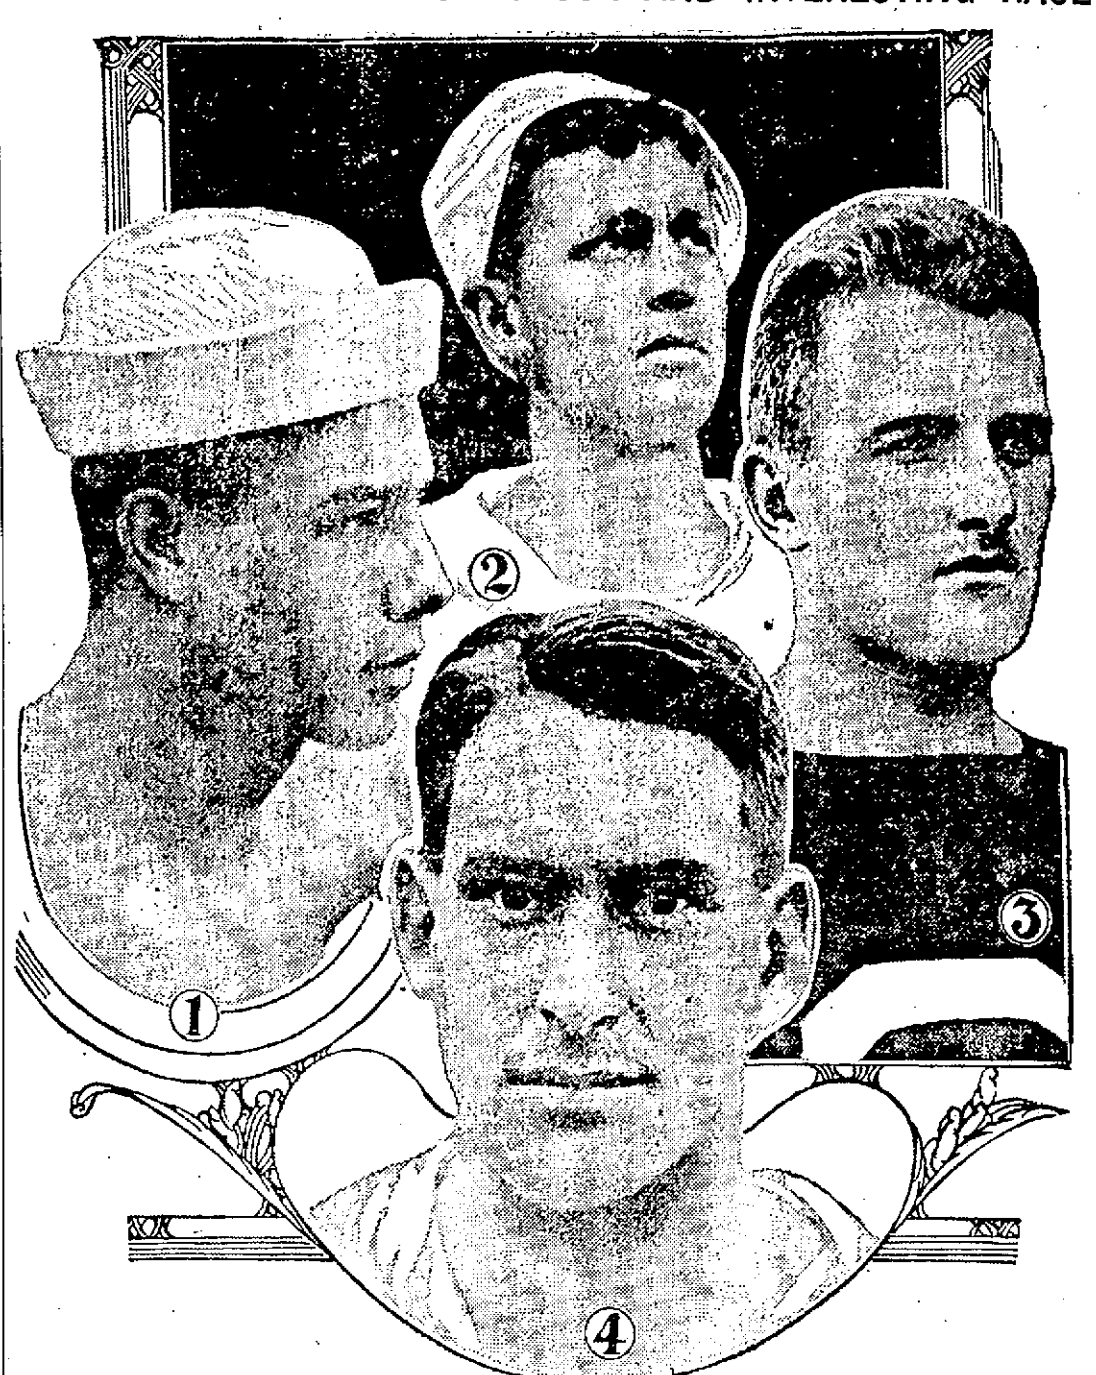

AUTO DRIVER KILLED

CLARENCE O. KING LOST LIFE IN
RACE AT SACRAMENTO, CAL.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 25.—Clarence O. King, a veteran driver, was instantly killed, and Leslie Fewell, his brother-in-law and mechanic, was badly injured, in a race here yesterday. King, in a Ford car, was trying to pass the leading car when it lost control of his machine and crashed into the fence.

A similar accident occurred in a race at San Jose, May 25, when the winner, George McGraw, left the track and plunged into a water tank. Paul Brashear, Taylor's mechanic, said that Taylor's car was expected to receive fatal. Several of Taylor's ribs were fractured but he will recover.

SOLD TO NEW YORKERS
DES MOINES, Ia., June 25.—An announcement was made today of the sale of George McGraw's left-handed pitcher by the Des Moines Western league club to the New York Americans for delivery in September. McGraw is leading the league in the present time with 13 victories and only four defeats.

POUGHKEEPSIE CREWS, EVENLY MATCHED,
SHOULD PUT UP CLOSE AND INTERESTING RACE

1. Captain KUEHN of SYRACUSE—2. Captain JACOMINI of LELAND STANFORD—3. Captain SANBORN of COLUMBIA—4. Captain MERRICK of PENNSYLVANIA

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—With the annual rowing argument of Yale and Harvard on the Thames decided, followers of aquatic sports now have their eyes focused on the Hudson, where the crews of five big colleges are finishing their conditioning for the annual Poughkeepsie regatta the country's blue ribbon rowing event. There is little or no betting except among partisans of the different crews, for the reason that all look to possess class and each appears to have an excellent chance. Of course Cornell and Columbia are considered the strongest crews in the event, but Syracuse and Pennsylvania have made late shifts in their crews which makes them look strong and appears to give them a look in for the honors. Leland Stanford, the only western crew in the race, is, as far as her chances are concerned, an unknown quantity. The experts have no way to compare the crew with the other entries, and they have therefore made it the "dark horse" of the event. A close contest is predicted, and it is safe to say that whichever crew wins will have to fight over every inch of the course. Captains of the five crews are shown in the group.

TEAM IMPROVING
THREE PITCHERS MATCH BROOKS

Lowell Club Appears to be Convalescing—Is Playing Better Ball
Lowell Team Boasts of Manager of Local Boy Great Trio in Zieser, Houser and Green Trying to Get Bout With Williams

In spite of the fact that the Lowell club is firmly entrenched at present on the lowest rung of the New England league ladder, President Roach's team boasts as strong a pitching trio as could be wished for. Matty Zieser, Joe Houser and Paddy Green are three twirlers who would be welcomed in any camp in the league. Not excepting the great mound for-tilations of Hugo Duffy and Alce Pearson, there isn't a manager in the circuit who would cast aside a chance to grab any of 'em.

If the local team starts to hit convincingly and improves in its base running and fielding, Lowell will win a lot of ball games behind these three heavyweights. With a ball club going well behind him, any one of them is a mighty hard proposition to beat.

FANS' DAY AT BROOKLYN

NO ADMISSION TO FEDERAL LEAGUE TODAY—MUSIC FURNISHED
NEW YORK, June 25.—For the first time in many years admission to a big league baseball game here was free today when the Brooklyn club of the Federal league gave a fans' day.

President Robert H. Ward had engaged a band for the game with the Chicago club this afternoon. The purpose of the novelty was to add to the popularity of the Brooklyn club.

The only other instance of a free game recalled here was years ago when the New York American league club failed to provide rain checks on a rainy day and lacking any means of identifying those who had paid admission, gave the public free admission on the following day.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

There's no gainsaying the fact that Manchester has lapsed into oblivion as a baseball proposition. The Queen City is sure enough the Rip Van Winkle of New England sporting towns. With a live club representing the city, two well known baseball men at its head and a fighting chance for the pennant Manchester has grown into a league like appreciation. The attempt of Messrs. Keedy and Kierman to move on to Greenfield is not to be wondered at. Manchester has had ample opportunity to support a good ball club and has failed signally to do so. Some cities are wonderful situations—for burying grounds.

Bill Meanly showed a flash of championship stuff at the tryouts in Boston Saturday when he cracked the existing record for the 440 yards hurdles. At the national championships last year in Baltimore Meanly demonstrated that he was the greatest hurdler in the country at this distance by putting up a new American record. His time Saturday was two seconds faster than the world's record held by Anderson of England but there is a grave question as to eligibility owing to a mixup by the officials. It's a pretty tough thing to have a group of careless officials rob one of the world's record. Meanly won the century, and 220 yards hurdles in this city a year or so ago.

Tommy Halpin was once more forced to take the dust of the Hector Mercader Saturday. The Fenian scamp came in a winner in the quarter-mile with Halpin close to his heels. The friends of the B. A. middle distance crack were hoping for a Halpin victory, but could not expect Mercader's wonderful running in the intercollegiate this year.

Edouard Fabre, the crack Canadian distance runner who has captured everything in sight this season, including the ten-mile run in this city on Memorial day, is training in the city for his 12-mile grid against Cliff Horne of Haverhill on next Monday. Fabre won the 25-mile run at Montreal last Thursday, the biggest race run in the world in Canada, and considers that he can beat Horne without much difficulty. The Haverhill boy is liable to trip him up, however, if his legs are too much conduced and too little training.

Besides winning $20,000 in one fell swoop, Dario Resta earned a reputation for daring driving Saturday in the 500-mile Chicago speedway race which will be worth many times that amount to him in future guarantees. It is thought that his record made Saturday will stand for a long time. Resta's time was 5:07.26.

The White Sox keep on winning just the same. Sundays and holidays make no difference to the leaders of the American league. Chicago won from St. Louis yesterday when Eddie Collins batted out a long triple with three men on the paths. Edward has proved a great benefactor to the white nosed gentry of Consistency this year.

That modified marathon which will be run off Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Sacred Heart parish is attracting considerable attention from local distance runners. Over 20 entries have already been received for the grail from Belle Grove to the Moore street grounds. At the conclusion of the long run other athletic events will be held.

A new baseball record was established yesterday at Burlington, in Burlington and Keokuk. Central association clubs, played 22 innings to a scoreless tie. The clubs confined itself to a single pitcher and only 13 hits were made by both teams; 31 batters faltered and fell by the strikeout route. The longest previous game without a score was that between Portland and Oakland of the Pacific Coast league in 1910. These two clubs traveled 18 innings without a run.

Norman Tabor, the former Brown miller, who gave John Paul Jones such a close rub that the former Cornellian established a new American record for the distance, came close to setting up a new mark himself Saturday at the tryouts at the stadium. Abel Kiviat was outdistanced by some 10 yards. If the New Yorker had been in better form and pushed Tabor a new world's record might have been made.

Poor Ty Cobb has fallen below the 400 mark in his batting. Cobb's bat is reasonably good, but he has been the great tyro has scored 66 runs and stolen 47 bases. Unless he suffers an injury Cobb ought to establish new figures in runs scored and stolen bases.

Turn fast baseball is provided, and surely every red-blooded American loves the diamond sport. Now would be the proper time to start things going, and make it plain to the outside world and the other cities in the league, especially that the league is everything that has been claimed for it—a live city. Any city with a population of 80,000 people—which is alive should support a league ball club—Manchester Union.

Robinson has been adopted by Miltonaire Hickey of Shrewsbury and will play against Marlboro Saturday. He will be given a job on the team during the week and then play on Saturday—Fitchburg Sentinel.

To substantiate the argument that the pitching generally in the New England league this season is of far better quality than in the past, we need only to refer to the small number of 300 hitters in the league up to date and the number of shut-out games which have been recorded by the artists so far.

Only two men in the league—Farrell of Portland, and Warner of Lawrence are in the 300 column. Now comes a pitcher with a percentage of 378 and Warner with a mark of 358. The few others who are still included in the honor rolls are barely holding on. A third and the one game may throw any of them out of the select circle.

All this is due to the high quality of pitching that the fans are being shown in all the New England leagues. The next being Lewiston and Lynn twirlers who have four each. Portland has been blanked only once this season, and Lawrence and Lewiston each have failed to score twice.

The following table shows how many times each club has been blanked, in the second column:

Lawrence	11
Lewiston	4
Portland	2
Manchester	3
Lynn	4
Fitchburg	3

The number of shut-out games, having four to his credit, and George Shears of the local club has three, also Rettig of Lewiston. Barron of Lawrence, Smith of Manchester, Carl Williams of Lynn, Dunning of Lynn, Mulrean of Fitchburg and More of Portland each have two shut-out games to their credit, and the others in the league who have pitched one shut-out game are: Zieser of Lowell, Thompson of Lawrence, Pearson of Lawrence, Turner of Worcester, and Peter of Fitchburg. Schwartz of Lewiston, Silne of Manchester, Johnson of Worcester and Watkins of Portland—Lawrence Telegram.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Harry Grant, who established a new non-stop record for driving the 500-mile automobile derby Saturday without a stop, was crowned out of fourth place Saturday when the official time was made public.

Earl Cooper, who had been credited with fifth place in the first reports, took fourth, his official time being five hours, 15 minutes, 59.15-second. Grant, who holds first place, finished in 5:11:15-160.

The official time for Dario Resta, the winner, was 5:07.26.

DIAMOND DAZZLES
The fans at Worcester refuse to turn out to see the N. E. league games. On Wednesday there was but a handful of people at Boulevard park. A grammar school game attracted all of the fans. The Worcester team was the loser of the game. Perhaps Jesse will get him out in uniform with his brothers in order to attract the fans—Lynn News.

Happy Hogan, the Los Angeles baseball leader, whose untimely death is mourned by the entire baseball world, was one of the best figures of the game. He was one of those merry, good fellows, a fiery, quick-witted, hot tempered, easy-going fellow, and when he was caught in a misfortune to lose an eye and wore a glass one.

One day he was catching at Los Angeles and engaged in a long continued "chewing match" with the umpire, who was having a bad day on balls and strikes. Happy was helping him as much as possible to get worse, kicking on everything.

Finally, the exasperated umpire warned him. Happy subsided and for half an inning said not a word. Then the pitcher cut the corner of the plate with a fast ball.

"Ball," yelled the umpire.

Happy said not a word. He turned slowly, removed his mask, took out his glass eye and handed it to the umpire.

The attendance here has been anything but up to the desired standard. But we are not alone in this respect. For major and minor leagues alike are working under a strain. A league club is the best possible advertising medium for any city and local business men and city officials should realize this, and lend every aid to keep Manchester on the baseball map. With a league to be the corner stone over are reading of Manchester daily, whereas without such an asset this country-wide advertising is lost. And it's the cheapest sort of advertising for any city and local business men all that is needed to bring it. In re-

LIQUOR AT A PICNIC

CHELMSFORD CONSTABLE MADE AN ARREST—DEFENDANT FINED $50—OTHER CASES

Officer Herbert Richardson of the Chelmsford police attended the annual outing of Lowell City Lodge, No. 457, I. O. B. A., held yesterday at Crystal Lake, North Chelmsford, without invitation, and broke up the day's festivities by arresting one of the promoters, Max Solomon of this city, charged with the illegal sale of liquor. It is also alleged that Mr. Richardson seized eight cases of beer.

Over 200 members and friends of the lodge assembled at the grounds yesterday to participate in the entertainment afforded by the committee in charge. Before the program had gotten underway, however, Constable Richardson suddenly appeared on the scene and prevented a continuance of the observance by a raid and arrest. It is claimed that some of the picnicers held checks with which they secured the liquor.

Solomon was arraigned in the local police court this forenoon and through his counsel, A. S. Goldman, entered a plea of nolo which was accepted by the court. The minimum fine of $50 was then imposed and paid by the defendant.

Assault on Child
Harold Wilkins, a lad of 18 years, pleaded guilty to assault and battery upon three-year-old Joseph Edward LeMay. Both parties live in Dracut and during a dispute recently Wilkins threw a stone at a wagon which struck the child, one of the occupants, under the right eye, leaving an ugly looking wound. A fine of $20 was imposed and Wilkins was given one month to make the payment.

Disturbance on Car
A disturbance on a Tewksbury car in which Arthur Abrahamson, Andrew Bergstrom of Olaf Johnson were implicated, resulted in the appearance of the trio in court charged with drunkenness. According to the testimony of Police Officer Farmer and others, the three defendants created a general disturbance by bothering the passengers and making a nuisance of themselves. The men said they were employed in Graniteville as stone cutters. Each paid a fine of $10.

Christos Anastos and Ellen Johnson were adjudged guilty of statutory offense and each was ordered to pay a fine of $15. Attorney George F. Toye appeared for the woman.

Drunken Offenders
There was another big array of drunken offenders brought before Judge Enright in police court this forenoon despite the fact that 11 men making their first appearance were released by Probation Officer Slattery.

Ernest Levesque made his fourth appearance within a year though last October in various institutions for the crime. He received a three months sentence to the Lowell jail this forenoon. Patrick P. Crogan was complained of by his wife for drunkenness and abuse. It being his fourth appearance, he was committed to the house of correction for five months and appealed. Frank J. O'Brien, arrested on a capias for failing to pay a $15 fine, made a plea for an extension of time, offering as an excuse that he lost his job in a local factory the week after the fine was imposed. Judge Enright gave him two more weeks to report favorably to the probation officer. Sixteen other defendants were disposed of with suspended sentences and small fines.

Cases of Larceny
A young girl pleaded guilty to a complaint charging her with the larceny of $3.59 from M. A. Doners of 31 Ash street. Inspector Walsh, who made the arrest, told the court that the defendant visited Mrs. Doners on Saturday afternoon and when leaving took the money which was in a bag on the table. The woman asked for leniency and at the recommendation of Deputy Downey she was placed on probation for one year.

Drunkenness and larceny of $1.55 from John Paddock were the complaints preferred against Antoine Kokaski, who entered a plea of guilty to each. It is alleged that the defendant, while under the influence of liquor, entered Paddock's room and took the money from a closet. A fine of $10 was imposed and Kokaski was given one week to make the payment.

Elmer H. Linsford, charged that he was guilty of a charge of being a common drunkard though his divorced wife and another lady testified that they had seen him under the influence of liquor many times during the past few months. His case was continued until Thursday for further investigation.

HUERTA ARRESTED

Mexico from the territory of the United States were received today by the department of justice.

Although Generals Huerta and Orozco were released on bond they will be kept under surveillance by border agents of the department of justice. Just what evidence has been gathered against the former dictator and his associates has not been disclosed, but it is understood to relate mostly to alleged recruiting of Mexicans on American territory.

Officials at the state department declined to say whether the detention of Huerta, in effect, any contemplated counter-revolution movement was a part of the Washington government's plan for compelling a solution by the Carranza, Villa and Zapata factions now in the field.

his trip to Cornish, N. H. It is unlikely that there will be any new steps in the government's policy toward Mexico.

In fact, while there is still a delicate situation with Germany, it is said in well-informed quarters that positive action toward the United States in the Mexican situation was unlikely.

The American government will give the warring factions more time to come to an agreement, in the meantime, it is believed, preventing Huerta and others from complicating the situation, and exerting pressure for the branches of the original constitutional party to come to an agreement, on a government that may be accorded recognition.

RELEASED ON BONDS

EL PASO, Tex., June 28.—The arrest of Generals Victoriano Huerta and Pascual Orozco here last night on charges of violating the neutrality laws of the United States by attempting to set on foot an armed expedition overhauled all other developments in the Mexican situation today. It has forced the abandonment, temporarily at least, government officials believe, of any attempt to launch a new revolutionary movement in Mexico. Huerta was released on $15,000 bonds and Orozco on half that sum. It is understood that adherents of the former president of Mexico were prepared to furnish surety greatly in excess of the amount fixed.

With the former generals at liberty, Mexican and American officials were watching developments among their adherents. Apparently the tendency of other factional leaders was to await the next movement of their opponents. Despite the declaration of Huerta, that he would never enter Mexico again at the head of an armed force and would not return to his country until peace had been restored, federal officials did not relax their vigilance in watching the movements of the former president. A large crowd that gathered at his daughter's home continued to shout "vivas" for Huerta until long after midnight.

As to the legal phases of Huerta's arrest, there was no action looked for until July 1, the date set for the Huerta-Orozco hearing.

General Huerta, en route to El Paso, left an El Paso and Southwestern train at Newman, N. M., intending to complete the 20-mile trip by automobile with Orozco and Major Luis Fuentes. Instead, the former president was invited to accompany United States officials to the federal building for a conference with representatives of the department of justice. The trip to the city was made under escort of the 15th United States cavalry under Col. Geo. H. Morgan. Huerta made no objection.

News of Huerta's arrival spread rapidly and so great a crowd gathered around the federal building that on request of Mayor Lea federal and military officials agreed to take the two officers to Fort Bliss, pending action by the department of justice representatives. Both were released and Huerta in conference with newspapermen expressed his appreciation of the courtesy shown him.

NOT IN NEED OF FOOD

NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—Vera Cruz is not in need of food, according to a lengthy cablegram received here from General Carranza's foreign minister. The official branded as false the reports of a food shortage in the city. The 40 tons of corn and beans unloaded at Vera Cruz by the American transport Buford have not been touched, the message said.

NOTE SENT TO CHINA AND JAPAN
ON SO-CALLED OPEN DOOR POLICY

PEKING, June 28, 12:15 p. m.—Warning that the United States would not recognize any agreement between China and Japan which impaired American rights in China or endangered the so-called "open door" policy, was conveyed to the governments of both China and Japan in an identical note from Washington which was delivered about May 15. The notes were handed to the foreign offices of both countries a week after China had acceded to the demands contained in the Japanese ultimatum insisting upon concessions from the former nation.

A. G. POLLARD CO'S CLERKS

They Will Hold Their Annual Outing at Nantasket Beach on Thursday, July 15

The annual outing of the clerks employed at the A. G. Pollard Co., will be held on Thursday, July 15, "Merchants' day," and the affair promises to be even more successful than the outings held in former years. Special cars will be boarded on that day, and the objective point of the gathering will be Nantasket beach where a program replete with enjoyment will be carried out. The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of Paul A. Doherty, Harold Monier and Charles A. Delaronde, and these gentlemen are lending all their spare time and efforts to make the event an unprecedented success. Yesterday, Messrs. Doherty and Monier visited the resort to make arrangements for feeding the party, and according to the report made by them to a Sun representative this morning the clerks will be treated to a repast fit for kings. A number of innovations have been planned and they will be announced later.

ZIONISTS MEET

Brandeis Hailed as Leader of All Jews at Convention

BOSTON, June 28.—Every speaker won applause at the joint opening session of the Zionist convention in Ford hall, yesterday morning, because each made some mention of Louis D. Brandeis. Punditism broke loose when one speaker hailed him as the future leader of all Jews.

Later, when Brandeis rose to speak, Chairman Jacob de Haas, a Jewish tattoo with his gavel. For several minutes the audience forgot everything but cheers for Brandeis and the singing of the Jewish national song, and only with difficulty was order restored. Speaking of the relief work in Palestine, made necessary by the present war, Mr. Brandeis, as chairman of the provisional Zionist committee, paid tribute to the aid received from United States officials, and declared that Zionists and Americans alike are striving for the principles of brotherhood, democracy, social justice and liberty.

Rabbi H. H. Rubenowitz, chairman, opened the meeting, taking as his text, the words from Proverbs: "Without a Vision a People Perisheth." He said that while the Jews have had their Rothschilds and their Montefiores, the program of endeavor has not been sufficiently broad. He argued that the Zionist movement supplies all that has been lacking for its program not only includes economic advance, but a noble, spiritual culture, is in accord with the traditions of the race, and insists that the great passions, hopes and yearnings shall be expressed in the Hebrew language.

Capt. Coady brought the regrets of Gov. Walsh that important engagements called him to a neighboring state. In the name of the governor, the captain presented the greetings of the commonwealth, declared himself particularly impressed with the feminine representation, and concluded: "If the governor were present, I don't know but what he might consider entering into the matrimonial estate."

E. J. Slattery, of Mayor Curley's staff, brought the regrets of the mayor, that he was on his way to San Francisco, and likened the cause of Zionism to that of home rule for Ireland, which aroused the audience to a demonstration, and Mr. Brandeis rose and shook hands with the speaker at the close.

Judge Julian W. Mack of Chicago declared there is no incompatibility between Zionism and patriotic Americanism. "You will become a better American if you proclaim yourself a Zionist," he declared.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, speaking as a rabbi, declared that there is room in the same spirit which has brought about the European war, and he said the Jews are rendering service on the battlefields of Europe to whichever nation they happened to be a part. "A distinguished American Jew has said that the Zionist movement is a mistake, because it is a manifestation of the same spirit which has brought about the European war," he exclaimed. Dr. Wise passionately declared it is the right and duty of every Jew to live. "We know we are not jinxes. We know we are a people."

Habbi Meyer Berlin spoke in Yiddish as a Jewish Jew, urging the breadth of the movement and its prime importance. This is his fifth Zionist convention; he has attended four in other parts of the world. Miss Leon spoke of the work of the Hadassah, a Jewish society of women which supports nurses in Palestine.

Louis D. Brandeis was given an ovation. He declared the great assembly of those who had succeeded in gaining entrance and those who had tried unsuccessfully constitute a very large part of Jews of the state, and therefore afford the best of evidence as to the great interest taken generally in the Zionist movement, which is to lead to the solution of the Jewish problem, because it will make possible the ending of misery. He urged his hearers to bind themselves in organizations, "for only by action can they be true to themselves, to their race, to the American government, and to the principles they represent—social justice, democracy and liberty."

BANQUET TONIGHT

BOSTON, June 28.—Separate conventions of the various Zionist organizations meeting here were begun today. The first body to come together was the Federation of American Zionists.

Other associations to meet today were the Hadassah, the women's Zionist society, and the Order of the Sons of Zion.

A joint banquet will be held tonight.

Catholic Sunday School Presents a Parson and Chair to Rev. James C. Redican, Who Retires as Director

BOSTON, June 28.—The Chinese Catholic Sunday school, which meets at 22 Harvard street, was surprised yesterday afternoon to learn that Cardinal O'Connell had relieved Rev. James C. Redican, who has been the director for six years, and assigned him to more important work in the Propagation of the Faith society. Rev. George Lee of St. James' church was appointed his successor.

At the close of the session the Chinese presented Fr. Redican with a leather reclining chair. Elmer Lee, a Cambridge landowner, and Thomas N. Devlin, senior English teacher, made the presentation speeches. Frs. Redican and Lee responded feelingly, and the latter afterward baptized Henry, Blanche and Mary Fen, children of Mr. and Mrs. Chin Fen of East Boston.

LOWELL HIGH GOLFER

PERCY PARKER COMPETES IN STATE JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP WHICH OPENED TODAY

BOSTON, June 28.—At Alhambra in Newtonville, today and on following days the future great golfers of this section will enjoy their annual tournament for state junior honors, while on Wednesday and Thursday, at the Brookline Country club, the annual open tournament of the Massachusetts Golf association will be played.

Last year, when the state junior championship was played and won at Oakley by Raymond Outmet, only 57 participated, but at least 20 more are expected to take up this time. George Kerrigan of Atlantic, brother to Tommy Kerrigan, the professional at the Dedham Country and Polo club; Percy Parker of Lowell High, Joe and Tom Lally and Walter Barhouse of Brookline High, George Reid of Milton, Neal Vainwright of Noble & Green, and M. P. Graham of Waltham High and Ray Manning of Woodland are among the young golfers of already proven ability who are entered. Young Outmet will not play this time.

In the qualifying round last year, Percy Parker, the Lowell High golfer, tied with James McAndrews of Boston. He declared the great assembly match play by George Kerrigan, after an exertion had been played. Kerrigan qualified last year with 89, and later being a strong contender for honors was put out of the running by Raymond Outmet in the third round.

In defending his title as state champion Wallaston will have pitted against him one of the best fields of amateurs and pros in this country, including Tom McNamee, who finished second place in the recent United States Open championship. Alec Ross of Braintree, Orrin Terry of Belmont, runner-up to Brady last year at Belmont; Pat Doyle of Myopia, Tommy Kerrigan of Dedham, Charlie Burgess of Woodland, J. F. Mulcahy of Wellesley, Ralph Thomas of Framingham, and a number of others.

In the list of outside entries the names of Alec and MacDonald Smith, Wilfrid Reid, Louis Teller, and A. J. Anderson of Boulogne, France, appear. Of the amateurs entered for this event the most promising is Francis Outmet. The Country club links will be open for practice today and Tuesday for those who have entered for the tournament.

FORMER FRENCH TEACHER

BRO. GONZALVUS IS OFFICIAL INTERPRETER IN THE WAR DEPT.—SERVED IN TRENCHES

Edmond Glonet, a graduate of St. Joseph's college, this city, and residing at 14 Spaulding street, received a postal card from Bro. Gonzalvus, his former teacher, who is now fighting under the colors of France in the great European conflict.

The brother states he has seen considerable fighting since he left Lowell, and had been at the front for several months until a few weeks ago when he was transferred to Havre, France, where he is acting as official French and English interpreter for the British and French armies. The brother is enjoying the best of health and states he has been very fortunate, for although some of his comrades on the battlefield have been killed, he never received the slightest injury. He likes his new position and wishes to be remembered to his club links, as well as to his family.

Bro. Gonzalvus was stationed in Lowell as a teacher at St. Joseph's college and during his stay in this city made a host of friends, who will be pleased to learn he has been transferred from the battlefield to a government position in which there is nearly so much risk as in fighting in the trenches.

A deputation of Russian women have asked permission from the government to form a volunteer legion to serve as regular soldiers. These women assert that they are ready to assume all military duties except actual engagement in battle and are particularly desirous of being employed for patrol service.

FOUR DROWNED

Two at Middleton, One at Amherst, N. H., One at Holyoke

MIDDLETON, June 28.—Frank G. Farrington, aged 48, of 206 Maple street, Danvers, and James L. Higgins, aged 45, of 12 Main street, Peabody, were drowned in Meadow pond, three miles from Middleton square, late Saturday. The authorities learned of the double fatality at 1:30 yesterday morning when a companion of the victims, Harry M. Farnum of Lynn, finally reached the police station, after tramping from the almost inaccessible pond, and told his story.

The bodies were recovered yesterday. The men were fishing in the pond, which is little more than a mudhole, up to a late hour Saturday afternoon. While approaching the shore, near sunset, the boat overturned and after a desperate struggle Farnum finally reached shore.

He told the police that after he swam ashore he turned and saw Higgins disappear, but Farrington was still clinging to the boat. Farnum swam back to his comrades and, finding that he could not save him, was forced to struggle to free himself from the drowning man. He then swam to the shore, where he lay exhausted two hours.

He then started for help and received aid at the Durkee farm, near the Boxford line. Early yesterday morning word came from the farm that the bodies of the two men had been returned to the pond and Farrington's body was located.

Chief of Police Michael H. Grady and Patrolman Thomas H. Grady of Peabody went to the scene, and with grapple irons succeeded in recovering the body of Higgins.

Andrew Peterson of Holyoke Steps Into Hole While Bathing in Connecticut River and Drowns

HOLYOKE, June 28.—Andrew Peterson, 195 Main street was drowned in the Connecticut river yesterday while bathing near the island above the dam.

A companion warned him, but Peterson paid no attention and stepped into a deep hole and was drowned before help could reach him. He leaves a son, Carl of Syracuse, N. Y., a well-known sprinter and athlete, and two daughters in Springfield.

HENRY SULLIVAN'S SWIM

HE SWAM 10 MILES IN MERRIMACK YESTERDAY—TRAINING FOR THE EVENT WILL START ON JULY 16

Henry Sullivan, the Lowell boy who is to swim Sam Richards, the Boston marvel, from Nantasket beach to Provincetown on Aug. 21, will start to train July 16, during his annual vacation period. At the present time three Boston clubs have offered him the use of their quarters during the training period, undoubtedly with the idea of getting him to swim under their colors, but "Sully," who is a firm believer in the slogan "trade at home," will enter the water, flying the colors of the C. Y. M. C. of this city, or none at all. During the past two weeks Sullivan has done a lot of fresh water swimming, and yesterday he took a jaunt up the Merrimack for a distance of ten miles. In the coming match he feels confident of breaking the breast stroke long distance swimming record, which stands at the present time at little over 13 miles, and if either Richards or he accomplish the task of swimming the full distance of 50 miles, they will break the world's record for time spent in the water, which is 23 hours and some minutes. A host of local admirers have expressed the intention of accompanying the local lad on the swim, and a special steamer will be chartered for their convenience.

AUTO PLUNGED INTO CANAL; TWO KILLED

TURNERS FALLS, June 28.—An automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Miller were returning to their home in Athol after a trip through the Berkshires plunged into a canal here today. Mr. Miller was drowned and Mrs. Miller, who was rescued from the water by her son, E. W. Miller, principal of the high school at Maynard, Mass., died of shock a few hours after the accident. The younger Miller and Miss Edna Locke of Winchester, Mass., who were also in the car, were not injured.

The machine, operated by Miss Locke, had crossed the high suspension bridge over the Connecticut river and had entered a bridge over a canal supplying water power to the factories on the river bank. At this point considerable construction work was in process and the guard rail of the bridge was missing. In the darkness of the early morning the automobile shot over the side of the bridge into the water. The elder Miller was pinned beneath the car and could not extricate himself.

CANADIAN FOUNDRYMAN GETS CONTRACT IN RUSSIA—RESENTS ENGLAND'S EFFORTS TO GET LABOR

NEW YORK, June 28.—Wilson W. Butler, vice president of the Canadian Steel Foundries, Ltd., and the Canadian Car & Foundry Co., who arrived here yesterday from Liverpool on the steamship Philadelphia, declared that while abroad he closed a contract in Petrograd for 5,000,000 artillery shells, which he asserted is one of the largest foreign-made munitions. The shells will be delivered to the order of the Russian government Canadian ports. While in England Mr. Butler conferred with the British committee, an advisory organization to the war department. He said he objected to England's efforts to draw upon Canada and other British colonies for a large supply of skilled labor.

HELD OPEN AIR SERVICE

MAN FROM MONTANA ADDRESSES FIRST IN SERIES OF OPEN AIR MEETINGS ON COMMON

Rev. Lawrence A. Wilson of Butte, Mont., was the speaker at the first of a series of Sunday afternoon services, under the auspices of the Federation of Churches on the South common yesterday afternoon. "Out in Butte," said Mr. Wilson, "men have accumulated vast fortunes. Something like $35,000,000 in gold nuggets have been dug up around there. They're not doing it now, but they have done it. And, out there, as perhaps, right here, there are men who live for one thing—the getting together of money. They build big houses and live in them and imagine that they measure up to the importance of their mansions. And out there, there are women, who, because they wear jewels, imagine they are jewels, also. But I'm going to tell you that the men out there in the big houses haven't bought one thing. They have not appreciated the fact that what's the matter with them is their failure to lead Christian lives. They haven't got happiness.

"It isn't the size of the house, it is what's in the heart. And there are men and women in the east, just as in the west, who are yearning to know something of Jesus Christ, and so we are going to try to bring it to them. They must get in the right relationship to God. "Another point about many of those who live in Butte is that they have severed their relationships with those who were most dear to them. Coming from all parts of the earth they have left behind them dear mothers and fathers. Now it is not a good thing to part the relationships that mean the most in life. I know boys do not like to be told that they are tied to their mothers' apron strings. But, after all I have known, the tying to mother's apron strings 30 times out of 100 produces wonderfully good effects. For who is there from whom we can get so much of real worth as from our mothers? Stick to the good relationships, don't sunder them. "Some men go to church through selfish motives. They want something, and when they get it they cut out of the church. That kind of Christianity is the direct antithesis to the real Christianity. Some men who are hungry look upon Christianity differ-

PRESIDENT UP EARLY

TOOK MOTOR RIDE OF 20 MILES FOR GAME OF GOLF AT HANOVER COUNTRY CLUB

CORNISH, N. H., June 28.—President Wilson settled down today to the enjoyment of his brief vacation. He was up early, and after breakfast took a motor ride of 20 miles for a game of golf on the links of the Hanover Country club. The drive took him between towering hills where the cool bracing air put him in good condition for the game.

As Mr. Wilson, accompanied by Dr. Cary T. Grayson, rode into Hanover, he was recognized by many townspeople as well as by students attending the Dartmouth college summer school. He acknowledged their greetings by smiling and raising his cap. He was driven immediately to the golf club, and a few minutes later was off on the nine-hole course. The president planned to devote most of the afternoon in attending to official business which has accumulated at the "Summer White House." The petition served to Secretary Lansing by New York importers last week for the assistance of the American government in getting goods out of Rotterdam and other neutral ports abroad will be considered by the president in the preparation of the note to Great Britain, which will be sent to London soon after his return to Washington.

FELL FROM FREIGHT CAR Little Thomas McKenna of Concord street, the 5 year old son of Thomas McKenna, a well known employee of the American Hide and Leather Co., toppled off a freight car in the rear of the plant of the American Hide and Leather Co., yesterday afternoon and sustained a fractured left wrist. He was taken to his home in Concord street and later to St. John's hospital on orders of Dr. J. R. Loughran, who was called in, and the injured member was set.

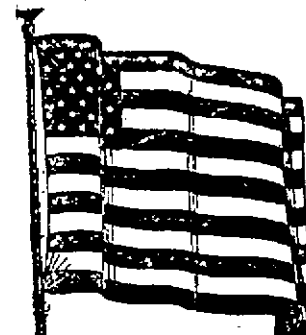

A welcome oasis in the summer complaint desert, Dr. J. R. Loughran, who was called in, and the injured member was set.

SETTING THE DINNER TABLE

"I plan to give a formal dinner for my girl cousin who is visiting me," quoth Marjorie, "and I know you will help me by some hints on how to arrange the table, won't you Marle?" "Indeed I will," replied the resourceful French maid. "The planning and the giving of a dinner is not much more difficult than the serving of a luncheon. If the hostess will bear certain things in mind.

"Though you may prepare the dinner yourself it is well to get someone to help you serve it. It is very hard for the housekeeper to set the table alone, give the last touches, and to take dishes, and be ready to receive her guests when they arrive.

"It is well to set and decorate the table late in the afternoon instead of delaying this important task until you are in the midst of preparing a meal. Plenty of time and attention should be given to this work. The tablecloth should be spotlessly white and ironed with exquisite care. In the centre of the table is the lace centerpiece or a lace runner laid across the table. The table decoration is always laid right in the centre.

"Each plate is provided with a service plate that is kept as the under plate throughout the meal. The silver, bread plates and napkins are placed as for a formal luncheon. There is one difference and that is the dinner napkins are of a larger size.

are placed at the right. It is only when the last touches are given that the water glasses are filled and the candles are lighted. Place cards at each plate you will find of great assistance if you have many guests."

Wearing shoes which are built for service, a broad brimmed felt hat slouching about her face, heavy leather leggings and cowhide cuffs decorated with copper braids and a heavy denim skirt cut half way between the knee and ankle is the costume worn by Miss Frankie Lilly, aged 20, who drives a team every day in the Oklahoma oil fields.

SELECTMAN PARK OF CHELMSFORD SUFFERS BIG LOSS BY FIRE—CAUSE UNKNOWN

A disastrous fire occurred in Chelmsford about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the house and barn of Selectman A. Heady Park, together with considerable household furniture, wagons, tools, harnesses and other implements, were destroyed. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Smoke was discovered issuing from the barn by Fire Observer Hammond of the Robin Hill observatory and he sent an alarm to Arnold C. Perham of the Chelmsford fire department. Before the arrival of the fire fighters the barn had been ruined and the dwelling was enveloped in flames. The firemen put their efforts into saving the all of the house, a nearby garage and a dwelling owned by Howard Melvin, which was also in danger.

Fire in Garage

Fire in the City Hall garage, Mark McCann proprietor, caused a telephone alarm at 3:25 o'clock last evening, followed by a bell alarm from box 12, corner of Moody and Worthen streets. The fire started from the back of the engine of a motorcycle and a small quantity of gasoline became ignited. The quick response of members of Hose 8, followed by other fire apparatus, prevented the blaze from spreading and little damage resulted.

Damaged by Fire

A motorcycle owned by Henry Wilcox of 23 Ames street was badly damaged by fire on South street early yesterday morning. An alarm from box 215 at 12:52 o'clock called out a portion of the fire department and, though the cause of the fire was not known, a quantity of gasoline was quenched the flames and saved part of the frame. The fire probably started from back-firing.

Roof Caught Fire

Box 6 at 10:45 o'clock yesterday forenoon was for a fire on the roof of a house on Lakewood avenue, opposite Front street. No damage. Another garage fire occurred late Saturday night in the establishment of John J. Hogan on Varnum avenue. The damage was slight.

Rogers Street Dump

LOWELL INCLUDED IN CITIES WHERE ROAD WORK IS BEING DONE BY HIGHWAY COMMISSION

More than 250 cities and towns in all parts of Massachusetts will benefit by the road work which is either in process of construction or about to be begun by the state highway commission. There are almost 350 different pieces of road work, varying in length from sections of two miles or longer to strips of only a few rods. This work represents an expenditure of more than $900,000, which is the largest part of the allotment for state and other highways to be added to Massachusetts' system of improved roads this season.

There still remains to be allotted some money from the general appropriation for new state highways, but the great bulk of the work has already been laid out. This does not include such part as the state highway commission may spend this year of the $2,500,000 provided by a special act of the legislature for the construction of new state roads in the western counties.

About $600,000 of the $747,164.85 which the commission had available for new standard state highways has been allotted in 50 cities and towns. The $185,000 from the motor vehicle fees fund which the commission can spend on through roads which are not state highways has been allotted in 134 towns.

The $50,000 available under the Small Towns act for construction work in towns contributing nothing will be divided among 65 towns; while 25 towns will benefit from the $50,000 for small towns of more than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money. A third $50,000 set aside for towns of less than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money, will be spread over 69 towns.

One of the largest and most important pieces of state road being constructed this year in this part of the state is in Randolph, on the direct route between this city and Brockton. It is of concrete and 1 1/2 miles in length. An important addition of similar material is being made in North Andover, on the Lawrence-Salem route, while in Methuen, on the Lowell-Lawrence route, a 2 1/2-mile stretch of bituminous macadam is being built.

ARE FIGHTING FURIOUSLY

GERMANS ARE SEEKING TO APPROACH STRONGLY FORTIFIED TOWN OF VERDUN

PARIS, June 28, 6:20 a. m.—The Germans, in fighting furiously at Bagatelle and in the trenches of Calonne, are seeking to approach the strongly fortified town of Verdun, according to Lieut. Col. Neuse, military critic of the Petit Parisien. He believes they are seeking to gain control of the railroad from Chalons to Saint Menesboul. While they are aiming at Verdun from two directions, the critic believes the efforts of their army will prove futile.

TO KEEP BALKANS OUT

DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG AND HERR VON JAGOW VISIT VIENNA

FRANKFURT, Germany, via London, June 28, 11 a. m.—The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, who has close relations with the foreign office, surmises that one purpose of the visit of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister von Jagow to Vienna is to discuss what steps may be taken to counteract the efforts of the entente powers to induce the Balkan states to join them in the war.

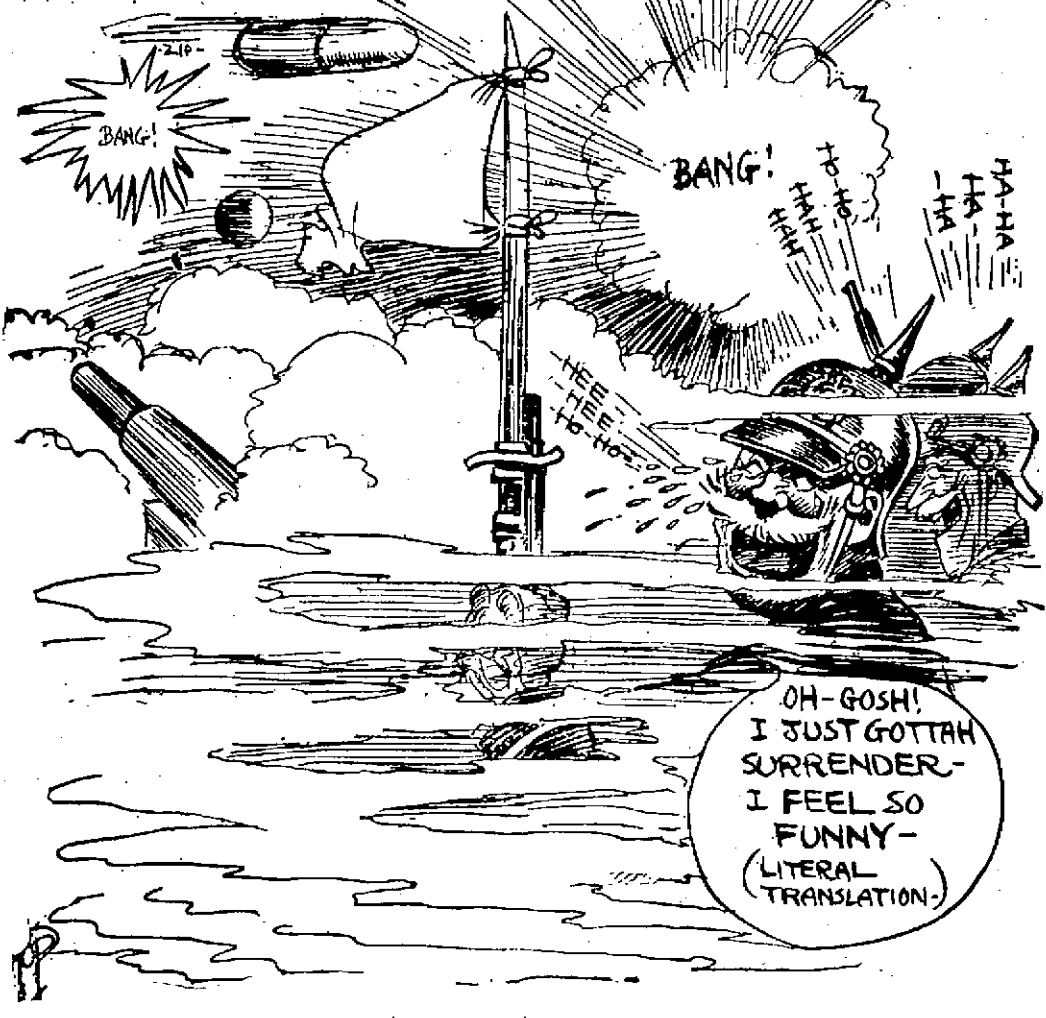

A despatch from Vienna yesterday stated that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg and Herr von Jagow had arrived there for conference with Chancellor Franz Joseph and the foreign minister of Austria-Hungary.

ST. JOHN'S T. A. SOCIETY USE TOO MUCH LIQUOR

OUTING AT McCABE'S FIELD SATURDAY A GREAT SUCCESS—SPORTS AND DANCING

The low hanging clouds and the rain which followed did not serve to dampen the enthusiasm of those who attended the field day conducted by St. John's T. A. society of North Chelmsford at McCabe's field on Saturday afternoon, and the event proved even more enjoyable than similar events in past years. The non-appearance of the Exeter A. C. for its baseball encounter with the St. John's was however a disappointment for the fans who anticipated a more or less exciting game. This was replaced by a game against a picked up nine, and St. John's had an easy time in winning. The other sports included a boys' 100 yards race which was won by Joseph Donovan with Harold Tucker second; and another for younger lads with John Boyle as the winner and Harry Miner second. The relay race between Michael Scollan and Frank Connors of Lowell vs. St. John's track team was won by St. John's after a most exciting grind. This proved one of the best features on the sport program.

In the evening dancing was held in St. John's hall with Marjorie's Crescent orchestra discoursing pleasing music. There was a large attendance, and the dance numbers and refreshments which were served later in the evening were enjoyed by all. The affair, was in charge of a committee headed by Michael Scollan.

LOST FOR FIVE HOURS

PRES. WILSON MISSES WAY IN HILLS OF VERMONT—AUTOS TRAVERSE COW PATHS IN RAIN

WINDSOR, Vt., June 25.—President Wilson and members of his family, out for an afternoon automobile ride, became lost yesterday in the foothills of the Green mountains, and for nearly five hours were riding through dense forests, up and down steep inclines, part of the time in a driving rain.

The drive took the presidential party over roads seldom traveled by automobiles, and the way at times narrowed to mere cowpaths and mountain trails.

The president was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Helen Woodruff Bones, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, and several secret service men. The chauffeur, who was driving the car, carried the party from Washington, and the president knew the country at least as well as any one with him. Apparently he enjoyed the experience and forgot entirely the cares of office he left behind him when he came here for a brief vacation. Several times the automobile was driven into "blind" roadways and had to be backed in order to proceed on its way. In one place the machine plowed down a steep hill in mud up to the hubs and in others it ran beside ravines with mountain streams far below.

The chauffeur, a careful driver, however, and at no time was the party in any danger.

COURTENAY GUILD CRITICISES REUNIONS OF HARVARD MEN—$3000 SPENT ON WINE

BOSTON, June 25.—Harvard graduates were criticised for spending so much for liquor at their class reunions by Courtenay Guild in an address at the Unitarian temperance meeting on the Charles street hall of Boston common yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Guild said the atrocities of the war in Europe were in a measure paralleled by the atrocities due to alcohol in this country, which he said claims thousands of victims daily and is one of the greatest foes of civilization.

"The rich and well-to-do people in this country do not seem to understand their responsibility in this matter," he said. "They seem to think that the whole problem of alcohol consists in not getting drunk."

"There were over 1000 men at the Harvard class reunions last Wednesday evening, and I understand that one class at least allowed $7 a plate for wine. Taking $3 as a conservative estimate, this makes $3000 for wine alone in one evening—enough to support 100 starving Belgian babies for 100 days. I want to see the rich man become civilized. He has got a long way to go yet about liquor."

DRAMATIC AIR DUEL

LONDON, June 28, 10:54 a. m.—A dramatic air duel in which a British aeroplane, reconnoitering over the Belgian town of Poelcapelle at a height of 4000 feet, met and engaged a large German biplane which had double engines and propellers, is described by the eye-witness at the British army headquarters in a narrative made public today by the official press bureau. He writes:

"The German machine first circled around ours, at the same time shooting a machine gun but, so far as known, not inflicting any damage. Then our observer fired 50 rounds in return at a range of less than 200 yards. It had some effect, for the hostile biplane was seen to waver and after more shots were exchanged, the enemy's aeroplane then dived to a level of 2000 feet, where it again flattened its course flying slowly and erratically.

"Under heavy anti-aircraft fire from below our pilot turned toward our line to complete his reconnaissance. When his machine was hit he decided to make for home, but the petrol tank had been pierced, and as the aeroplane glided downwards on a slant the petrol was set alight by the exhaust and ran blazing down the front of the body of the aeroplane, which traveled on to the accompaniment of a rattle of musketry as the unused rounds of machine gun ammunition exploded in the heat and the pilot's loaded revolver was discharged.

"The pilot, however, did not lose control, and the aeroplane proceeded steadily on a downward course. Before it had reached the ground a large part of the frame work had been destroyed. Even the hard wood blades of the propeller were burned so badly that the propeller ceased to revolve.

"When the machine finally landed back of our lines both officers had been severely burned and the pilot, climbing out of the blazing wreck, tripped over a wire stay and sprained his ankle. The few serviceable portions of the aeroplane were then collected and removed under the shrapnel of German guns."

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD LAST EVENING—DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO EIGHT PUPILS

There was a large attendance at the graduation exercises held at the Notre Dame de Lourdes parochial school in Middlesex street, last evening. An elaborate entertainment program consisting of comedy sketches, recitations and vocal selections was cleverly given by the pupils under the direction of the Gray Nuns of the Cross, who are in charge of the school, and diplomas were presented eight pupils. The program which was published in full in Saturday's issue of The Sun proved very pleasing and the large audience showed its appreciation of each number by prolonged applause.

At the close of the evening Rev. Leon Lamothe, O. M. I., pastor, addressed the graduates, complimenting them on their success and also extending the best wishes of the parish. The graduates were as follows: Misses Louella Coster, Alice Lebeault, Leonella Dion and Aurora Martin. Masters Alcide Soucy, Arthur Cormier, Leon Lorange and Edgar Martin. Penmanship awards were conferred upon Leon Dion and Aurora Martin.

EVELYN NESBIT THAW TO TESTIFY AT TRIAL

Will be Summoned by State—
sel Lost Point

NEW YORK, June 28.—Subpoena servers sent by Deputy Attorney General Frank A. Cook were at Chateaugay Lake, near Malone, N. Y., today to serve a summons upon Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to testify in the jury trial of the sanity of her husband, Harry K. Thaw.

Mr. Cook wants Mrs. Thaw to repeat to the jury the evidence she gave in the habeas corpus proceedings at White Plains in 1909, when she told of visiting Thaw at Matteawan and quoted him as saying: "When I get out of this place I suppose I shall have to kill you."

Among the witnesses ready to testify for Thaw in the hearing today were General Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H., and Dr. Charles P. Bancroft, superintendent of the New Hampshire hospital for the insane, both members of the lunacy commission appointed by the federal court in New Hampshire to examine Thaw when he was in that state.

They reported that Thaw was not then suffering from any of the forms of mental disease alleged by the prosecution at the time of his trials on a charge of murder.

Prior to the taking of testimony today, Justice Hendrick addressed the newspapermen and warned them that "the trial in this case in the newspaper has got to stop. He threatened with punishment for contempt of court any editor who published stories, outlining future evidence that might be presented.

Thaw's counsel lost a point at the outset today when Justice Hendrick decided in favor of the state argument as to whether the report of the federal commission, headed by General Streeter, on Thaw's sanity should be admitted in evidence. Upon this report Thaw was admitted to bail in New Hampshire.

The state contended that Federal Judge Aldrich, in appointing the commission had instructed the members to determine only whether Thaw would be a dangerous person to the community if admitted to bail. The state argued that the broad question of Thaw's sanity was not involved in the finding of the commission. The report was excluded, and Gen. Streeter was then called to the stand.

Escape From Matteawan

General Streeter described the commission's examination of Thaw. Thaw was asked, he said, to tell of his escape from Matteawan but was reluctant at first to do so. Thaw then drew a rough sketch of Matteawan and went into the details of the matter, describing life at Matteawan and telling of the various examinations that had been made of him to determine his sanity. Thaw had also related in detail the shooting of Stanford White and the circumstances that led up to it.

"Thaw said that immediately upon firing the pistol he realized he had done wrong," Gen. Streeter testified, refreshing his memory frequently from the report that had been excluded.

"During the interview," continued Gen. Streeter, "Thaw was calm and collected. He showed no enmity or resentment."

"Thaw," said the witness, "declared that he had deepest regret for the killing."

"How did Thaw impress you?" Gen. Streeter was asked.

"As being absolutely rational," was the reply.

to the right of the collector of taxes to sell property for non payment of taxes and, since the case of Cayley vs. Stiles et al., some of the parties interested have gone into the matter very thoroughly. The injunction to restrain the collector from selling his property as applied for by counsel for Mr. Cayley was denied, and among the cases cited is that of Greenwood vs. MacDonald, 153 Mass. 342 (1913), in which the following appears:

"The prompt and unembarrassed collection of taxes is so necessary for the support and operation of the government, and in our state the remedy at law for any wrong done in their assessment or collection is so plain, adequate and complete, that this court feels bound to adhere to its general rule, so long established, relating to bills in equity brought to restrain the collection of an ordinary tax or assessment, and to refuse to grant relief, leaving the party aggrieved to his remedy at law."

In the Cayley case the petitioner asked for the injunction on the ground that the city owed him more than the amount due on his property.

The city solicitor argued that if the collector could be restrained at any time and the case might not be determined until such time as would cause the tax lien to be lost and the collection of the tax be made impossible in case the tax payer is unable to respond to a judgment rendered in a suit brought for the collection of the tax. He said, in substance: "The case cannot stand on the ground of multiplicity of suits. Here there will be no multiplicity of suits in order to determine whether the city owes Cayley or Cayley owes the city. One suit brought by Cayley will determine the whole matter. Even if he should let his property be sold, and it should finally be decided in a suit brought by him that there is money due him from the city, he can redeem from the tax sales at any time within two years and the case might not be determined in such a case would be the payment of interest at 5 per cent. per annum and the cost of the tax sales, etc. But to avoid even this expense by paying his taxes and then fighting out the question of the city's liability to him in an action of law. But it may be determined that nothing is due Cayley from the city."

"To permit a disputed claim of a taxpayer against the city to serve as a ground for enjoining a tax sale would certainly interfere with the prompt and unembarrassed collection of taxes which is so necessary for the support and operation of the government."

The following which was claimed to have a direct bearing on the Cayley case is also from the Greenwood vs. MacDonald case and has particular reference to the question of multiplicity

sian Council of War at Front

Teutonic forces have pushed their way across the Dniester along the entire front, the German official statement shows, the strong resistance which the Russians have been offering them for some time having finally given way before the German assaults. Concurrently comes an admission by the Russians that they have withdrawn from the thirty mile. Bobrka-

Zurawna front, making it appear that the entire battle front in this territory will be shifted to the eastward. Such a shift would be in line with the expectation of military observers abroad, who have been predicting a Russian withdrawal from the Dniester and a re-enlistment of their armies for a stand on the river Bug.

FAVORABLE REPLY TO
U. S. NOTE TO GERMANY

State Department—Caused by
Dr. Gerhard's Visit

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A favorable reply from Germany to the last American note on submarine warfare is indicated in today's state department advices from Berlin.

The advices came from Ambassador Gerard and were notably the first of a definite nature received since the American note reached the German foreign office. The exact nature of the ambassador's message was not divulged for obvious reasons, and it did not become known whether he revealed any indication of the trend of the forthcoming German reply. The ambassador's despatch was of sufficient detail, however, to put officials in an optimistic attitude. It was communicated at once to President Wilson at the summer White House at Cornish, N. H.

Ambassador Gerard based his observations on the favorable effect which the visit of Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, emissary of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador here, had produced on officials of the German government.

Dr. Gerhard was understood by Ambassador Gerard to have reported that public opinion in the United States had been growing more and more favorable to Germany when the sinking of the Lusitania undid what had been accomplished. Gerhard made it clear, also, that the United States did not desire war but wanted a satisfactory reply to its representations.

German officials are sagacious, according to Ambassador Gerard's report, to give such an answer, but at the same time they have made it clear that Germany cannot make any concessions which would destroy the effectiveness of the submarine as a weapon. What the German government is endeavoring to do, it is understood, is to find some method by which Americans traveling on ships primarily used for passenger traffic shall be safe while the submarine continues to be used in attacking freight ships of belligerent nationality, carrying chiefly contraband.

Just what proposal Germany will make to accomplish that object, officials here cannot conjecture, but from the fact that Germany seems to be willing to safeguard the rights of Americans who travel on ships of any nationality, primarily engaged in passenger traffic, an adherence to the principles expressed in the American note—that non-combatants should be immune from attack—would seem, in the opinion of officials here, to be recognized.

No information had been received on what the attitude of Germany would be toward assuming liability of the loss of American lives on the Lusitania but the feeling prevails that if a satisfactory arrangement can be made as to the future conduct of submarines toward vessels carrying Americans, Germany would suggest a basis for a favorable settlement of the Lusitania case as well.

GOING TO DARDANELLES

ITALIAN FLEET TO RELIEVE BRIT-ISH—TURKEY TO DECLARE WAR ON ITALY

BERLIN, June 28 (by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The Italian newspapers are jubilant, says the Overseas News agency, over the announcement that Italy is to participate in the attack against the Dardanelles by sending a fleet under the Duke of the Abruzzi to release the larger British warships for important work elsewhere.

A declaration of war by Turkey is said to be considered imminent and the Rome newspapers are quoted as expressing the belief that Italy's action will signify a new era in the policies of the Orient.

FIRE IN CLAY CLIFFS

PROF. WOODWORTH EXPLAINS
MYSTERIOUS BLAZE AT GAY
HEAD

CAMBRIDGE, June 28.—Prof. J. B. Woodworth of the department of geology, Harvard college said today that the fire in the clay cliffs at Gay Head probably would be explained by the fact that the cliffs contain both lignite—an impure form of coal—and iron pyrites. The oxidation of the iron pyrites, he said, may have ignited the lignite. Fires are of frequent occurrence around coal pits where lignite and pyrites are found together, he explained.

Prof. Woodworth made an extensive study of the Gay Head geological formation last spring, and one of his assistants is on Martha's Vineyard at the present time.

of suits: "The only ground, therefore," said the court, "upon which this bill can stand is to prevent multiplicity of suits. Here, as frequently happens, two rules seem to clash. On the one hand the rule that the prompt and unembarrassed collection of taxes is so necessary for the support and operation of the government that equity ought not to interfere, and on the other hand the rule that parties ought not to be unnecessarily subjected to a multiplicity of suits to settle a question which can be settled in one."

"In view of the importance of the prompt and unembarrassed collection of taxes, we think that in a case like this the doctrine of multiplicity of suits should yield, and that of the prompt collection of the tax should prevail."

"Shall we apply the doctrine of multiplicity of suits to a case where the very question whether there shall be multiplicity depends upon the will of him who asks the aid, especially in a case where the collection of a tax may be embarrassed?"

It was suggested that Mr. Cayley might have had the question of the city's liability to him disposed of long ago, certainly before the property was advertised for sale for non-payment of taxes, had he brought suit seasonably.

SEEKING A NEW CHARTER

Criticism Based on Working of Lowell Charter—Movement for Change in Haverhill

In view of some recent happenings at city hall, said a Lowell resident today, I would not be surprised to find a movement started for a revision of the city charter. So far as appears, the present charter is not helping the city as much as was expected. Taxes are run up to a high figure with little to show for them and there is a prospect that they will be higher before they are lower.

There is a feeling also that too much power is placed in the hands of three men under the present charter.

There is a movement underway in Haverhill for the adoption of a new city charter, which is known as Plan B among the four plans that cities will have the privilege of voting on at the next election, which is a legislative act to simplify the revision of city charters. The agitation in Haverhill at present is in the form of a petition which is being circulated to get the opinion of various citizens and voters and their approval of Plan B.

In brief, Plan B provides for the election of a mayor and city council. In cities having more than seven wards the council shall consist of 15 members. The mayor and council members shall serve for terms of two years after the first year, but only a part of those elected at the first election shall serve two years. One councilman shall be elected from each ward and the remaining members of the board shall be elected by and from the voters of the city large.

As Haverhill consists of but seven wards the above clause does not apply, but for cities having seven wards or less the council shall consist of 11 members, one to be elected from each ward and the remaining members to be elected from and by the voters of the city. The councilmen elected from the wards shall serve one year after the first election and the man elected at large shall serve two years. Thereafter there shall be elections each year for two-year terms.

Under Plan B all heads of departments, except the school committee, appointees by the governor and the assessors, shall be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the city council.

THE ANNAPOLIS SCANDAL

SEVEN ADDITIONAL MIDSHIPMEN
MADE DEFENDANTS OR INTER-ESTED PARTIES

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 28.—Seven additional midshipmen were today made defendants or interested parties, before the court of inquiry which is investigating the "cribbing" scandal at the naval academy, increasing the number to 23. They are David Glick, E. H. Jones, W. H. Hopkins, Jr., E. J. Wadell, C. M. Reagle and Karl Keller of the present second class, and President Whitaker of the third class. All were made defendants on the basis of testimony given during the latter part of last week.

IT HAS TOO MUCH JITNEY

Lowell Man Says Providence is So Afflicted—Bad Crash at Lonsdale—Too Little Jitney in Lowell

A Lowell man just returned from Providence says that the jitneys are so numerous in that city that the drivers are a great annoyance to travelers just as hack drivers used to be at railroad stations.

They are shouting in all directions and are undoubtedly a great convenience but it is very doubtful if so many of them can make enough to live. It will eventually be a case of the survival of the fittest, or perhaps the one that has the greatest financial backing.

A collision of jitneys at Lonsdale near Providence, on Sunday, had quite serious results. Some of the injured are not expected to recover.

There is a feeling of opposition to the excessive number of jitneys as they are shooting about and enter into competition so fiercely that they are becoming a menace to the public.

Nevertheless they are freely patronized by the working classes through novelty. They want to ride in autos as well as do the wealthy folks and having no hope of being able to buy an auto they choose the jitney.

The jitney is a good thing but it is possible to have too much of a good thing. There is too much jitney in Providence and too little in Lowell.

THE MIDWAY PERMITS

SUNDAY, SAYS SUPT. KERNAN OF PARK DEPT.

Supt. John Woodbury Kernan of the park department, who is in charge of the midway lots on the South common, stated today under no condition will these leasing lots on the common for the fair be permitted to conduct their places of business Sunday.

Mr. Kernan said the midway if those in charge so desire, will open at daylight Saturday morning to close at midnight Saturday. Then the "fakers" and other vendors on the common may reopen their stands at midnight Sunday to close again at midnight Monday.

HARTFORD CITY GAS LIGHT CO.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 28.—Roddell & Co. of this city, announced today they had purchased from the United Gas and Electrical corporation of

New Jersey their holdings of the shares of the common stock of the Hartford City Gas Light Co. involving approximately over $2,000,000. A Hartford concern was associated with them in the purchase of the stock. The Hartford City Gas Light Co. supplies Hartford, West Hartford, East Hartford and Waterbury, and sells gas to companies supplying Windsor, Windsor Locks, Thompsonville and Enfield.

47 DRUG USERS ILL

NEW YORK, June 28.—Forty-seven drug users, many of them boys in their teens, who had been sent to the Hart's Island reformatory to be cured, were thrown into convulsions Sunday by taking a mixture of drugs stolen from the medical storeroom of the reformatory. Four of the youngsters are in a state of coma and may die. District Attorney Martin of the Bronx will commence a grand jury investigation of the manner in which the drugs were obtained and of the administration of the reformatory under Major Louis E. Lawes, the new overseer.

As Twilight Deepens

Notice how readers on the cars lay aside their books and papers. Obscurity of vision and half sight is not only likely to be hurtful, but it is sometimes dangerous. These days of two twilights, in early morning and late evening, not only in the sky but cloudy weather of political affairs; but the old American flag has more stars in it and stands for nobler things and more beautiful things than ever before. There can be no twilight in a state that keeps forever burning the lamp of true service.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Observance of Feast of St. Jean Baptiste — Award of Sunday School Diplomas

The feast of St. Jean Baptiste which occurred on Thursday, was observed in a fitting manner in St. Jean Baptiste church yesterday. At 10 o'clock a solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Eugene Turcotte, O. M. I., of Ottawa, P. Q., assisted by Rev. Joseph Dault, O. M. I., as deacon and Rev. Augustin Gratton, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. The altar had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants and flowers, while hundreds of small incandescent lights added to the brilliancy of the celebration.

Rev. Joseph Bolduc, O. M. I., delivered a forceful sermon on "The Life

Immaculate Conception

The parish mass at the Immaculate Conception church was celebrated by Rev. James McCartin, O. M. I. It was announced that a military mass will be celebrated at the church next Sunday.

day at 9 o'clock for the O. M. I. Cadets and that the members of the organization will occupy reserved pews in the centre aisle.

At the 7:30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O. M. I., the members of the Y. M. C. I. received holy communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being assisted in giving communion by the pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I. At the close of the mass the members of the institute repaired to their rooms in Starkpole street, where breakfast was served, the meal being followed by an entertainment program, those taking part being John Broderick, Andrew Doyle, Joseph Rellly and John McCaffrey. The affair closed with a business meeting.

St. Patrick's

The members of the C. T. M. I. attended the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday and received communion in a body. The celebrant of the mass was the chaplain, Rev. Jas. J. Kerrigan, who also delivered a brief sermon. At the close of the service breakfast was served at the rooms of the lyceum in Suffolk street, this being followed by a business meeting during which the election of directors for the ensuing six months was held with the following result:

John Queenan, John O'Connor, Patrick McGarrell, Philip O'Keefe, Stephen Hessman, Joseph Foley, John Flemings and Matthew Clark. Considerable routine business was considered before adjournment was taken. Committee reports showed the organization in a flourishing condition. Arrangements are under way for an outing at Camp Texas some time in August.

St. Peter's

The parish mass at St. Peter's church was celebrated by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan, while the sermon was delivered by Rev. P. L. Crayton. The members of the Children of Mary sodality attended the 5:30 o'clock mass and received communion in a body, the celebrant of the mass being Rev. W. G. Mullin, who was assisted in giving communion by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Keleher.

Last evening at 7 o'clock a meeting of the members of the Immaculate Conception sodality and the Children of Mary sodality was held and a large number of new members were received into both organizations. The service closed with solemn benediction, the following clergymen officiating: Rev. Dr. D. J. Keleher, Rev. W. G. Mullin and Rev. D. J. Heffernan.

St. Columba's

Special exercises were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Columba's church, during which Sunday school diplomas were conferred upon a large class. The pastor, Rev. John A. Degan officiated and he was assisted by Rev. Thomas W. Buckley. The children who received diplomas were as follows:

James L. Macquire, William V. Flinnick, Thomas P. Monahan, John J. Quill, Paul R. Fontaine, William J. Desmond, Harry P. Collins, Misses Mary B. Hannafin, Mary M. Hart, Catherine Dunfee, Cleo Lebarge, Susan Ritty, Helen Monahan, Grace D. Sullivan, Mary C. McDonald and Christina McGee. A St. Columba's medal was awarded Miss Helen A. Monahan for excellence in study and deportment.

Sacred Heart

At the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday at the Sacred Heart church the members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion in a body. The mass was celebrated by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I. who also delivered the sermon.

St. Michael's

Rev. Francis J. Mullin was the celebrant of the parish mass at St. Michael's church yesterday, the sermon on the Gospel of the day being delivered by Rev. J. J. Lynch. Friday evening from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock the holy hour devotions will be held.

St. Joseph's

The celebrant of the high mass at St. Joseph's church was Rev. Julian Racette, O. M. I., while the sermon was delivered by Rev. Armand Baron, O. M. I. The choir, under the direction of Josephine Maito rendered the harmonized Missa Hymns, the solos being sustained by J. Mercier, Edmund Lambert and P. J. Larobelle. At the offertory Miss Alice Bonin rendered an "O Salutaris." At the close of the mass a hymn was sung by the choir.

St. Margaret's Church

At the masses at the Highland parish yesterday Rev. Fr. Galligan expressed his thanks to the members of the parish for the success of the recent lawn fête, and those who have not made their returns are requested to do so at once. Fr. Galligan gave an instructive talk applicable to this time of year, taking his text from St. Peter's epistle.

Miss Catherine V. Hennesey, soloist at St. Margaret's, is receiving congratulations upon her graduation from the New England Conservatory of Music.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN GRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Allyn, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women's ills known.

DROPPED THREE STORIES

DID BRAHAM JELL FALL OR WAS HE PUSHED? POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING

Braham Jell, of 98 Arch street, was taken to the Lowell corporation hospital about 6 o'clock last evening suffering from injuries sustained when he fell from the third story window of the block in which he lives, a distance of about 25 feet. Though no bones were broken, the man is in a critical condition and it is thought he sustained internal injuries. According to Jell's own story, he was leaning out of the window watching passersby when he lost his balance and fell. Herbert O. Craig, of 15 Howard street called at the police station and informed officers that he had seen a pair of hands push Jell from the window. This story was investigated and the police think there is no foundation in fact for it.

Morey, Whitcomb, Greene and Callahan Oldest in Point of Service—Morey's Text Books

On Wednesday last all the schools of the city closed and the vacation season is now on.

Those who have retired from the schools will be replaced by others in the fall and the indications are that the number will show an increase, especially in the high school which already is badly overcrowded, despite its numerous fly-by-night annexes.

The attendances at the grammar schools indicate that additional school room must soon be provided, not alone for the districts that are steadily growing but generally for the Butler school in the center of a congested district, has sent forth one of the largest graduating classes in history.

Lowell's grammar schools are kept up to a high standard and the question as to which is the best might be answered: "There is no best but all are efficient." The child cannot select his own school, nor his parents for him. His school depends upon the neighborhood in which he lives.

You will hear some people express a view that the Bartlett school cannot be as good as the others because practical teachers from the Normal school work there. On the other hand you will hear others aver that the Bartlett school is better principal in the city has experienced such a tremendous growth in the size of his school, as has Mr. Morey for the locality which his school accommodates has increased in population more rapidly than any other section and is still increasing. When Mr. Morey became principal of the old Franklin school, which was the grammar school of the Highland district, 30 years ago, he had five rooms under his charge. When the Franklin school building was finally outgrown the school was moved to the new building at the corner of Pine and Wilder streets and called the Highland school. Mr. Morey now has under his jurisdiction 12 rooms at the Highland school and an overflow of two rooms at the old Franklin, while when the term begins in the fall he will open still another room. Meanwhile the Washington grammar school of the Highland district, is but an overflow of the original Highland school. Mr. Morey's school has turned out many graduates who afterward have become prominent in the city affairs. An average of 80 per cent of his graduates, covering a long period of years have entered the high school. The Highland school is conducted along conservative lines and with thoroughness. Little attention is given to the educational fads and

than the others because it is under state supervision to a certain extent and enjoys advantages that the schools under local auspices exclusively do not enjoy. Both statements are unfair. But the Bartlett school is an excellent school.

Some schools perhaps introduce side features into their curriculum that give them individuality, as for instance, at the Bartlett school, considerable attention has been given to the early Indian history of Lowell and vicinity, in which the children have taken a keen interest. Other schools have their little interesting hobbies, all of benefit to the pupils. Recently the pupils of the Highland and Varnum schools took a trip to Whittier's birthplace, below Haverhill. This trip, however, was the cause of considerable comment in some quarters by reason of the fact that it entailed expense upon the individual pupils, which some could not meet conveniently. The story is told that in one case a pupil could not find the necessary means and a kind-hearted teacher made good, but all the other children knew it.

Charles W. Morey
Lowell has a school master whose name is known nationally as the result of his text books in mathematics which are now being used with great success in Lowell and different cities of the country and are the accepted authority in mathematics for the public schools of Washington, D. C. Mr. Charles W. Morey, Lowell's oldest school principal in point of continuous service, for Mr. Morey has been principal of the Highland school since 1885, or over 30 years. Perhaps no other teacher that are ever springing up throughout the country, but completeness of instruction in the great fundamental principles of education is aimed at with success. An expert in mathematics, Mr. Morey after careful study of the problem of presenting mathematics to the child in a simple, comprehensive form yet omitting no essential, some few years ago published the Morey system of mathematics, in three text books, devoted to the primary, grammar and higher arithmetics. The system was tried in this city with success and soon found its way into the schools of other cities proceeding on its own merits exclusively. For Mr. Morey demanded that it be tried out before being accepted on the recommendation of any enthusiastic publishers. It forms the basic system of mathematics in the schools of Washington, D. C., where a few years ago Mr. Morey was called upon to address a national convention of teachers, speaking on mathematics on two occasions, before 1200 colored teachers and 2000 white. He is frequently invited to address gatherings of eminent educators on his favorite subject while he has contributed valuable articles on the study of mathematics, chiefly arithmetic, to leading educational publications.

Arthur K. Whitcomb
Arthur K. Whitcomb, principal of the Greenhaile school, and former superintendent of schools, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest of the principals in point of service. In the city, outlasting Mr. Morey a year or more. But he has not served in one school continuously. He was appointed principal of the Varnum school, and afterward was elected superintendent, which position he held for many years. After retiring from the superintendency he remained out of school for a term and then was elected principal of the Greenhaile, which position he now holds.

The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINUT"

USED BY DR. GAGNON IN HIS SUPERIOR PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, bracing him in his work, and making his own pain necessary greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, untroubled, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT.

This is what "Nap-a-Minut" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minut" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minut" and no pain at all in your offices? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

Moody school, has been Belvidere's only school master since 1883, when he was appointed principal of the old Moody school in East Merrimack street. He has been conspicuously successful in his administration of the affairs of his school as well as in securing thoroughness in the instruction given in all the grades.

Mr. Green by means of a special class helps backward pupils to keep up and also sends that the bright are given an opportunity to go ahead. Cornelius F. Callahan Particular attention is called this year to the Butler school, by reason of the fact that it sends forth the largest graduating class in years, 58 pupils, 59 of whom have been certified for the high school, which means that the 59 have averaged over 70 per cent for the year. The Butler school has had an honorable history of 32 years. It has turned out many men and women who have afterward become prominent in the life of the city. They have entered about all of the professions, except the law. Strange as it may seem, few if any Butler school graduates ever studied law. Probably the training they received at the Butler made them shy of the noble profession of Blackstone and Choate.

In looking over the different grammar schools perhaps the Butler will be found to be the most interesting of all, on account of its individual features. It has been conducted with success by Principal Cornelius F. Callahan continuously since 1883, although in days gone by when politics counted with ability in the selection of a superintendent of schools, Mr. Callahan was often prominently mentioned for the superintendency as the choice of the local democratic party, both parties agreeing that his ability was unquestioned. A most interesting, and as far as Lowell is concerned, a novel educational feature of the Butler school is Principal Callahan's work in behalf of the forward pupil. Much is said and written in these enlightened days by prominent educators on the subject of the backward or delinquent pupil, and some of the brightest minds are devoting themselves to the solution of this important educational problem. Quite a number of years ago Principal Callahan gave considerable study to the problem of the delinquent pupil and while thus engaged the thought came to him as to the welfare of the forward pupil, who was underpinning a serious handicap, while being kept back to await the belated progress of the delinquent. The forward pupil could learn with ease, that which required much more time and attention from the child of slower intellect. Therefore the pupil who learned quickly was given an opportunity to "loaf" while the other was coming along, and "loafing" struck Principal Callahan as a bad proposition to be permitted to exist in any school room. Furthermore Mr. Callahan figured that the pupil who could learn easily but who was kept back from year to year to wait for the other boy to catch up, soon lost interest in his studies and in the continuing of his education and welcomed the opportunity to throw down his school books and go no higher than the elementary grades. On the other hand the clever pupil whose cleverness was encouraged took a lively interest in his school work and looked forward to a higher education.

With these thoughts in mind he decided to give special attention to the forward pupils of the Butler school and to open for them the opportunity to which their superior ability seemed to entitle them. Accordingly some years ago he took from the first year children who had made the fourth grade, 15 of the brightest pupils, those whose first year's average was 80 or thereabout, and placed them in a special class, permitting them to go ahead with their books as rapidly as was consistent with thoroughness and capacity for study. As a result all of these pupils gained one year in their grammar course, making the six year course in five years. While many did even better and completed their course in four years. Their subsequent career in the high school was carefully watched and it was found that they vied with the most successful scholars in that school, and they showed that their work had been done without any mental or physical detriment. Eighty per cent has been the average of those of the Butler forward pupils who have a fine showing after leaving the school. The number that afterward entered high school or other institutions of higher education proved the principal's contention that giving them the opportunity to advance as rapidly as their ability demanded, awakened an interest in their studies and made them decisions of advancing beyond the limited facilities of the elementary school. This fall a special class of 15 will start in the opening of the term. The special classes at the Butler are under the able direction of Misses Annie J. Devine and Alice C. O'Brien.

Long before the vocational school came into vogue in this city, Principal Callahan had been successfully conducting two important vocational departments at the Butler school, the cooking and manual training departments. These features were also taken up at the Edison school, the pupils of the latter institution going to the Butler for instruction. Miss Mary E. Lane, directs the Butler school cooking class and Miss Donovan that of the Edison, while Mr. Peter J. Gulesian has charge of the manual training.

having resided here since childhood. He received his early education at the Diann school and the high school, entering the latter in 1889. The classical course of the high school in those days was not as advanced as it is today and desiring a classical education, Mr. Callahan, after one year at the local school, entered St. Charles college, Elliptic City, Md., from there he went to Holy Cross college, at Worcester, where he graduated with honors. Returning to Lowell he was appointed a school principal in 1891 and has administered its affairs continuously and with conspicuous success ever since. Speaking of his profession, to the writer, Mr. Callahan smilingly said: "I would not advise any young man who has no other income to choose teaching as his life-work for the remuneration is not commensurate with the time and energy he puts into it." Mr. Callahan resides at 549 Westford street.

William P. Barry of the Pawtucket school was appointed in 1907, while Principals Bixby, Mellen, Harris, Sheen and Barr have hardly reached the "old timer" class.

Lowell's Youngest Principals
The youngest principals are Les A. King of the Edison school who is completing his first term and Paul L. Perkins of the Green school whose election took place a few months ago. Mr. Perkins is probably one of the youngest, if not the youngest school principal in the state, and it is said was elected either just before or just after becoming a voter. Both young men have made an excellent showing during the short time that they have been in their respective positions.

THE VERY BEST DENTIST IN LOWELL
There is no question in my mind but what I am the best dentist in the city for you to come to for dental services. For the following reasons:
1st—Because I do beautiful work, lasting and guarantee it for 10 years. And any methods are absolutely painless.
2nd—My office is clean and sanitary and the sterilization of instruments is a most important feature.
3rd—My prices are low, in fact lower than in any other office in Lowell.

DON'T GO ELSEWHERE AND BE SORRY
Every day I hear someone say: "Oh, why did I not come to you first. How much better your work looks, and you did not hurt me one single bit."

Fillings of gold, silver and porcelain are inserted painlessly, and when once they stay in. I make teeth that look and act like your very own. No more of those old, false looking sets, which the ordinary dentist makes, are made at my office.

ANNUAL REGATTA

Twelve Crews From Five Universities to Compete Today

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—Twelve crews, representing five universities, will compete today in the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association on the Hudson. There was every indication of excellent wind and water conditions for the race. Special trains, steamboats and hundreds of automobiles began to deposit their human cargoes at depot and wharf before the town folks had finished their breakfasts. Although the red of Cornell and the blue of Columbia appeared to predominate in the colors shown by visiting thousands, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Stanford were not without followers.

While close and uncertain races were freely predicted in all three events, there was little wagering. The absence of professional commissioners and the warring pools placed a handicap upon the betting proclivities of both alumni and undergraduates. Speculation was confined almost exclusively to bets between the backers of individual crews. In this informal way Cornell and Columbia were even money against each other and slight favorites over Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Stanford. The Syracuse freshmen led the field in the first year crew event, while Pennsylvania supporters showed a disposition to back strongly their junior shell.

The juniors will race first, starting at 4.15 p. m. The freshmen eights have been ordered to the line at 5 and the four mile event for the varsity crews is scheduled for 5.15 p. m.

FAKE SOLICITORS IN ACTION—SALISBURY BEACH TRADE BOARD ISSUES WARNING

Claiming that they were securing subscriptions for the maintenance of a life-saving service at Salisbury beach this summer, fraudulent solicitors have been operating in this vicinity and have victimized residents of several cities who own cottages at the beach and are interested in its improvement.

The matter has been brought to the notice of the Salisbury beach board of trade, which, through its secretary has issued a warning to the public, in which it is stated that the only person authorized to collect funds for the life-saving service is the financial secretary of the trade board.

SAFE DYNAMITED

Burglars Get $60 in Cash From Postoffice Near Bangor, Me.

BANGOR, Me., June 28.—Burglars at 2.40 this morning blew the safe of Postmaster E. C. Barton of Bradley, after entering the store by means of jimmy. The noise awakened the village and the men left hurriedly, overlooking a roll of bills that had blown to the floor, and obtaining but about $60 in cash. They took no stamps. Three men were seen to leave the store immediately following the explosion and are believed to have crossed the Old Town side of the Penobscot by a small boat. An energetic search is being made, but no trace of the men has yet been found.

SHOOTING AND SUICIDE

WM. MORRISSEY SHOT MRS. PARKHURST AND THEN KILLED HIMSELF

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 28.—After shooting Mrs. Mary (Angell) Parkhurst, aged 52, who is not expected to survive, this morning, William Morrissey, 42, plumber, shot himself in the head and died less than an hour after at the Woonsocket hospital. The dead man was to appear at the superior court in Providence this morning to plead to an indictment charging an attempt to break into Mrs. Parkhurst's room with the intent to murder her on the night of May 17.

The shooting and suicide occurred in the yard of the Home Boarding house where the woman had been cook for 25 years and Morrissey was a former boarder there. She had frequently repulsed his advances.

DEFEAT FOR CARRANZA

FURTHER CONFIRMATION OF REFUSE OF ARMY ADVANCING ON MEXICO CITY RECEIVED

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Further confirmation of the defeat of the Carranza army advancing on Mexico City, brought to Vera Cruz by an American cable, was received today at the state department.

The state department's dispatch said Gen. Carranza was rushing troop trains from Vera Cruz to the capital, that fighting at the head of the courier started was still going on in the outskirts of Mexico City and that a repetition of the "tragic ten days" which preceded the overthrow of Madero with probably added horrors was feared.

Included in the state department's dispatch from Vera Cruz was this: "Zapata forces defeated Carranza forces in Mexico City. Capital entirely cut off from the world. Carranza rushing all available men to Mexico City. No food in Mexico City."

THE PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

LOCKS & CANALS COMPANY WILL MAKE NO CONCESSIONS AS NONE WERE EXPECTED

Commissioner Morse stated today that he had a conference yesterday with Engineer Hiram F. Mills and Assistant Engineer Arthur T. Safford of the Locks & Canals corporation relative to the Pawtucket bridge matter, and they gave him to understand that the locks & canals will not allow the city to encroach one inch on their property and that they will not allow the city to build the abutment on the School street side against their wall. The abutment will have to be entirely self supporting, Mr. Morse says this had already been understood by Engineer Denman.

SOUTH END CLUB

Following a lengthy meeting of the South End club yesterday afternoon, a number of the members were measured for their costumes by a representative of a Boston firm. Fully 200 members of the upper Gorham street organization and the Oxford club will participate in the stamming division of the parade, and all feel confident of landing one of the prizes.

German advances in either Galicia or southern Poland.

Of the fighting along the western front, the French have little to say. The comparative inactivity of the French forces is attributed by observers on the side of the allies the desire to consolidate positions already won.

Two French Aeroplanes Shot Down

German accounts on the contrary, detailing numerous French activities, including attacks in "the labyrinth" in the Argonne, in the Meuse hills and in the Vosges, all the attacks having been repulsed. The Germans report a notable success in an editorial battle along the southern part of the battle front in which two French aeroplanes were shot down.

Tide Turns in Galicia

The tide of battle is again flowing with the Teutonic allies in Galicia, German and Austrian claims of victory are substantiated by Russian admissions of retirement south of Lemberg. Simultaneously comes news of a Russian council of war at the front, presided over by the emperor and participated in by the Russian command-in-chief, Grand Duke Nicholas, leading military men and several cabinet ministers, while in Petrograd the recent retirement of the minister of war is to be followed by other ministerial changes, according to current report.

March on Warsaw

Following recent indications that the Germans were resuming activity with the possible intention of beginning another march on Warsaw down from near the East Prussian border come reports of a strong offensive movement by the Teutonic forces in the southern part of Russian Poland. The latest Russian official report mentions that up to Saturday the new offensive had met with no success. It is likewise admitted that German attacks in the Silesia and Narew river regions and across the Niemen have been repulsed.

Italian Success

News from other sections of the far-spread war front includes an Italian official report of an unsuccessful attempt by the Austrians to retake the heights of Zettelnkofel.

British Steamer Sunk

German submarine activity has borne fruit again in the sinking of the British steamer Indrani, in St. George's channel.

British Air Unit

British aviators have flown over Syria, dropping bombs and causing more than 70 casualties in the Turkish garrison there, according to a report from Mytilene.

Serbia Declines Separate Peace

An interesting statement in view of recent reports is attributed to the Serbian minister in Italy to the effect that Serbia will decline to make a separate peace.

BRITISH STEAMSHIP SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE

LONDON, June 28, 12.20 p. m.—The British steamship Indrani, of 3640 tons gross, was sunk on Sunday by a German submarine at a point south of the Tuscarora, Ireland. The crew of the Indrani was saved.

The steamship Indrani on her last eastern voyage across the Atlantic sailed from New York May 28 by way of Bordeaux for Glasgow, where she arrived June 19. The Indrani was 361 feet long, 44 feet beam and 27 feet deep. She was built at Liverpool in 1915. Her owners were Donaldson Brothers of Glasgow.

Tuscarora rock is an island off the southeast coast of Oxford county, in St. George's channel.

RUSSIANS SUCCEEDED IN REGROUPING FORCES AND ARE READY TO OPPOSE TEUTONS

PETROGRAD, June 28, 2 p. m.—Officers of the Russian general staff now state that they have satisfactorily achieved the regrouping of their forces necessary for the German Galician campaign and that they stand ready effectively to oppose a further advance of the Austro-German forces in Galicia or in southern Russia.

TWO GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED BY FRENCH, SAYS PARIS

PARIS, June 28, 1 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities, reading as follows:

"The Germans last night delivered two attacks against our positions, each of which was repulsed. One was at the trench of Calonne and the other was at a point to the east of Metzlar. With these exceptions there is nothing of importance to report."

LAST NASHUA CAR

The last car from Lowell for Nashua leaves Lowell at 10.45, not 11.05 as incorrectly announced in a Nashua paper. Nashua young men must now do their courting in Lowell as quickly as Lowell young men in Nashua since the new schedule went into effect.

CHILDFREN'S CLERKS' OUTING

Morris Walker, advertising man and chairman of the clerks' committee of the Childfren company, announced today that the annual outing will be held this year on July 15 at a meeting of the clerks' association to be held at the Hotel de Ville. The plan for holding the outing will be decided upon. The majority of the clerks seem to favor Nahant.

TIPOPOS AT PORTLAND APPOINTED BY MAYOR

ADVANCE GUARD OF 100 DELEGATES ARRIVES FOR OPENING OF N. E. UNION CONVENTION TODAY

PORTLAND, Me., June 28.—One hundred members of the New England Typographical union arrived here yesterday in anticipation of the two days' session of the body which began today. The visiting delegates were entertained at a smoker last evening by the local members.

Lowell is represented at the convention by N. W. Matthews, Jr., and Thomas J. Durkin, the latter of The Sun composing room.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

PORTLAND, Me., June 28.—An address of welcome to 100 delegates to the New England Typographical union, representing practically every city in New England and about 12,000 workers, was given by Mayor William Ingraham at the opening of their sixth annual convention today.

He was warmly applauded when he stated that the city was glad to know that the union was patriotic and stood for peace and he hoped nothing would happen to this country, all must maintain peace with honor and must stand ready and willing to do their best to uphold the honor of the Stars and Stripes.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CHOSEN TODAY DISCUSSED QUESTION AT YORICK CLUB

The following members of the Lowell board of trade have been selected by the president, Robert F. Marden to form the executive committee: Robert F. Marden, John A. Hunsell, Harry Doolan, Clarence H. Nelson and John H. Murphy.

They held their first meeting this noon at the Yorick club and considerable business was transacted. The board was organized for the best appearing local military company in the July 5th parade, inasmuch as the local companies were barred from competing for any prize by the committee in charge. The board will ask the official judges of the parade to act in the same capacity for the award of the cup.

The annual outing of the board was discussed at length and it is probable the affair will be held on the last Thursday in August. A number of summer resorts have been suggested as ideal places for such an event, but the committee did not take any action as far as the exact date and location is concerned. This will be decided later.

TANNER STREET SEWER

COMMISSIONER MORSE SAYS IT IS THE LOWEST PROPOSITION HE EVER TACKLED

Charles Morse says that the Tanner street sewer job is about the lowest proposition he ever tackled. About 52 feet of the sewer collapsed several months ago and because of the fact that the break was directly under coal pockets that were loaded with coal it was necessary to remove the coal and do a lot of extra work before it was safe for men to work on the sewer. There are about 30 men employed on the job at the present time and most of them are working at a depth of 27 feet, the dirt being taken out in relays. Mr. Morse says he does not know when he will get through with the job.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Cecil Caisse, daughter of School Committee man and Mrs. W. P. Caisse, Jr., was agreeably surprised yesterday afternoon when a number of her young friends and relatives called at the home of her parents, 713 Merrimack street, and presented her a number of valuable gifts on the occasion of her seventh birthday.

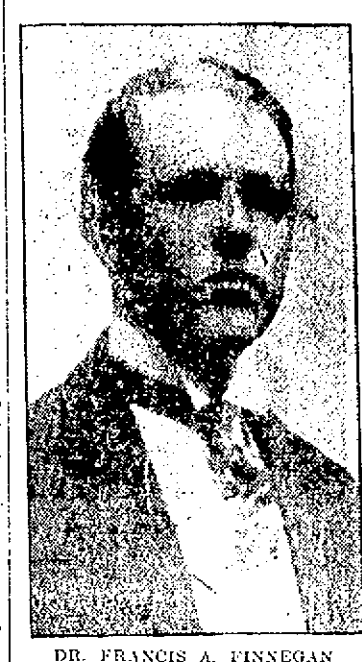

The reception room had been elaborately decorated for the occasion and the little ones spent a most enjoyable afternoon. Ice cream and cake as well as other dainties were served and a musical program was given. At the close of the afternoon the little guests departed but not before bestowing their best wishes upon their hosts and extending their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Caisse for their cordial hospitality.

MISS MANNING RESIGNS

Miss M. Cecile Manning has resigned her position as clerk in the park department, to accept a more lucrative position at the Boston & Maine car line. Miss Manning was the lowest paid clerk at city hall, receiving only $10 a week for her services. She wanted $14 a week and it was stated at city hall that Commissioner Putnam and Sup. Gordon of the moth department would have hired Miss Manning and paid her, jointly, at the rate of $14 a week. For the last several weeks Miss Manning has been employed jointly by the park department and the lands and buildings department, each of the departments paying half her wages. Sup. Kernan has made application on the civil service commission for the names of girls eligible to the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Manning. He will have a variation of two weeks before taking up her new position in Billerica, her home town.

DR. FRANCIS A. FINNEGAN WILL HAVE CHANGE OF TUBERCULOSIS DISPENSARY

Dr. Francis A. Finnegan will be the doctor in charge of the tuberculosis dispensary at city hall to be opened on or before July 1. The mayor announced the appointment of Dr. Finnegan this forenoon. The dispensary will be located in one of the rooms connected with the city dispensary. The doctor and the board of health nurse, who was also recently appointed by the mayor, will spend not less than one hour a day nor one evening a week at the dispensary, the hours and the evening to be named by the board of health. Dr. Finnegan is a graduate of Holy Cross and the Harvard Medical school. He is at present connected with the outpatient department at St. John's hospital.

PRINCETON CLUB PLANS

It Will Have Showman Feature in Fourth of July Parade—300 Members Will Participate

The Princeton club held a largely attended and highly enthusiastic meeting in the club quarters in Bridge street yesterday afternoon at which a number of addresses on the Fourth of July parade were made by officials in charge of the pageant. It was announced that 300 members would participate in the event, and that Mr. Weld of the firm of Curtis & Weld Co., of Boston will be at the rooms of the organization every night this week to take the suggestions of the members. Mr. Weld measured 150 members for costumes after the meeting yesterday afternoon. Following the meeting, a musical program was enjoyed in the recreation room of the organization and all the selections presented in the recent minstrel show were gone over by the members, with Prof. Gilchrist at the piano.

MEDAL FOR MUSIC

MISS ROSE DUPUIS WON HIGH HONORS IN COMPETITION OPEN TO ALL PUPILS IN ONTARIO.

Miss Rose Dupuis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Narcisse Dupuis is 232 West Sixth street, who was a student at the convent of the Grey Nuns of the Cross at Ottawa, Ont., arrived at her home this morning to spend the summer vacation with her parents.

The young woman has completed her commercial course at the convent and returned home with the laureate, as well as a gold medal she won in a music contest. This gold medal is known as the medal of the dominion of music. The musical students in all the places of education of the province of Ontario were allowed to compete and Miss Dupuis of this city won the honors. Miss Dupuis, who is but 16 years of age, will probably return to the convent next September in order to go through the professional course.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE

GAY HEAD, June 28.—The inhabitants of this little settlement on Martha's Vineyard Island have been perplexed for two days by a mysterious fire burning in the heart of one of the clay cliffs from which the village receives its name.

It was noted yesterday that smoke was issuing from Black cliff, 150 feet above sea level and 25 feet below the top of the promontory. Investigation showed that at different places in the clay columns were rising from the clay and the soil on the surface bore a yellow stain. So far as local traditions indicate, there never has been a subterranean fire in the locality.

Although the cause of the phenomenon has not been explained, a few theories have been advanced. One is that an undiscovered deposit of bituminous coal has been ignited in some inaccessible manner. Supporters of this theory say that the odor from the smoke bears out their contention. Others believe that a torrential fall of rain on Saturday penetrated some unknown time formation and set up convection.

MIDDLESEX STREET WHITE WAY

WHITE WAY OPENING NIGHT

Residents of Upper Middlesex St.
Will Celebrate This Evening—
Parade, Music and Bargains

The White Way celebration of the merchants of the upper Middlesex street district, which will be held this evening, will doubtless attract a very large crowd of people from every section of the city. The merchants have been preparing this event for a long time and it promises to be as big a success as others. Nothing has been spared which will add to the success of the affair.

A fine program has been arranged for the entertainment of visitors. There will be a continuous band concert, the musicians marching up and down the new White Way district as they play, red fire, a short parade and several other features. The Middlesex Social club will hold open house in honor of the event and a full orchestra will be in attendance at the club rooms. There will be singing and the doors and windows will be thrown open so that all may enjoy the concert. The festivities will start about half past six this evening. Among the most attractive features will be the special bargains which the merchants along the new white way district are offering everyone. A glance through the advertisements on this page will give the reader an idea of the spirit with which these business men are entering into the affair. Special reductions in prices and in several cases, souvenirs will be given the customers. These merchants offer car fares to visitors and the special reduction of 10 per cent on purchases. These inducements will no doubt meet a big demand tonight.

The organization in charge of the event is the Upper Middlesex street Improvement Association, the officers of which are as follows: Chairman, C. Harry Clapp; secretary, Sigmund Rostler; directors, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Adelard Berard, Joseph Kaplan, George F. White and Louis Lord.

The hard work which they have put into the celebration is worthy of brilliant success which will no doubt characterize tonight's event. A fund to cover the expenses was secured by subscription and the committee found great enthusiasm and generosity among the public spirited ones along the new white way.

WHITE WAY NOTES

ADVICE TO GRADUATES

Joseph French Johnson, dean of the New York University School of Commerce, recently published a magazine article in which he told of an interview which he granted not long before to a young man who wanted advice as to the future. This boy was aged 17 and had been two years at high school, but he was deliberating on whether it was better to graduate and go to college, or whether he should go to a commercial school and so direct to business.

The advice given by this head of a successful business college was, in part: "Don't choose a business because other people are making a lot of money in it, and don't reject the professions merely because you have known some persons in them who can't pay their bills. What you should look for is the kind of work you can do best. In that you will be the happiest and most successful, even though you never become wealthy."

This advice is not in line with that of many lecturers and writers who think they have advanced views on education, for it is quite common for such individuals to laud vocational and specialized training as being superior to the old-fashioned liberal education. The point of view of those who argue in favor of the specialized training is that of this boy who said: "If I am going into business, why shouldn't I go to a school of commerce like this, instead of wasting two years in college studying a lot of things I don't care anything about or things that won't be of any use to me later?"

To a certain extent this view is correct, but it is a material view and on the whole a mistaken one. The answer given to this question by Mr. Johnson is worthy of note: "Don't worry too much now about what you are going to do; just make a resolution to get such an education that no job or profession will be too big for you to climb up to."

The young man who thinks that because he is going to follow a trade or is going into business, he will not need a good general education, is much mistaken. All kinds of business are in a sense becoming professions. The successful expert accountant needs a preliminary training and education as thorough as that of a lawyer, and he who would rise to an executive position in business or finance will soon discover that he needs something more than mere experience or knowledge of his comparatively narrow business sphere. The boy who leaves the vocational school best fitted for even the trade or business he has trained for is he who has not confined himself solely to the direct training of that school.

On the other hand, necessity has no law, even in education, and when it is absolutely necessary that a boy should leave school early and go to work, specialized training is most desirable. The mistake is in supposing that vocational training is a substitute for a general education. The boys who, on graduating from grammar school, may go to the high school, or who after leaving the high school may go to college, should do so by all means. Education does not make the head heavier or retard early success, and the boy who has the broadest education is best fitted to take the advantages that come to all to a greater or lesser degree. In short, a boy before leaving school, should, if possible, prepare for something special but be ready for anything.

THE BRIDGE BUNGLER

The municipal council has provided for a new bridge across the Merrimack river at Pawtucket Falls in what must seem to all thinking citizens a very slipshod, imprudent, unseemly and undesirable manner. A company represented by an active and zealous delegate whose unsupported word has carried a most extraordinary weight with four members of the council has been chosen to construct the bridge, but aside from certain concessions, which Mr. Denman of the constructing company dictated, the plans are neither definite nor satisfactory. Plans which have not yet been presented have been accepted in advance, under certain conditions wholly unfavorable to the city, and the little matter of cost is left to Mr. Denman to decide. Nothing in the situation commends it either to Lowell contractors, to salesmen of bridge materials, to supporters of the Lowell city charter, or to the taxpayers generally. There is a possibility that the bridge may be satisfactory, but there is a grave possibility that it will not and if not, who is to reimburse the city for its loss? Under the arrangement nobody can be held financially responsible.

As was brought out by the pointed question of Commissioner Carmichael at the Friday meeting, no bond is furnished by the Luten company; the majority of our commissioners seemed to resent any suspicion as to the motives of all concerned. One commissioner wonders that anybody should anticipate anything wrong, and Mayor Murphy is full of confidence, because, forsooth, he means to see that the bridge is properly inspected before it is accepted. Are we to assume that if found unsatisfactory, it will be pulled down and another one erected? If the bridge should fall down the week after Mr. Denman gets his money, what can the city do about it? Nothing.

The usual procedure in cities that do business properly—like the city of Springfield for example—is that there should have been definite plans first, passed upon by an expert and approved by the city, by the Locks and Canals corporation, by the Ray State company, and by the war department. A demand for such plans and specifications might, of course, have made it hard for the Springfield company to compete, and it was evidently a pre-arranged fact that there should be no competition and that one certain company should be awarded the contract. The man who has negotiated all the proceedings and who became virtually a temporary member of the municipal council is the company in question. This is unusual, to say the least, and it may be found highly unsatisfactory before the bridge is finished. The city takes all the risks and Mr. Denman, a total stranger, is practically a free agent.

Again, there is absolutely no guarantee that the bridge will be built within the $50,000 mentioned, just as there is no assurance that the $50,000 is not excessive. Certain pertinent questions as to possible additional costs were evaded at the meeting last Friday, and it would seem that should Mr. Denman require a few thousands more later on, there is nothing to prevent him getting it. This is not the way Lowell has arranged for municipal projects in the past, and it is certainly not the right way. Commissioner Duncan, for one fitting moment, seemed to look for light as to the real cost of construction. He declared that the charter forbids the awarding of any contract until the appropriation is made, but he soon forgot his scruples. The commissioners were particular to go on record as stating that they have nothing against Mr. Denman. Neither has the Lowell public nor The Sun, but that is beside the point. What have the commissioners against the city that they should so jeopardize its interests? The one important consideration is that we should have an adequate bridge, constructed on business principles and at the lowest possible figure. The city is to have a new bridge built at Pawtucketville to cost $50,000 or over but for aught the aldermen know it may not be worth $50,000 when completed although it may cost $90,000. Denman has bound the city to a bargain but the city has not bound Denman or his company. The city will have to pay whether it gets value for its money or not. Is that the mode of doing business provided for by the new charter? Is it safe, is it sensible, is it economical, is it honest?

TO AVOID FRICTION

In the development of the new business interests of the department of commerce, this country will be furnished with an instrument of political protection which cannot be appreciated at the present time. All nations are trade rivals, and it is an acknowledged fact that behind the present war are animosities arising from friction in foreign markets. Let one country successfully compete with another in some old line of established trade and immediately jealousies and rivalries are engendered that reach into the ways of international diplomacy.

At the present time, this country is striving to have its foreign business done by business experts and not by politicians. Until the present administration, the commercial interests of the country were taken care of by the consuls and ambassadors in foreign capitals, and the reports on the extension of the textile industry or the field for American farm machinery in China or the Argentine republic came in the same envelope that contained delicate matters of international interest. This is no longer the case, and with the development of the exclusively American idea, our foreign business will be handled by men of business and as a business proposition, and our matters of foreign policy will be handled by statesmen.

This fact is not given the prominence it deserves by the doubtful forecasters who declare that America will be drawn into a great conflict before many years. True, trade rivalries between the nations are growing more keen and aggressive, but if other nations do as America does, there will be little danger of serious trouble. The present administration is striving to introduce into our foreign trade the practices that have made America a synonym for successful business in all parts of the world. Our government invites open competition, but it demands open and fair dealing in an open and fair field. The department of commerce is working for publicity, common-sense and efficiency, and it bids fair to give American prosperity abroad a hitherto unknown impetus.

PRESIDENT WILSON RESTS

President Wilson is enjoying a brief vacation at his summer home at Cornish and no man in America is more deserving of one. For months his task has been the heaviest of any president since the time of Lincoln, and he has attended to it with a degree of persistence, fidelity, patience and wisdom that have aroused the utmost loyalty of his own country and the admiration of the world. His work has not been of the kind that can be correctly estimated in advance and that when once done is finished, for the time being. Every question that confronted him six months ago confronts him today, and at any moment there may be complications that would demand from the chief executive the exercise of tremendous responsibility. Through the maze of diplomacy and the devious ways of international law President Wilson has had to tread carefully and with dignity, remembering the while that one false step might lead to war, and that war would be a national calamity, except in extreme necessity. We are too close to President Wilson to appreciate the size of his services to his country, but history will testify that his personality looms large over every national policy of this country at a time of world war.

We are told that the president's journey from Washington to Cornish was one long ovation, and fittingly so. Avoiding publicity of the more sensational variety such as was courted so assiduously by a famous predecessor who still amazes and at times amuses the country, he nevertheless has attracted to himself the love and respect of the entire country. If the good wishes of our many millions have any effect, President Wilson will go back to his onerous duties at Washington a stronger and happier man.

TRADE AT HOME

The Lowell board of trade has come out in support of the slogan "Trade at home," and incidentally advertised the advantages of the parcel post by advising those Lowell people who go away for the season to still trade at home by having their provisions, etc., sent from the home market by parcel post or express. The suggestion is novel, but, if found practicable it is very pertinent and timely.

There is no question that in many vacation places, the prices of food and other domestic commodities are boosted unmercifully, to the financial loss of the vacationist. It is also true that one cannot be as sure of the quality as one is of the commodities that have been received from an old and tried establishment at home. Consequently if the out-of-town Lowellites could, by trading at home, get provisions on time and in good condition, it would be a splendid exercise of common-sense and of the most desirable community spirit to still leave money with the Lowell merchant.

In this, discrimination should be shown, for it would be folly for one at the beach to order clams from a Lowell fish dealer, or to get sweet corn from Tewksbury when one is summering on a Vermont farm, but there are many household articles that there might get more advantageously from the Lowell dealer. It is then for all our vacationists to remember the possibilities of parcel post or express and to give some thought to the request of the board of trade.

EATING WHAT YOU WANT

Not to be limited in his diet but to eat whatever he pleases without discomfort is the dream of the dyspeptic. Nobody can honestly promise to restore any stomach to this happy condition because all people cannot eat the same things with equally satisfactory results. It is literally true that "what is one man's food is another man's poison." But it is possible to select a pleasant diet from articles of food that cause no discomfort and it is possible to tone up the digestive organs.

When the stomach lacks tone there is a quicker way to restore it than to build up the blood. Good digestion without rich red blood is impossible and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer the best way to build up the blood. They also have a direct action on the nerves and as the nerves control the processes of digestion, these pills are especially good in stomach trouble attended with thin blood and nervous dyspepsia.

You can begin this treatment at once because your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Perhaps you are not eating the right foods. Sometimes the very things that people eat "hurt their bodies" are the things that hurt them. A list of food and a request to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will send a free diet book. Write for it today.

BLEACHERY GANGS

Commenting recently on the danger of the gang spirit and the necessity for curbing it, The Sun expressed gratification at the absence of such extreme depredations as recently drew the attention of all Massachusetts to Lynn. In that city public property had been wantonly destroyed without regard for loss or ownership; whole hedges of trees and shrubs had been killed with chemicals, a ball-court had been ruined, and fences had been torn down.

The Bleachery district is infested with gangs but not more so than some other sections of the city where a like campaign might be started with advantage. Possibly the gangs in question have not yet done much damage to property, but they frequently offend flagrantly against propriety. It should surely be possible in this city for women and young girls to go through the parks and commons without being insulted or interfered with, and it is possible to so regulate such places that the ears of decent people are not constantly offended by profanity and vulgarity. The time for the police department to show such desirable activity is now before the season is advanced. A few arrests wherever the gang spirit has been manifested and a stiff fine or imprisonment would go a good way towards making known that Lowell will not allow the rights of all the people to be interfered with by a few irresponsible loafers or low-minded hoodlums.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

To one who looks over the lists of our school graduates in the proper American spirit, there is great inspiration in the diversity of racial stock represented. Recently President Wilson in addressing a great mass of new naturalized citizens declared that he never forgets the ideals of this republic, he is again reminded of them by the sight of our foreign-born Americans, and the same holds true of the school lists. Our colleges and high schools are filled with the sons and daughters of immigrants of an older generation who have had little education and less opportunity, but who brought the proper spirit for the making of new Americans, and our primary schools have many names of other racial groups that sought our shores at a later date. Moreover the honor lists and the lists of class officers contain many names that have an unmistakably foreign sound, proving eloquently that the sons and daughters of all our immigrants are forging to the front and will be among the leading citizens of the future. It is well. It took some degree of idealism and love of liberty to attract our foreign-born citizens, and while we love liberty and maintain our high ideals, America will be what Washington meant it to be.

SEEN AND HEARD

That no really big man allows his head to outgrow the rest of his anatomy.

"I wish I had a million dollars!" said the man on the common bench. "Would you give me half?" said the equally weary one sitting next to him. "No," said the first, "I wouldn't. Do your own wishing."

Applicant—"I'd like a job as a reporter." Managing Editor—"Nothing doing; you start as editorial writer and work your way up."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AN AWFUL RAP

"Sometimes we receive a jolt unconsciously given," said my friend, the criminal lawyer. "A few weeks ago, in a court not many miles from Lowell, a young man was up charged with a minor offense."

"Have you a lawyer?" asked the court. "I don't need a lawyer," said the culprit. "I have decided to tell the truth."

STRICTLY FRESH

A dairyman and farmer personally applied to a town housekeeper for a transfer of her custom to himself.

"I hear dot you had a lot of trouble with your dairyman of yours," he said. "Yes, you've got your custom, and here we'll be no trouble."

"Are your eggs always fresh?" asked the woman. "Fresh!" repeated the man in an indignant tone. "Let me tell you, madam, dot my hens never, never lay anything but fresh eggs."—Evening Mail.

ALL THE SAME

"Well," said the man from the Cross-Bar ranch, "we have everything over to Butte that's worth while. I guess. On Jan. 11 we had the world renowned bellringers, Jan. 22, Della Brown, the famous lady court player, and on Jan. 28, grand production of Lowell's Cross-Bar. Believe me, that was great!"

After the California Expositions—take a Little Sea Trip

Here's the idea: Go out to California by way of Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, the Wonderful Royal Gorge and Salt Lake City—all this by daylight and without extra charge, provided you travel on the Burlington Route (C. & N. E. R. R.) which has through service from Chicago and St. Louis.

After that, do California and the Exposition and then take one of those magnificent new Great Northern Pacific Steamships—the finest on the Pacific—from San Francisco up to Portland, Oregon. Then, homeward bound, stop at either Glacier National Park or Yellowstone Park—the wonders of the world.

WHAT THE COOK SAYS

Cook says dainty laces should be washed in the following way if you would keep their fresh, new look: Purchase four cents worth of benzoline which is highly inflammable, so should be kept away from artificial light or fire. Take two basins and into each put a little of the benzoline. Dip the lace in one, douse it up and down, then squeeze gently and dip in the second basin, then all the dirt will have dropped out. Shake the lace and in a few minutes it will dry and look as good as new.

Wool blankets will be softer and retain their shape better if you do not wring them. Hang them on a line dripping wet and whip with a wire carpet beater. Whip them two or three times while drying.

Take a piece of black velvet and tack over the bristles on the back of an old stove polishing brush, advises Cook. It will polish shoes as well as it did before, and the velvet can be easily replaced when it is worn out. The same can be done to a boot brush when worn down.

A small box of lime set in the pantry will keep the air dry and purified. The lids of sauce pans often need to be raised while cooking, and a clothes peg with a tack in its top will answer the purpose. Fix the peg on the edge of the saucepan as if it were a line and rest the lid on the tack.

When washing cut glass ornaments or fine china, cook always places a Turkish towel at the bottom of the bowl. She finds this very safe as it prevents the articles from getting chipped by knocking against the bowl. To give cut glass a very brilliant polish wash it first in hot suds and then dip in cold water in which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Allow the glasses to drain before rubbing with a dry cloth.

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, looking glasses and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub over the glass. Leave for a few moments and then wipe it dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required and the window or glass will look clean and shiny.

Cook says the best way to whiten

clothes that have become yellow by lying, is to dip them in cream of tartar water. Place the cream of tartar in an earthen dish and pour boiling water over it. Dip the clothes immediately into it dipping them several times but not letting them lie in it. Rinse in two or three waters and lay or hang in the sun.

To keep colored clothes looking fresh and new do not soap or soak them overnight or use washing fluids. Do not put them all into the tub at once. Have fresh water as soon as the first becomes dirty. When hanging out turn and hang in the shade. Do not have the iron too hot when ironing.

In order to insure a good gloss on starched collars, first mix the starch with cold water, add a tiny lump of butter about the size of a small marble, then pour on the boiling water.

The more water used in boiling cabbage, greens, etc., the less objectionable will the smell given out by them, Cook says. A piece of bread tied in muslin and boiled with the cabbage also mitigates the smell. It should, however, be removed after fifteen minutes boiling and be burned.

To save time and gas when baking potatoes put them in the broiler instead of in the oven and they will bake twice as quickly and are delicious.

When peeling onions hold the hands under gently running water and you will have no reason to cry over your labor.

The little black specks that appear on silver articles, the boys have been away some time, should be cleaned with a paste of whiting, free of grit, and olive oil, says Cook. Then slightly polish with a piece of old silk.

In some cases the specks and stains are very obstinate, and it will be best to cover the article with the paste and allow it to remain on for a considerable time. It should then be wiped off and polished with either a piece of silk or a good soft piece of chamois leather and rouge.

Silver that has become scratched can be made quite smooth again by rubbing it well with a piece of chamois leather that has been rolled into a tight bag and dipped in sweet oil.

sea and also for the hours at the shore that are sure to be given over to all sorts of fascinating pleasures which the sand supplies. It is absolutely simple, made all in one and can be copied in flannel or other suitable material. For the little girls, striped fabrics are liked as well as plain and here, striped silk is trimmed with plain. The blouse and the bloomers are cut together and the skirt is separate, consequently when the swimming lesson is to be taken or similar exercise is to be enjoyed, the skirt can be slipped off, leaving the little wearer absolutely free and unhampered. Silk is unquestionably one of the best and most fashionable materials but mohair makes excellent suits and mohair trimmed with silk is always attractive.

that are shown in this picture may be taken as fairly typical of what is best and most interesting. Way at the extreme left is what is known as a one-piece suit, that is to say, the costume that is made with blouse and skirt cut in one, the fullness at the waist-line being held by means of a knotted sash and the suit is designed to be worn over tights. Mohair is the material shown here, trimmed with bathing suit satin and the combination is a happy one. Incidentally it would be well to note the shapely shoes that make a feature of the season and the pretty cap that is bright red to give a picturesque note in contrast with the dark colored suit. Empire effects are quite as well, like for the costume designed for the sea as they are for those of other needs. The Empire suit illustrated is made of plain bathing suit satin trimmed with dots.

It is very pretty and graceful and can be worn over either tights or bloomers. In this case, the shapely cap matches the trimming material, but as a rule, the caps are made of rubberized cloth that is to be found in almost every known color and so wonderfully flexible that it can be converted to many uses. One figure shows quite a different effect, the plain bodice that makes another feature of the season and the flounces that are pretty and graceful. Here, it is made of dark blue; satin and the bands are of ivory white. The shoes are of the blue and the stockings are white and the cap is rubberized cloth that matches the suit. Bloomers, tights or a combination under garment can be worn beneath it. Boys as a matter of course want the simplest suits that can be found. This one will be found excellent for the dip into the sights they were. These organizations represented labor and brotherhood, and as I looked upon them, strong in their sympathy for their departed brothers, and strong in their loyalty to each other, the real meaning of the words "organized labor" came to me as never before. Men of a high order of skill and intelligence; workers; producers;—can we wonder at the power they wield? In their hands they hold the industrial fate of the nation. How important, how essential, therefore, that those who have in their hands today the boys who will tomorrow be of these organizations, should train in them conscience, that they may later apply the golden rule in the dealings, stability of character, that they may not later be swept off their feet by the emotional utterances of fanatical orators; and patriotism, that this great body of men, many of whom are of foreign birth may recognize and appreciate the boundless opportunities held out to them and their children by the American flag, which asks no return unless danger threatens.

The best remedy for sunburn that I know of is not to go into the sun, but unfortunately we can't use it unless we are willing to entomb ourselves indoors. But we can and ought to be more careful in protecting ourselves when we go out into the sun and the beauty wisher must take every precaution against the reddening rays of Old Sol.

Sunburn is very injurious to the skin, not only the burning sensation and discomfort and the peeling, but as to the ultimate effect upon the skin. There are certain qualities in the sun's rays which coarsen the texture of the skin. The rays begin to show signs of being successful. For the first time in years, there is now a possibility of sitting in the shade of a deciduous tree with a degree of safety and comfort long unknown. Until this year, one could not approach a tree without encountering myriads of caterpillars and invariably, in my case at least, their favorite goal was my neck. I would almost as soon meet the man with horns as to experience the sensation of a caterpillar, wool or no wool, crawling on my neck. Therefore it is with an emotion of thanks to the various moth squabs who, after a long battle, have at last accomplished a wonderful degree of success. Apart from the personal discomfort of their presence, there was the great economic waste in the loss of fruit crops, and in the devastation and in hundreds of cases, the deaths of the trees themselves. It has been an expensive battle, but in the face of success, the laborer has proved himself well worthy of his hire.

Another thought that came to me as I looked upon the hundreds of fellow workmen who followed the remains of their comrades in labor to their final resting places, was that despite the commercialism of our age, and despite all we hear to the contrary, sentiment has not entirely departed from us, and it never will. There is something within everyone of us which quickens at the misfortune of one of our number and invariably expresses itself in an act of generosity. Often under the pressure of keen sympathy, one finds himself impelled to a benevolent act he would not have thought of otherwise. These impulses are good for us. They keep our well-springs of kindness from wholly drying up, and we should not therefore be surprised if the prominent building contractor who a short time ago had his workmen cease their hammering and sawing while a funeral was in progress nearby, which he may have forgotten in a short time, performed a little act of kindness which shall never be forgotten by the mourners. The man returning from his day's work and detained at a street crossing by a passing funeral, gave eloquent expression to his sentiment of respect for the dead by removing his hat as the hearse passed him. No sentiment is not dead among us, nor does it sleep, but it is as truly a part of human nature as ever it was, and human nature does not change.

Saved the Baby

It was in the narrow passageway between the Pellard stores. A mother had left her sleeping infant in his carriage near the door opening from the passageway, and had entered the store on a shopping expedition. A wagon approached from the far end of the passageway. Under ordinary circumstances it would have required careful driving to pass the baby carriage in safety. But the circumstances were extraordinary. The horses were unruly under the strain of an unreasonable driver who had every appearance of being intoxicated. Our hearts stood still. Somebody screamed. The horse stepped wildly up the passage, the driver shouting, "I can't help it! It's no place for a child!" The infant slipped out. Then someone—a woman—rushed to the carriage, pushed it through the open door into the Palmer street store, and the immense wagon rolled, noisily on to the street, the driver threatening to have every woman in Lowell "pinned" for interfering with a man who was minding his own business. Later I saw the baby carriage on Merrimack street. The babe, now wide awake, smiled and blinked at the passers-by. The mother chatted happily with a companion, wholly unconscious of her child's narrow escape from what seemed at least certain injury.

Brown Tails Routed

It is very evident that the long battle against the brown tail moth has begun to show signs of being successful. For the first time in years, there is now a possibility of sitting in the shade of a deciduous tree with a degree of safety and comfort long unknown. Until this year, one could not approach a tree without encountering myriads of caterpillars and invariably, in my case at least, their favorite goal was my neck. I would almost as soon meet the man with horns as to experience the sensation of a caterpillar, wool or no wool, crawling on my neck. Therefore it is with an emotion of thanks to the various moth squabs who, after a long battle, have at last accomplished a wonderful degree of success. Apart from the personal discomfort of their presence, there was the great economic waste in the loss of fruit crops, and in the devastation and in hundreds of cases, the deaths of the trees themselves. It has been an expensive battle, but in the face of success, the laborer has proved himself well worthy of his hire.

LADY LOOKABOUT

Truly a blunt stone may put a keen edge on a blade. This is the thought that came to me when I learned that a pupil of Mr. Barry's, of the Pawtucket school, was awarded the first prize for her suffrage essay. Mr. Barry has always tried to carry off the role of a rabid anti, but I have ever felt that he was not wholly sincere. That one of his pupils should have won first prize for a suffrage essay does not indicate that he instilled into her mind any of the "anti" ideas.

LOWELL WON A COUPLE O' GAMES

Local Team Twice Wal-
loped Burghers in a
Double BillZieser and Lohman
Were the Pitchers

(Special to The Sun)
FITCHBURG, June 23.—Lowell made it three straight from the Fitchburg team by defeating the Boosters 6 to 0 and 1 to 1 in a double header, Saturday afternoon. The contests brought forth very little joy to the 2000 or more fans who braved a threatening storm to encourage the Boosters to get started on the upward path. They were a disappointed crowd, as it is doubtful if the Fitchburg team ever played poorer, while on the other hand the Lowell team batted in a riled manner and batted both Mulrennan and Press hard. It was Lowell's day as everything broke poorly for Fitchburg.

Practically the entire team had off days with some of the errors of omission being unworthy of a layground recruit. Dumb work on the bases lack of ordinary knowledge as to rules and an inclination to throw the ball in the wrong direction put the Fitchburg pitchers in bed, slowed up the entire team and made the fans sore. The only bright spot in the entire afternoon was the Fitchburg point of view was in the eighth inning of the first game when they uncorked a batting and base running rally and turned in four runs. That wasn't enough, however, as the Lowell team had been presented with the game long before that. In the second contest the losers made a rally while Lowell found more than one opportunity to bunch hits while the Fitchburg players bunched errors.

Despite the poor showing of the team for the past two weeks and the appearance of a thunder storm and rain clouds as late as 3 o'clock a good sized crowd attended the double header. They entered the field still loyal to the home team but some of the players of omission were seen that day. The game was a tax. For the first time this year the fans feared individual players and the team as a whole. They were justified in their fears as the Boosters looked pretty cheap and weak compared with the lively, hard hitting, active Lowell club. The visitors have greatly improved since here before and worked together in a manner that is bound to lift them out of the last position in very quick order.

Putting Swayne in left field proved a good thing for the Lowell team as he captured six flies, some of which would be hits with an ordinary fielder in the garden. Ahearn caught a good game and batted hard, getting four hits, including a home run over the left field fence. Barrows also hit home and timely. Young was about the brightest light for Fitchburg. He was after everything, getting 12 chances in the first game and 11 in the second. He was the only one to hit twice in each game, while McCune batted good in the opening session.

Gaston had one of the poorest days since he joined the team. He threw poorly to third to catch a man running home in the first game and in the second dropped a third strike while trying to catch a runner. He made an attempt to touch the batter, or to throw to first until ordered to throw by McCune. Then he threw high and a runner scored. He was out on second. Then the Fitchburg team went into the air. McCune childishly remained standing still talking to Gaston instead of chasing the ball. Catcher and manager exchanged compliments while the game was being handed to Lowell.

That disgusted the fans and for the remainder of the game they cheered Lowell, jeered the local team and called for haste to get it out of the way. It was a very incident and will require some clever playing on the part of the Boosters to make the fans forget. It was only one of a series of incidents that will require some clever playing on the part of the Boosters to make the fans forget. It was only one of a series of incidents that will require some clever playing on the part of the Boosters to make the fans forget.

RACE FOR TITLE
Determine Champion
of Lowell and Vicinity

"Meet me at the band concert" is the slogan in the Sacred Heart parish this week. Hundreds will meet on the spacious rectory grounds next Saturday to observe the annual "at home" of the parish. The list of sports is the most notable to be held in the city for some time. The first number on the program will be the modified marathon to be run from Bell's Grove to the rectory grounds. Already over thirty contestants have signified their intentions of entering, and the list contains the names of such well-known amateurs as Billy Salmon, James Carr, George Goddard, Fred Couture, Joe Christo, James O'Neil and Christie Gorman. Interest in this race is unusual on account of the championship of the city being involved. Last year George Goddard won out over twenty-seven other contestants, and has since held the local championship.

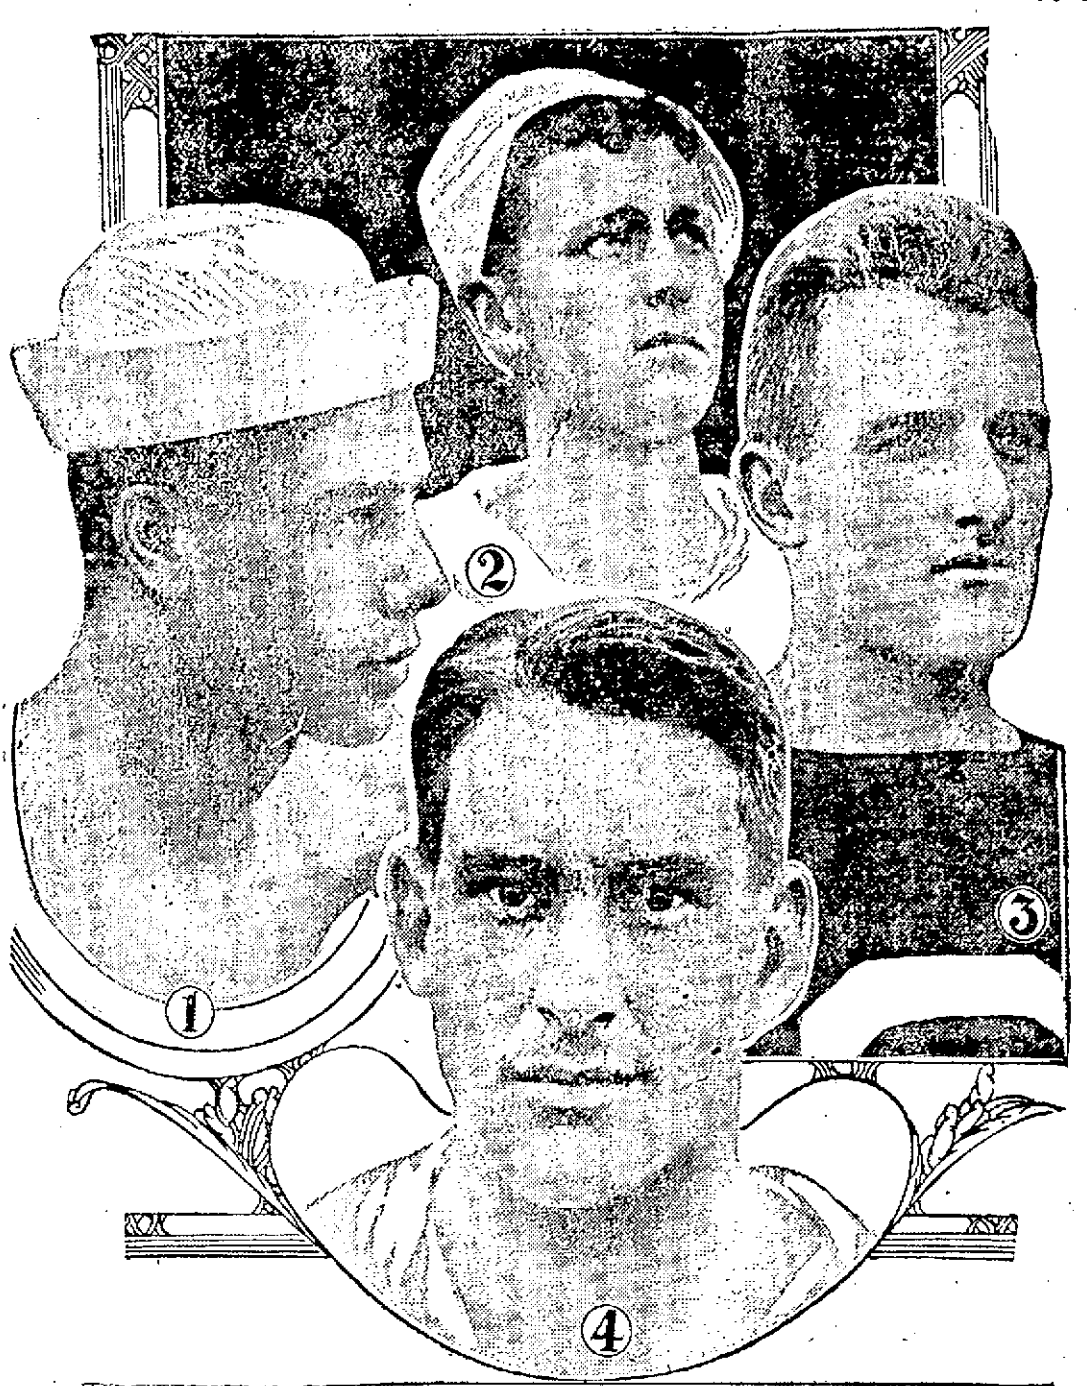

The route of the marathon will be as follows: Bell's Grove to Bridge street, to Merrimack square, to Central street, to Gorham street, to Moore street, to Meadowcroft street, to St. James street, to the grounds. The start will be made promptly at 2:30, and three automobiles will accompany the runners. Promptly upon arrival at the grounds, five prizes will be awarded, three being silver cups, one of which is of unusual size and beauty, standing fifteen inches high. The arrival on the grounds of the marathon runners will be the signal for opening the second part of the program of sports. This will include the broad jump, pole vaulting, shot putting, also a floor race, and a pie eating contest for boys and other contests for women and girls. All of the many music of Michael Gross's band will be played. The prize for the pie eating contest will be a silver cup. The prize for the shot putting, pole vaulting and jump will be a silver cup. The prize for the pie eating contest will be a silver cup. The prize for the shot putting, pole vaulting and jump will be a silver cup.

The only band concert to be given this evening in the city will be the Sacred Heart grounds by the Lowell Cadet band, hence the appropriateness of the slogan, "Meet me at the band concert."

AUTO DRIVER KILLED
CLARENCE G. KING LOST LIFE IN
RACE AT SACRAMENTO, CAL.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., June 23.—Clarence G. King, a 30-year-old driver, was killed today in a race here. He was driving a Ford car when he lost control of his machine and crashed into the fence. Several pieces of machinery were flying about in the air when the crash occurred. King was killed instantly. The race was being held on the grounds of the Sacramento Race Track. King was a well-known driver in the Sacramento area. He had been driving for several years and had a good record. The race was a very popular one and drew a large crowd. The police are investigating the cause of the accident. It is believed that King was driving too fast and lost control of his car. The race was held on a dirt track and the conditions were very hot. King was wearing a racing suit and helmet. He was a very experienced driver and had won many races before. The race was held on a very hot day and the track was very dry. King was driving a very fast car and was trying to win the race. He was driving too fast and lost control of his car. The race was held on a very hot day and the track was very dry. SOLD TO NEW YORKERS
DES MOINES, Ia., June 23.—An announcement was made today of the sale of George Mortlake, a left-handed pitcher by the Des Moines West-erners, for delivery in September at the close of the Western league season. Mortlake is leading the league at the present time with 10 victories and only four defeats.

POUGHKEEPSIE CREWS, EVENLY MATCHED,
SHOULD PUT UP CLOSE AND INTERESTING RACE

1. Captain KUERN of SYRACUSE 2. Captain JACOMINI of LELAND STANFORD
3. Captain SANBORN of COLUMBIA 4. Captain MERRICK of PENNSYLVANIA

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 23.—With the annual rowing argument of Yale and Harvard on the Thames decided, followers of aquatic sports now have their eyes focused on the Hudson, where the crews of five big colleges are finishing their conditioning for the annual Poughkeepsie regatta the country's blue ribbon rowing event. There is little or no betting except among partisans of the different crews, for the reason that all look to possess class and each appears to have an excellent chance. Of course Cornell and Columbia are considered the strongest crews in the event, but Syracuse and Pennsylvania have made late shifts in their crews which makes them look strong and appears to give them a look in for the honors. Leland Stanford, the only western crew in the race, is as far as her chances are concerned, an unknown quantity. The experts have no way to compare the crew with the other entries, and they have therefore made it the "dark horse" of the event. A close contest is predicted, and it is safe to say that whichever crew wins will have to fight over every inch of the course. Captains of the five crews are shown in the group.

TEAM IMPROVING THREE PITCHERS MATCH BROOKS

Lowell Team Boasts of Manager of Local Boy
Great Trio in Zieser, Houser and Green Trying to Get Bout With Williams

In spite of the fact that the Lowell club is firmly entrenched at present on the lowest rung of the New England league ladder, President Roach's team boasts as strong a pitching trio as could be wished for. Matty Zieser, Joe Houser and Paddy Green are three twirlers who would be welcomed in any camp in the league. Not excepting the great mound fortifications of Hugo Duffy and Al Peterson, there isn't a manager in the circuit who would cast aside a chance to grab any of them. If the local team starts to hit consistently and improves in the base running and fielding, Lowell will win a lot of ball games behind these three heavyweights. With a ball club going well behind him, any one of them is a mighty hard proposition to beat.

LEAGUE STANDINGS

Team	W	L	P. C.	P. C.
New England	15	15	15	15
Lawrence	23	15	657	571
Portland	23	15	657	571
Worcester	25	21	553	538
Manchester	21	25	553	538
Lowell	20	26	553	538
Pittsburgh	20	26	553	538
Lowell	15	29	353	551

With the team going well behind the pitchers, Lowell should get a start before long. The cellar position is beginning to get tiresome for us all, and the players are evidently beginning to get a wee bit peevish at the prolonged stay at the bottom of the heap.

The greatest cause for encouragement, perhaps, is the return of Howard Fahay to something like his form of last season. Fahay's stick was heard from more often this past week than during any seven-days stretch since he departed to the club, while his fielding has also picked up remarkably.

FANS' DAY AT BROOKLYN
LEAGUE TODAY—MUSIC FURNISHED
NEW YORK, June 23.—For the first time in many years admission to a big league ball game here was free today when the Brooklyn club of the Federal League gave a fans' day. President Robert F. Ward had engaged a band for the game with the Chicago club this afternoon. The purpose of the novelty was to add to the popularity of the Brooklyn club. The only other instance of a free game recalled here was years ago when the New York American league club failed to provide rain checks on a rainy day and looking any means of identifying those who had paid admission, gave the public free admission on the following day. Money deposited on or before Saturday, July 3rd, in The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank will bear interest from that date.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

There's no gainsaying the fact that Manchester has lately been obtaining as a baseball proposition. The Queen City is sure enough the Rip Van Winkle of New England sporting towns. When the club representing the city, two well known baseball men at its head and a fighting chance for the pennant Manchester has shown nothing like application. The attempt of Messrs. Keamy and Klerman to move on to Greenfield is not to be wondered at. Manchester has had ample opportunity to support a good ball club and has failed miserably to do so. Some cities are wonderful situations—for burying grounds.

Bill Mealy showed a flash of championship stuff at the tryouts in Boston Saturday when he cracked the existing record for 100 yards in 14 seconds. At the national championships last year in Baltimore Mealy demonstrated that he was the greatest hurdler in the country at this distance by putting up a new American record. His time Saturday was two seconds faster than the world's record held by Anderson of England but there is a grave question as to eligibility owing to a mixup by the officials. It's a pretty tough thing to have a group of careless officials roll one's clock over everything in sight this season, including the ten-mile run in this city on Memorial day, is training in the club for his regular end against Cliff Harman. The friends of the N. A. A. middle distance track were hoping for a Mealy victory, but could not expect it after Mealy's wonderful running in the intercollegiate this year.

Edouard Fabre, the crack Canadian distance runner, has captured everything in sight this season, including the ten-mile run in this city on Memorial day, is training in the club for his regular end against Cliff Harman. The friends of the N. A. A. middle distance track were hoping for a Mealy victory, but could not expect it after Mealy's wonderful running in the intercollegiate this year.

Tommy Talph was once more forced to take the dust of the Hector Meredith Saturday. The Penn filer scampered in a winner in the quarter-mile with Halpin close to his heels. The friends of the N. A. A. middle distance track were hoping for a Mealy victory, but could not expect it after Mealy's wonderful running in the intercollegiate this year.

Norman Tabor, the former Brown miller, who gave John Paul Jones such a close rub that the former Cornellian established a new American record for the distance, came close to setting up a new mark himself Saturday at the tryouts at the stadium. Axel Kiviat was outdistanced by some 40 yards. If the New Yorker had been in better form and nudged Tabor a new world's record might have been made.

Poor Ty Cobb has fallen below the .400 mark in his batting. Cobb's bat is rebounding now to only a .350 rate. The average for him is .350. Unless he suffers an injury Cobb ought to establish new figures in runs scored and stolen bases.

NEGRO HEAVYWEIGHTS TO
BOSTON ARENA

Sam Langford, the colored heavy-weight, known in boxing circles as the Boston Tar Baby, and Sam McVea of California and Paris, are headliners that will anchor the card at the Boston Arena Tuesday night. Their bout will be embellished by a set of preliminary matches that for balance and promise would be a good one. The two main events are a number of similar character decided at the Three A club this season.

The semi-final bout between Dave Powers of Michigan and George Aker of Cambridge, a former main bout boxer, is a match that evokes more than a passing interest with fans who are accustomed to the ring. The two main events are a number of similar character decided at the Three A club this season.

Only two men in the league—Farrell of Portland and Walter of Lawrence are secure in the 30th class, the former with a record of 15 wins and 3 losses with a mark of .558. The few others who are still included in the honor class are barely holding on by a thread, and the one game may throw some of them out of the select class.

The following table shows how many times each club has been blanketed in the second column:

Lawrence	11
Portland	4
Manchester	3
Lowell	3
Lowell	1

Fuller leads the twirlers in the number of shut-out games, having four to his credit, and George Stearns of the local club has three, also Rittig of Lewiston. Barron of Lawrence, Smith of Manchester, and George Stearns of the local club have two shut-out games to their credit, and two others in the league who have pitched a shut-out game are Zieser of Lowell, Thompson of Lawrence, Pearson of Lawrence, Turner of Worcester, Pennington of Fitchburg, and George Stearns of the local club. The following table shows how many times each club has been blanketed in the second column:

LIQUOR AT A PICNIC

CHILMSFORD CONSTABLE MADE AN ARREST—DEFENDANT FINED $50—OTHER CASES

Officer Herbert Richardson of the Chelmsford police attended the annual outing of Lowell City Lodge, No. 457, I. O. O. F., held yesterday at Crystal Lake, North Chelmsford, without invitation, and broke up the day's festivities by arresting one of the promoters, Max Solomon of this city, charged with the illegal sale of liquor. It is also alleged that Mr. Richardson seized eight cases of beer.

Over 200 members and friends of the lodge assembled at the grounds yesterday to participate in the entertainment afforded by the committee in charge. Before the program had gotten underway, however, Constable Richardson suddenly appeared on the scene and prevented a continuance of the observance by a raid and arrest. It is claimed that some of the picnicers held checks with which they secured the liquor.

Solomon was arraigned in the local police court this forenoon and, through his counsel, A. S. Goldman, entered a plea of nolo which was accepted by the court. The minimum fine of $50 was then imposed and paid by the defendant.

Assault on Child

Harold Wilkins, a lad of 15 years, pleaded guilty to assault and battery upon three-year-old Joseph Edward LeMay. Both parties live in Dracut and during a dispute recently Wilkins threw a stone at a wagon which struck the child, one of the occupants, under the right eye, leaving an ugly looking scar. A fine of $20 was imposed and Wilkins was given one month to make the payment.

Disturbance on Car

A disturbance on a Tewksbury car in which Arthur Abrahamson, Andrew Bergstrom of Olaf Johnson were implicated, resulted in the appearance of the trio in court charged with drunkenness. According to the testimony of Police Officer Farmer and others, the three defendants created a general disturbance by bothering the passengers and making a nuisance of themselves. The men said they were employed in Graniteville as stone cutters. Each paid a fine of $10.

Christos Andros and Ellen Johnson were adjudged guilty of a statutory offense and each was ordered to pay a fine of $15. Attorney George P. Toye appeared for the woman.

Drunken Offenders

There was another big array of drunken offenders brought before Judge Enright in police court this forenoon despite the fact that 15 men making their first appearance were released by Probation Officer Slattery.

Ernest Levesque made his fourth appearance within a year though he has spent most of the time since last October in various institutions for the erring. He received a three months' sentence to the Lowell jail this forenoon. Patrick V. Crogan was complained of by his wife for drunkenness and abuse. It being his fourth appearance, he was committed to the house of correction for five months and appealed.

Frank J. O'Brien, arrested on a capias for failing to pay a $15 fine, made a plea for an extension of time, offering as an excuse that he lost his job in a local factory the week after the fine was imposed. Judge Enright gave him two more weeks to report favorably to the probation officer. Sixteen other defendants were disposed of with suspended sentences and small fines.

Charge of Larceny

A young girl pleaded guilty to a complaint charging her with the larceny of $9.00 from M. A. Demers of 31 Ash street. Inspector Walsh, who made the arrest, told the court that the defendant visited Mrs. Demers on Saturday afternoon and when leaving took the money which was in a bag on the table. The woman made a plea for leniency and at the recommendation of Deputy Wemyss she was placed on probation for one year.

Drunkenness and larceny of $155 from John Paddock were the complaints preferred against Antoine Kokaski, who entered a plea of guilty to each. He is alleged that the defendant, while under the influence of liquor, entered Paddock's room and took the money from a closet. A fine of $10 was imposed and Kokaski was given one week to make the payment.

Elmer H. Linstead denied that he was guilty of a charge of being a common drunkard though his divorced wife and another lady testified that they had seen him under the influence of liquor many times during the past few months. His case was continued until Thursday for further investigation.

Mexico from the territory of the United States were received today by the department of justice.

Although Generals Huerta and Orozco were released on bond they will be kept under surveillance by border agents of the department of justice. Just what evidence has been gathered against the former dictator and his associates has not been disclosed, but it is understood to relate mostly to alleged recruiting of Mexicans on American territory.

Officials at the state department declined to say whether the detention of Huerta arresting, in effect, any contemplated counter-revolution movement was a part of the Washington government's plan for compelling a solution by Carranza, Villa and Zapata factions now in the field.

his trip to Cornish, N. H., it is unlikely that there will be any new steps in the government's policy toward Mexico.

In fact, while there is still a delicate situation with Germany, it is said in well-informed quarters that positive action by the United States in the Mexican situation was very unlikely. The American government will give the warring factions more time to come to an agreement, in the meantime, it is believed, preventing Huerta and others from complicating the situation, and exerting pressure for the launching of the original constitutionalist party to come to an agreement, on a government that may be accorded recognition.

RELEASED ON BONDS
EL PASO, Tex., June 28.—The arrest of Generals Victoriano Huerta and Pascual Orozco here last night on charges of violating the neutrality laws of the United States by attempting to set on foot an armed expedition to overthrow the government of Mexico, was followed by the release of the two leaders on $15,000 bonds and Orozco was given his liberty under a bond of $10,000. It is understood that adherents of the former president of Mexico were prepared to furnish surety greatly in excess of the amount fixed.

With the former generals at liberty, Mexican and American officials were watching developments among their adherents. Apparently the tendency of other factional leaders was to await the next movement of their opponents. Despite the declaration of Huerta, that he would never enter Mexico again at the head of an armed force and would not return to his country until Mexico was restored, federal officials did not relax their vigilance in watching the movements of the former president. A large crowd that gathered at his daughter's home continued to shout "vivas" for Huerta until long after midnight.

As to the legal phases of Huerta's arrest, there was no action looked for until July 1, the date set for the Huerta-Orozco hearing.

General Huerta, en route to El Paso, left an El Paso and Southwestern train at Newman, N. M., intending to complete the 20-mile trip by automobile

Instead, the former president was invited to accompany United States officials to the federal building for a conference with representatives of the department of justice. The trip to the city was made under escort of the 15th United States cavalry under Col. Geo. H. Morgan. Huerta made no objection.

News of Huerta's arrival spread rapidly and so great a crowd gathered around the federal building that on request of Mayor Lea federal and military officials agreed to take the two officers to Fort Bliss, pending action by the department of justice representatives. Both were released and Huerta in conference with newspapermen expressed his appreciation of the courtesy shown him.

NOT IN NEED OF FOOD
NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—Vera Cruz is not in need of food, according to a lengthy cablegram received here from General Carranza's foreign minister. The official branded as false the reports of a food shortage in the city.

UNITED STATES WARNING

NOTE SENT TO CHINA AND JAPAN ON SO-CALLED OPEN DOOR POLICY

PEKING, June 28, 12:15 p. m.—Warning that the United States would not recognize any agreement between China and Japan which impaired American rights in China or endangered the so-called "open door" policy, was conveyed to the governments of both China and Japan in an identical note from Washington which was delivered about May 15. The notes were handed to the foreign offices of both countries at Peking and Tokyo and were in the Japanese ultimatum insisting upon concessions from the former nation.

They Will Hold Their Annual Outing at Nantasket Beach on Thursday, July 15

The annual outing of the clerks employed at the A. G. Pollard Co. will be held on Thursday, July 15, "Merchants' day," and the affair promises to be even more successful than the outings held in former years. Special cars will be boarded on that day, and the objective point of the gathering will be Nantasket beach where a program replete with enjoyment will be carried out. The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of Paul A. Doherty, Raoul Monier and Charles A. Delaronde, and these gentlemen are lending all their spare time and efforts to make the event an unprecedented success. Yesterday, Messrs. Doherty and Monier visited the resort to make arrangements for feeding the party, and according to the report made by them to a Sun representative this morning the clerks will be treated to a repast fit for kings. A number of innovations have been planned and they will be announced later.

ZIONISTS MEET

Brandeis Hailed as Leader of All Jews at Convention

BOSTON, June 28.—Every speaker won applause at the joint opening session of the Zionist convention in Ford Hall, yesterday morning, because each made mention of Louis D. Brandeis. Punditism broke loose when one speaker hailed him as the future leader of all Jews.

Later, when Brandeis rose to speak, Chairman Jacob de Haas beat a futile tattoo with his gavel. For several minutes the audience forgot everything but cheering for Brandeis and the singing of the Jewish national song, and only with difficulty was order restored.

Speaking of the relief work in Palestine, made necessary by the present war, Mr. Brandeis, as chairman of the provisional Zionist committee, paid tribute to the aid received from United States officials, and declared that Zionists and American alike are striving for the principles of brotherhood, democracy, social justice and liberty.

Rabbi H. H. Rubenowitz, chairman, opened the meeting, taking as his text, the words from Proverbs: "Without a Vision a People Perisheth." He said that while the Jews have had their Rothschilds and their Monnettes, the program of endeavor has not been sufficiently broad. He argued that the Zionist movement supplies all that has been lacking, for its program not only includes economic advance, but a noble, spiritual culture, in accordance with the traditions of the race, and insists that the great passions, hopes and yearnings which are expressed in the Hebrew language.

Capt. Coady brought the regrets of Gov. Walsh that important engagements called him to a neighboring state. In the name of the governor, the captain presented the greetings of the commonwealth, declared himself particularly impressed with the feminine representation, and concluded: "If the governor were present, I don't know but what he might consider entering the matrimonial estate."

E. J. Slattery, of Mayor Curley's staff, brought the regrets of the mayor, that he was on his way to San Francisco, and likewise the cause of Zionism to that of home rule for Ireland, which aroused the audience to a great demonstration, and Mr. Brandeis rose and shook hands with the speaker at the close.

Judge Julian W. Mack of Chicago declared there is no incompatibility between Zionism and patriotic Americanism. "You will become a better American if you proclaim yourself a member of your own people," he urged that every people should have a central rallying place for the development of its own culture, and closed with a tribute to Louis D. Brandeis, which caused a prolonged outburst.

Dr. Stephen S. Saks, speaking as a radical, declared that there is room in the Zionist movement for both radicals and orthodox Jews. He said the Jews are rendering service on the battlefields of Europe to whichever nation they happened to be a part. "A distinguished American Jew has said that the Zionist movement is a mistake, because it is a manifestation of the same spirit which has brought about the European war, but I claim," exclaimed Dr. Saks passionately, "that it is the right and duty of every lesser nationality to live. We know we are not jingoists. We know we are a people."

Rabbi Meyer Berlin spoke in Yiddish as an orthodox Jew, urging the breadth of the movement, and its prime importance. This is his fifth Zionist convention; he has attended four in other parts of the world. Miss Leon spoke of the work of the Hadassah, a Jewish society of women which supports nurses in Palestine.

Louis D. Brandeis was given an ovation. He declared the great assembly of those who had succeeded in gaining entrance and those who had tried unsuccessfully constitute a very large part of Jews of the state, and there will be the best evidence as to the great interest taken generally in the Zionist movement, which is to lead to the solution of the Jewish problem, because it will make possible the ending of misery. He urged his hearers to bind themselves in organizations, for only by action can they be true to themselves, to their race, to the American government, and to the principles they represent—social justice, democracy and liberty.

BANQUET TONIGHT

BOSTON, June 28.—Separate conventions of the various Zionist organizations meeting here were begun today. The first body to come together was the Federation of American Zionists, with Louis Elpeky of New York presiding. Reports of several committees were to be heard and a discussion on the general Jewish situation was planned.

Other associations to meet today were the Hadassah, the women's Zionist society, and the Order of the Sons of Zion.

Catholic Sunday School Presents a Parrot and Chair to Rev. James C. Redican, Who Retires as Director

BOSTON, June 28.—The Chinese Catholic Sunday school, which meets at 22 Harvard street, was surprised yesterday afternoon to learn that Cardinal O'Connell had relieved Rev. James C. Redican, who has been the director for six years, and assigned him to more important work in the propagation of the faith society. Rev. George Lee of St. James' church was appointed his successor.

At the close of the session the Chinese presented Fr. Redican with a parrot of $100 in gold, and the English teachers presented him with a leather reclining chair. Elmer Lee, a Cambridge laundryman, and Thomas M. Devlin, senior English teacher, made the presentation speeches. Frs. Redican and Lee responded feelingly, and the latter afterward baptized Henry, Blanche and Mary Fen, children of Mr. and Mrs. Chin Fen of East Boston.

LOWELL HIGH GOLFER

PERCY PARKER COMPETES IN STATE JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP WHICH OPENED TODAY

BOSTON, June 28.—At Alhambra, in Newtonville, today and on following days the future great golfers of this section will enjoy their annual tournament for state junior honors, while on Wednesday and Thursday, at the Brookline Country club, the annual open tournament of the Massachusetts Golf association will be played.

Last year, when the state junior championship was played and won at Oakley by Raymond Quimet, only 57 participated, but at least 20 more are expected to take-up this time.

George Kerrigan of Atlantic, brother to Tommy Kerrigan, the professional at the Dedham Country and Polo club; Percy Parker of Lowell High, Joe and Tom Lally and Walter Barkhouse of Brookline High, George Reid of Milton, Neal Walnwright of Noble & Greenough, M. P. Graham of Waltham High and Ray Manning of Woodland are among the young golfers of already proven ability who are entered. Young Quimet will not play this time.

In the qualifying round last year, Percy Parker, the Lowell High golfer, tied with James McAndrews of Dorchester, with 82 for the best score. He was eliminated in the second round of match play by George Kerrigan, after an exact hole had been entered. Kerrigan qualified last year with 85, and later being a strong contender for honors was put out of the running by Raymond Quimet in the third round by 2 and 1.

In defending his title as state champion Wallaston will have pitted against him one of the best pairs of amateurs and pros in this country, including Tom McNamee, who finished second place in the recent United States open championship. Alec Ross of Braintree, Orrin Terry of Belmont Spring, runner-up to Brady last year at Belmont; Pat Doyle of Myopia, Tommy Kerrigan of Dedham, Charlie Burgess of Woodland, J. F. Mulenby of Wellesley, Ralph Thomas of Framingham, Matt Campbell of the Country club, and a number of others.

In the list of outside entries the names of Alec and MacDonald Smith, Wilfrid Reid, Louis Teter, and A. J. Anderson of Rouleau, France, appear. Of the amateurs entered for this event the most promising is Francis Quimet. The Country club links will be open for practice today and Tuesday for those who have entered for the tournament.

FORMER FRENCH TEACHER

BRO. GONZALVUS IS OFFICIAL INTERPRETER IN THE WAR DEPT.—SERVED IN TRENCHES

Edmond Ginet, a graduate of St. Joseph's college, this city, and residing at 14 Spaulding street, received a postal card from Bro. Gonzalvus, his former teacher, who is now fighting under the colors of France in the great European conflict.

The brother states he has seen considerable fighting since he left Lowell, and had been at the front for several months until a few weeks ago when he was transferred to Havre, France, where he is acting as official French and English interpreter for the British and French armies. The brother is enjoying the best of health and states he has been very fortunate, for although some of his comrades on the battlefield have been killed, he has never received the slightest injury. He likes his new position and wishes to be remembered to his Lowell friends.

Bro. Gonzalvus was stationed in Lowell as a teacher at St. Joseph's college and during his stay in this city made a host of friends, who will be pleased to learn he has been transferred from the battlefield to a government position in which there is nearly so much risk as in fighting in the trenches.

A deputation of Russian women have asked permission from the government to form a volunteer legion to serve as regular soldiers. These women assert that they are ready to assume all military duties except actual engagement in battle and are particularly desirous of being employed for patrol service.

HENRY SULLIVAN'S SWIM

HE SWAM 10 MILES IN MERRIMACK YESTERDAY—TRAINING FOR THE EVENT WILL START ON JULY 15

Henry Sullivan, the Lowell boy who is to swim Sam Richards, the Boston marvel, from Nantasket beach to Provincetown on Aug. 31, will start to train July 16, during his annual vacation period. At the present time three Boston clubs have offered him the use of their quarters during the training period, undoubtedly with the idea of getting him to swim under their colors, but "Sully," who is a firm believer in the slogan "trade at home," will enter the water flying the colors of the C. Y. M. L. of this city, or none at all. During the past two weeks Sullivan has done a lot of fresh water swimming, and yesterday he took a jaunt up the Merrimack for a distance of ten miles. In the coming match he feels confident of breaking the breast stroke long distance swimming record, which stands at the present time at a little over 13 miles, and if either Richards or he accomplish the task of swimming the full distance of 50 miles, they will break the world's record for time spent in the water, which is 23 hours and some minutes. A host of local admirers have expressed the intention of accompanying the local lad on the swim, and a special steamer will be chartered for their convenience.

UNITED STATES ARMY FIT THOUGH SMALL

"WE must be ready to make war in order to keep the blessings of peace," declared Lindley M. Garrison, secretary of war, at the Lake Mohonk arbitration conference. "The freedom of our people under our own institutions to develop and expand and make the most of themselves without fetters or restrictions is the very Ark of the Covenant to us, and if we are worthy to possess those institutions we must show that we cherish them and will protect and defend them."

The regular army of the United States consists of 4,701 officers and 87,781 men. Of these 78 officers and 17,901 men belong to the coast artillery and are therefore practically stationary in coast defenses; 1,008 officers and 18,431 men belong to the staff, technical and noncombatant branches of the army, including recruits and men engaged in recruiting. This leaves the army which can be moved from place to place—that is, the mobile army, so called—composed of 2,935 officers and 51,448 men.

Practically all the organizations in the army are on what is known as a peace footing, which means that an infantry company, which upon a war footing should have 150 men, now has 55 men; a cavalry troop, which upon a war footing should have 100 men, now has 70 men; an artillery battery, which upon a war footing should have 171 men, now has 133 men. The coast artillery companies are always kept on a war footing of 104 men each.

As a result in continental United States the mobile army at the last report consisted of 1,495 officers and 29,405 men.

The organized militia of the various states totals 3,323 officers and 119,987 men. If all of the national guard could be summoned in the event of a war and should all respond (an inconceivable result) and if they were all found fairly efficient in the first line—that is, the troops who would be expected immediately to take the field—we could summon a force in this country of regulars and national guard amounting to 9,815 officers and 159,492 men.

The National Security league, composed of some of the nation's most eminent men—such as Joseph H. Choate, Alton B. Parker and Henry L. Stimson—after an inquiry into the state of the national defenses, declared of the army that:

It is widely scattered and cannot be speedily mobilized.

It is short of officers.

It is short of ammunition.

It has no organized reserve.

That coast defenses are inadequate and fortifications insufficiently man-

That the national guard is below its proper strength in men, equipment and efficiency.

Secretary Garrison has been quoted as saying that an army of 350,000 men in the first line would be large enough to protect our coast against any possible invasion of the United States proper, although we would have to depend on a navy to defend the Philippines, Hawaii and other insular possessions.

Of the national guardsmen Secretary Garrison says some are efficient, others fairly efficient and others absolutely inefficient and undisciplined.

The volunteer army act is intended to provide for the emergency of a sudden call to war. The matter has been subject for study, experiment and debate ever since the civil war. As soon as congress authorizes the president to use the military power of the country the standing army of 200,000 men automatically, as it were, expands to millions by summoning recruits to fill out the skeleton companies and regiments to the maximum and the formation of new regiments.

The military system has been so centralized that there can be no hitch between state and federal powers. The state volunteers pass immediately under control of the federal power, and the president directs the formation of field armies, beginning with brigades, which form divisions and these again army corps.

The proceedings of the Spanish-American war would be followed—that is to say, the raw regiments would gather in camps convenient to the coast either in point of distance or rapid transportation facilities. The war maneuvers of the past few years have been practice maneuvers in mobilization as well as in strategy and tactics, and concentration of bodies will keep pace with the formation of units ready for the front.

The volunteer act is designed to obviate all the trouble that was encountered at the beginning of the war with Spain, when strife among the volunteer organizations for assignment and the political influence exerted interfered materially with the work of getting the volunteer army in working shape.

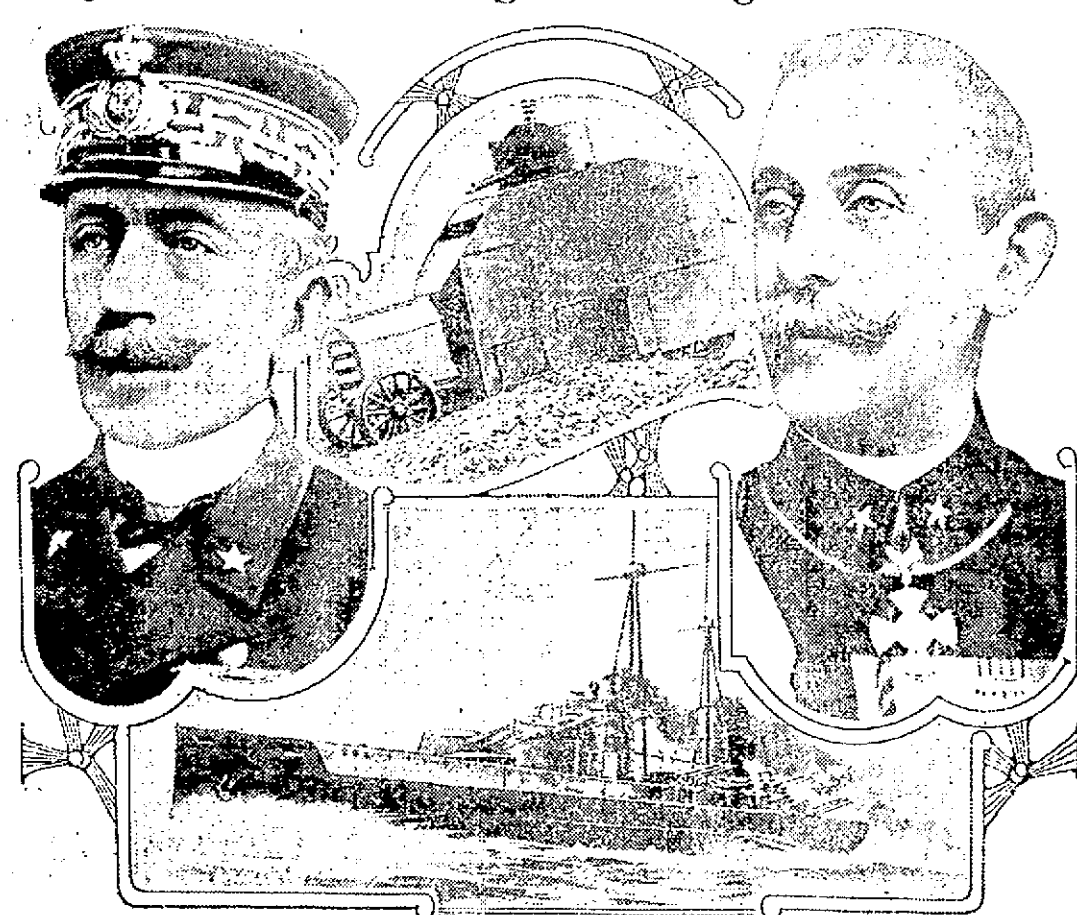

Under the act the president may call out the volunteer army by proclamation and disband it as soon as peace is formally declared.

Using the experience of the civil war in both northern and southern states, allowing for alien and other nonmilitary elements and noting the results in the European war, an expert estimates the actual military strength of the country at 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 the first year of war and 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 in a three or four year contest.

It must be kept in mind that this estimate applies to men only and does not include equipment for battle. European countries which have suddenly called great armies to the field find themselves seriously handicapped in this respect.

In the opinion of Major E. P. O'Hara, assistant to the chief of ordnance, it would take manufacturers about six months to get into full stride, but after that there would be no particular difficulty in securing ammunition as rapidly as might be needed.

Italy Now Looms Large In Foreground of War

Photos by American Press Association.

Admiral Viale, Italian minister of marine. Italian armored auto. General Zappelli, minister of war. Italian Dreadnought Conti di Cavour.

IT is Italy that looms large now in the foreground of the European tragedy. Her entrance into the great conflict stirred throughout the world one of the deepest thrills of the war.

Everywhere Catholics are trembling for their beloved St. Peter's, fearing lest its wondrous dome become a mark for hostile air men. Everywhere lovers of the beautiful are fearing lest Venice, the world's most beautiful city, should be destroyed. All over Italy there are treasured relics of the past which, like Venice itself, never could be reconstructed.

But Italy in determining to unsheathe the sword seemed confident that she could protect her borders. The masses, who inspired the king, share his confidence. The fears felt outside Italy are unknown there. In their supreme moment the people have placed their entire trust in Victor Emmanuel, hold him to be the king they need at such a time and are assured that he will lead them to victory.

D'Annunzio, the Italian poet, expressed the sentiments of all his countrymen when he declared his admiration for Victor Emmanuel and said:

"It would be impossible to imagine a better informed man. On hearing him speak one might almost receive the impression of being in Paris conversing with a statesman thoroughly conversant with the subject from the French viewpoint; at others in Berlin talking with a minister of the German empire; or in London, in Vienna or Petrograd. The Balkans and eastern Mediterranean are so familiar to him that he might have lived there all his life.

"His lucidity of mind is astounding and only surpassed by his unpretentious manner, which put one completely at ease. There is amazement that this ruler, in addition to fulfilling the duties of state, could absorb so much knowledge and possess such a clear and certain perception of foreign countries, interests and men."

Something of the same confidence was shown significantly from a far more eminent quarter when the pope refused to revive the sore old question of temporal power, removed all possible cause for friction between the Vatican and the Italian government and declined to shelter within the extra-territoriality of his court envoys from the nations with whom Italy was at war.

That Italy had well prepared for taking up arms there can be no question. When the war started ten months ago there were at least a million Italian workmen scattered through the hostile lands. The majority of them were actually in the war zone and were sent home. Italy has absorbed all this mass of her people in her fields and factories. In addition were those who had not emigrated. The stream of emigration from Italy to the United States and South America practically ceased with the war.

The aeroplane factories in Italy have been producing their maximum output for several months, some of them building duplicates of French and German aeroplanes, and partial deliveries have already been made of large orders placed in the United States.

Two well known American pilots, Ellwood G. Doherty and Lansing Callan of Hammondsport, N. Y., have been at Taranto since January, instructing Italian military pupils in the operation of flying boats of the American type.

Pittsburgh Industries which make war material have had large Italian orders. Heavy purchases of horses have been made in this country. Enormous quantities of wheat have been imported from Argentina and the United States, until it is said that Italy will need no more grain for a year to come.

Coal in large quantities has been contracted for in the United States, and some of the cargoes have been delivered. Even with England as an ally Italy cannot afford to depend on Cardiff and Newcastle for coal for her navy and her state railways.

The spirit of the Italian troops is excellent, and the officers are full of confidence, not only because of the enthusiasm displayed by the men, but by reason of the superiority of arms which they carry.

It is said that Italy possesses the most powerful machine guns in existence, capable of firing 1,400 bullets a minute, covering an area of 500 square yards. Italy has also adopted a new type of gun carriage, enabling the transport, even up steep mountains, of heavy siege guns, through a mechanism in the carriage which propels the cannon.

Italy is also now particularly well supplied with motor contrivances for war purposes. Not only did she have much experience in the use of motor trucks in her war in Tripoli, but since the opening of the present war and the value of the armored automobile was proved by Germany, Italy has been rapidly adding to her supplies.

In air craft Italy is believed to be far ahead of Austria. After France she was the first nation to take up the aeroplane, and her fliers are among the bravest.

U. S. S. Arizona Most Powerful Warship In World

A WARSHIP capable of throwing a broadside of 16,500 pounds a distance of fourteen miles is the latest of Uncle Sam's marine creations.

This is the approximate amount of metal that can be shot from the twelve fourteen-inch guns of the battleship Arizona. The Arizona, launched at the Brooklyn navy yard June 13, and her sister ship, the Pennsylvania, will be the two most powerful sea fighters afloat.

While the caliber of the guns of Great Britain's giant seafighter is greater, she has not the great number of guns that the Arizona and her sister ship have. The Queen Elizabeth is fitted out with eight fifteen-inch guns, while the American warship carries twelve fourteen-inch cannon. It is the greater number, though of smaller caliber, that makes naval experts on this side of the Atlantic believe that the United States has the greater offensive fighter of the two.

Both the bow and stern fire of the Arizona is also greater than in the English vessels. In the front and rear the Arizona can discharge six of her big guns at one time. They are so situated that, without danger to the vessel itself or any one on board, the Arizona can fire 8,300 pounds of metal at an enemy either in front or behind. There are only four turrets on the new warship, but each holds three of the big guns of the main battery.

This feature is a new departure in marine architecture. Up to the present time no vessel carried more than two guns in one turret. The Dreadnought New York and Texas are the biggest vessels in the United States fleet and have ten fourteen-inch guns in five turrets. The new plan solves the problem of greater armament without sacrifice of space that would be otherwise utilized. The designers of the Arizona believe that it will be very successful.

The initial velocity of the shells from the Arizona will be about 100 feet a second greater than those of the Queen Elizabeth. When the shells of the British warship leave the guns they will go through space at the rate of 2,400 feet a second, while those of the United States craft will travel at the rate of 2,500 feet a second. Consequently when one of the shells of the American craft hits a target it will have more shattering force, even though the pride of England fires heavier shells.

The cost of firing a broadside is about $12,000, as each shot totals about $1,000, according to the estimates of the navy department. The Arizona also has a powerful secondary battery of twenty-two five-inch guns and ten smaller cannon.

The main armor belt of the Arizona is about thirteen inches thick. There will be about 175,000 pounds of hardened steel to protect the "belly" from an enemy's shells, and officers believe that it is an almost perfect defense.

The total displacement of the Arizona is 31,400 tons as against the New York's 27,000 tons. She is to be an oil burning vessel and will carry more than 500,000 gallons of oil fuel. The twelve boilers are to furnish power to drive the Arizona at twenty-one knots an hour. They will develop 34,000 horsepower, which is the greatest on any warship on this side of the Atlantic. She will carry 1,000 officers and men.

There are about ten miles of piping ways into the East river. The little son of Constructor Bailey put the first bolt in place when the keel of the vessel was laid, fourteen months ago.

The first part of the Arizona to be built was the bottom, or keel. Next the bulkheads were constructed and the outside plates of the vessel were put in place. Building a ship from the inside is quite a novelty, but this is just what Bailey and his men have accomplished.

One man, was killed since the vessel was started. More than 100 men have been injured.

For the launching of the great warship more than 25,000 pounds of tallow was necessary to grease the ways which were covered to a depth of several inches.

Much work has to be done on the Arizona after she is launched, and it throughout the warship for the oil system, the water service, steam and feed lines.

In the turbines there are more than 300,000 blades of various sizes, and all have been built by government workers. The hull construction was done by Assistant Naval Constructor John E. Bailey, who also supervised the building of the New York. Naval Constructor Robert Stocker is head of the division, and it was his duty to give the signal sending the big vessel down the ways.

will probably be a year before she is finished.

Meanwhile the discussion grows more acute as to the relative value of great warships and the smaller craft such as submarines for defensive purposes. Despite the experiences in the war in Europe, in which great battleships have been sunk in a few minutes by a single torpedo fired by a submarine, the naval experts believe that the day of the Dreadnought is far yet from seeing its sundown.

HOUSE AND BARN BURNED $900,000 OF STATE FUNDS

SELECTMAN PARK OF CHELMFORD SUFFERS BIG LOSS BY FIRE—CAUSE UNKNOWN

A disastrous fire occurred in Chelmsford about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the house and barn of selectman A. Heady Park, together with considerable household furniture, wagons, tools, harnesses and other implements, were destroyed. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Smoke was discovered issuing from the barn by Fire Observer Hammond of the Robin Hill observatory and he sent an alarm to the fire department. Before the arrival of the fire fighters the barn had been ruined and the dwelling was enveloped in flames. The firemen put their efforts into saving the ell of the house, a nearby garage and a dwelling owned by Howard Melvin, which was also in danger.

Fire in Garage

Fire in the City Hall garage, Mark McCallan proprietor, caused a telephone alarm at 8:25 o'clock last evening, followed by a bell alarm from box 12, corner of Moody and Worthen streets. The fire started from the back of a small engine of a motorcycle and a small quantity of gasoline became ignited. The quick response of members of Hose 6, followed by other fire apparatus, prevented the blaze from spreading, and little damage resulted.

Damaged by Fire

A motorcycle owned by Henry Wilcox of 25 Ames street was badly damaged by fire on South street early yesterday morning. An alarm from box 215 at 12:52 o'clock called out a portion of the fire department and, though the oil caused the machine to burn briskly, a couple of hand chemicals quenched the flames and saved part of the frame. The fire probably started from back-firing.

Roof Caught Fire

Box 8 at 10:45 o'clock yesterday forenoon was for a fire on the roof of a house on Lakeview avenue, opposite Front street. No damage. Another garage fire occurred late Saturday night in the establishment of John J. Hogan on Varnum avenue. The damage was slight.

Rogers Street Dump

LOWELL INCLUDED IN CITIES WHERE ROAD WORK IS BEING DONE BY HIGHWAY COMMISSION

More than 250 cities and towns in all parts of Massachusetts will benefit by the road work which is either in process of construction or about to be begun by the state highway commission. There are almost 350 different pieces of road work, varying in length from sections of two miles or longer to strips of only a few rods. This work represents an expenditure of more than $900,000, which is the largest part of the allotment for state and other highways to be added to Massachusetts' system of improved roads this season.

There still remains to be allotted some money from the general appropriation for new state highways, but the great bulk of the work has already been laid out. This does not include such part as the state highway commission may spend this year of the $2,500,000 provided by a special act of the legislature for the construction of new state roads in the western counties.

About $800,000 of the $747,164.85 which the commission had available for new standard state highways has been allotted in 50 cities and towns. The $185,000 from the motor vehicle fees fund which the commission can spend on through roads which are not state highways has been allotted in 134 towns.

The $50,000 available under the Small Towns act for construction work in towns contributing nothing will be divided among 65 towns; while 26 towns will benefit from the $50,000 for small towns of more than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money. A third $50,000 set aside for towns of less than $1,000,000 valuation, which contribute road money, will be spread over 69 towns.

One of the largest and most important pieces of state road being constructed this year in this part of the state is in Randolph, on the direct route between this city and Brockton. It is of concrete and 1 1/2 miles in length. An important addition of similar material is being made in North Andover, on the Lawrence-Salem route, while in Methuen, on the Lowell-Lawrence route, a 2 1/2-mile stretch of bituminous macadam is being built.

ARE FIGHTING FURIOUSLY

GERMANS ARE SEEKING TO APPROACH STRONGLY FORTIFIED TOWN OF VERDUN

PARIS, June 28, 6:20 a. m.—The Germans, in fighting furiously at Bagatelle and in the trenches of Calonne, are seeking to approach the strongly fortified town of Verdun, according to Lieut. Col. Rousset, military critic of the Petit Parisien. He believes they are seeking to gain control of the railroad from Chalons to Saint Menchould. While they are aiming at Verdun from two directions, the critic believes the efforts of their army will prove futile.

TO KEEP BALKANS OUT

DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG AND HERR VON JAGOW VISIT VIENNA

FRANKFORT, Germany, via London, June 28, 11 a. m.—The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, who has close relations with the foreign office, surmises that one purpose of the visit of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister von Jagow to Vienna is to discuss what steps may be taken to counteract the efforts of the entente powers to induce the Balkan states to join them in the war.

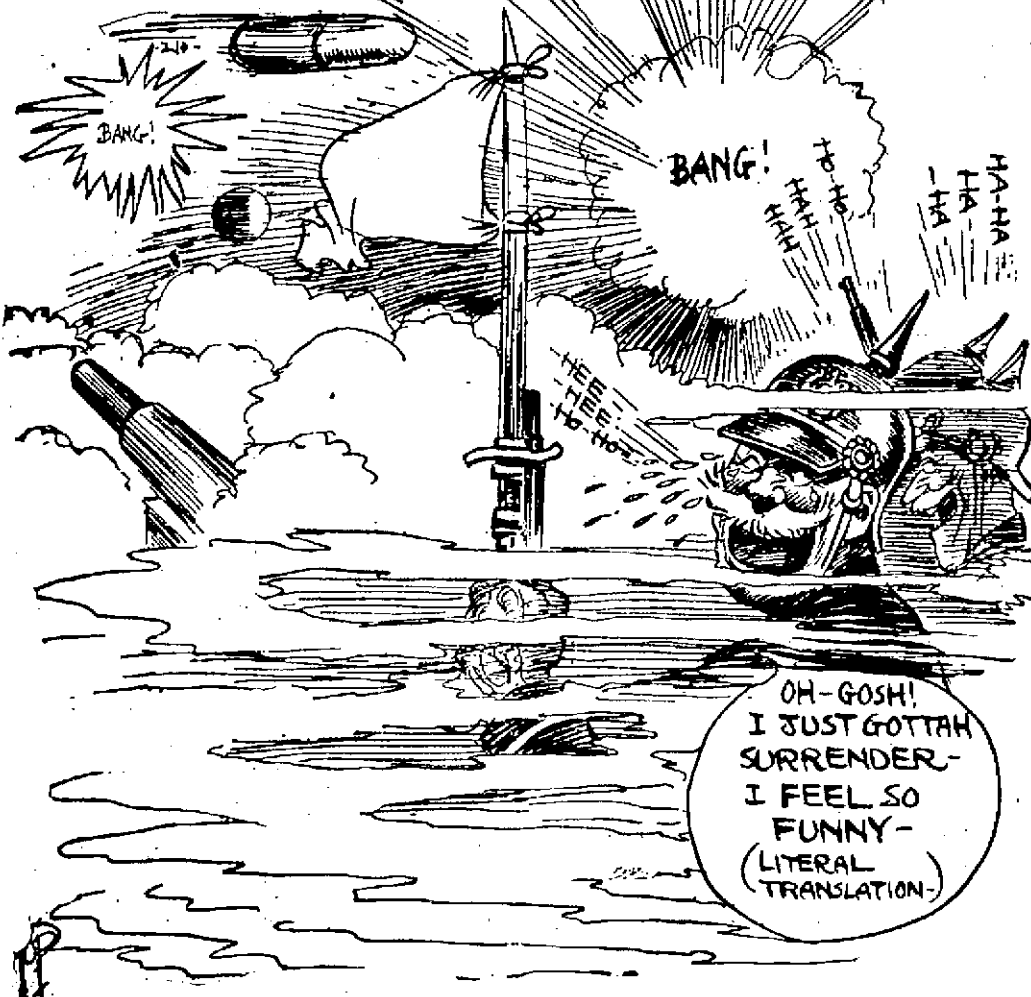

A despatch from Vienna yesterday stated that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg and Herr von Jagow had arrived there for a conference with Emperor Francis Joseph and the foreign minister of Austria-Hungary.

The French are reported to have invented a laughing gas bomb to capture enemies' trenches.

ST. JOHN'S T. A. SOCIETY USE TOO MUCH LIQUOR

OUTING AT McCAHES FIELD SATURDAY A GREAT SUCCESS—SPORTS AND DANCING

The low hanging clouds and the rain which followed did not serve to dampen the enthusiasm of those who attended the field day conducted by St. John's T. A. society of North Chelmsford at McCabe's field on Saturday afternoon, and the event proved even more enjoyable than similar events in past years. The non-appearance of the Exeter A. C. for its baseball encounter with the St. John's was however a disappointment for the fans who anticipated a more or less exciting game. This was replaced by a game against a picked-up nine, and St. John's had an easy time in winning. The other sports included a boys' 100 yards race which was won by Joseph Donovan with Harold Tuoke second; and another for younger lads with John Boyle as the winner and Harry Miller second. The relay race between Michael Scollan and Frank Connors of Lowell vs. St. John's track team was won by St. John's after a most exciting grind. This proved one of the best features on the sport program.

In the evening dancing was held in St. John's hall with Marinel's Crescent orchestra discoursing pleasing music. There was a large attendance, and the dance numbers and refreshments which were served later in the evening were enjoyed by all. The affair was in charge of a committee headed by Michael Scollan.

LOST FOR FIVE HOURS

PRES. WILSON MISSES WAY IN HILLS OF VERMONT—AUTOS TRAVERSE COW PATHS IN RAIN

WINDSOR, Vt., June 28.—President Wilson and members of his family, out for an afternoon automobile ride, became lost yesterday in the foothills of the Green mountains, and for nearly five hours were riding through dense forests, up and down steep inclines, part of the time in a driving rain.

The drive took the presidential party over roads seldom traveled by automobiles, and the way at times narrowed to mere cowpaths and mountain trails.

The president was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, and several secret service men. The chauffeurs of the two cars carrying the party were from Washington, and the president knew the country at least as well as any one with him. Apparently he enjoyed the experience, and forgot entirely the cares of office he left behind him when he came here for a brief vacation. Several times the automobile was driven into "blind" roadways and had to be backed in order to proceed on its way. In one place the party played down a steep hill in mud up to the hubs and in others it ran beside ravines with mountain streams far below.

The chauffeur is a careful driver, however, and at no time was the party in any danger.

COURTENAY GUILD CRITICIZES REUNIONS OF HARVARD MEN—$3000 SPENT ON WINE

BOSTON, June 28.—Harvard graduates were criticized for spending so much for liquor at their class reunions by Courtney Guild in an address at the University temperance meeting on the Charles street mall of Boston common yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Guild said the atrocities of the war in Europe were in a measure paralleled by the atrocities due to alcohol in this country, which he said claims thousands of victims daily and is one of the greatest foes of civilization.

"The rich and well-to-do people in this country do not seem to understand their responsibility in this matter," he said. "They seem to think that the whole problem of alcohol consist in not getting drunk."

There were over 1000 men at the Harvard class reunions last Wednesday evening, and I understand that one class at least allowed $7 a plate for wines. Taking $2 as a conservative estimate, this makes $3000 for wines alone in one evening—enough to support 100 starving Belgian babies for 100 days. I want to see the rich man become civilized. He has got a long way to go yet about liquor."

DRAMATIC AIR DUEL

LONDON, June 28, 10:54 a. m.—A dramatic air duel in which a British aeroplane, reconnoitering over the Belgian town of Poelcapelle at a height of 4000 feet, met and engaged a large German biplane which had double engines and propellers, is described by the eyewitnesses at the British army headquarters in a narrative made public today by the official press bureau. He writes:

"The German machine first circled around ours, at the same time shooting a machine gun but, so far as known, not inflicting any damage. Then our observer fired 50 rounds in return at a range of less than 200 yards. It had some effect, for the hostile biplane was seen to waver and after more shots its engines stopped. The enemy aeroplane then dived to a level of 2000 feet, where it again flattened its course flying slowly and erratically.

"Under heavy anti-aircraft fire from below our pilot turned toward our line to complete his reconnaissance. When his machine was hit he decided to make for home, but the petrol tank had been pierced, and as the aeroplane glided downwards on a slant the petrol was set alight by the exhaust and ran blinding down the front of the body of the aeroplane, which traveled on to the accompaniment of a rattle of musketry as the unused rounds of machine gun ammunition exploded in the heat and the pilot's loaded revolver was discharged.

"The pilot, however, did not lose control, and the aeroplane proceeded steadily on a downward course. Before it had reached the ground a large part of the frame work had been destroyed. Even the hard wood blades of the propeller were burned so badly that the propeller ceased to revolve.

"When the machine finally landed back on our line both officers had been severely burned and the pilot, climbing out of the blazing wreck, tripped over a wire stay and sprained his ankle. The few serviceable portions of the aeroplane were then collected and removed under the shrapnel of the German guns."
